

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

By RALPH E. CHURCH Representative 10th Congressional (North Shore) District

Illinois Representative in Congress Washington, D.C., Dec. 4.—The 86 page Farm Bill which has been before the House of Representatives this past week is one of the most complicated measures ever considered by Congress.

The bill deals with five basic commodities: cotton, tobacco, corn, wheat and rice. No two of the commodities are treated exactly alike.

Perhaps a brief summary of the program as proposed for corn will serve to demonstrate how difficult it really is to unravel the threads of the five separate programs bound together into what is to be known as the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1937.

The establishment of a "commercial corn-producing area" is an extremely important element. Only the farmers residing within the area are subject to Federal control in the marketing of their corn and use of it as feed for livestock and poultry.

Perhaps I should say here that those of us who come from corn producing States within the "commercial area" are somewhat concerned lest in the practical operation of the plan other States, not subject to Federal control, will hereby be stimulated to produce more corn.

as "marketing quotas" which, in substance, means the amount which each farmer may sell, exchange, give away or use for feed. Before the planting season the Secretary of Agriculture determines how much corn should be grown and he then allots a definite number of acres for each farm in the area.

To insure compliance with the storage requirements of the Secretary of Agriculture, the bill provides for a penalty of 15 cents a bushel for the cost a farmer may take out of storage either for his own use or to sell.

her and her late husband in the course of their years of exploration and animal photography. Mrs. Johnson has just returned from Africa where she supervised the African sequences of a picture Twentieth Century-Fox is making of the lives of Henry Stanley and David Livingstone.

partment of Agriculture will have its agents inspecting the farms to see that all the requirements are met.

This proposed plan goes into effect when the national supply of corn has reached 2 billion 900 million bushels. Moreover, it is not contemplated under the bill that it be entirely a voluntary arrangement between the corn farmer and the government.

Corn is a commodity of primary importance to Illinois. I have broadly outlined the features of the proposed program for corn in the pending farm bill not only because of its importance to us but also to illustrate how truly complicated the entire bill is.

"Jungles Calling" Illustrated Talk In Winnetka Dec. 12

Mrs. Martin Johnson will give "Jungles Calling," an illustrated lecture, before the New Trier Sunday Evening club Sunday, Dec. 12, in New Trier high school at 8 p.m.

Stephen Minch, an inventor, his wife Martha and his laboratory assistant, Hans Wicks, live uneventfully under the same roof for thirty-five years.

Rev. Thomas Anderson of the Wellington Avenue Congregational church, Chicago, will give the invocation, and there will be a radio hour of music preceding the lecture.

"Jungles Calling" is so timed that thrill follows thrill, mounting climactically. It would be impossible to duplicate many of the scenes today for the tribes and animals shown have succumbed to the inroads of civilization.

The Martin Johnsons have been responsible for several animal pictures: "Simba", on the life of a lion; "Congorilla", on the gorilla of the Belgian Congo; "Camera Trails in Africa," "Over African Jungles," and so on. They made the first sound recording of the pygmies of the Ituri forest, an out-growth of the original interest they had in photographing wild tribes and perpetuating them for posterity.

Mrs. Johnson met her husband in 1910 when she was 17, proved to be an excellent partner in photography and exploring, and has become his successor, carrying on the penetration of jungle countries. She bids fair to emulate his successful platform career as well.

"The Star Wagon" Selected As Next Reading Dec. 13

"The Star Wagon," latest opus from the fertile pen of Maxwell Anderson, is Ann Birk Kuper's selection for her next reading, which will be held at the North Shore Congregational Israel on Monday, December 13th, at 2:15 p. m.

Combine that horsepower with horse sense and drive an automobile carefully.

Do You Know Illinois

Q. Who was Theophilus W. Smith?

A. A Justice of the Illinois Supreme Court tried in impeachment charge in 1833.

Q. On what specific charges was Smith tried?

A. Selling a circuit clerk's office, swearing out vexatious writs, returnable before himself, for the purpose of oppressing innocent men by holding them to bail, imprisoning a Quaker for not taking off his hat in court, and suspending a lawyer from practice because he had advised his client to apply for a change of venue from his circuit.

Q. Who defended Smith?

A. Sidney Breese, Richard M. Young and Thomas Ford.

Q. What was the result of the trial?

A. A negative acquittal by the Senate. Twelve Senators concurred in holding him guilty, ten were in favor of acquittal and four were excused from voting, a two-thirds majority being required for conviction.

Q. How many terms did Reynolds serve?

A. Three. He closed his congressional career in 1843 and in 1846 was elected to the State legislature, re-elected in 1852 when he served as speaker of the house.

Q. What other high office did Reynolds hold?

A. Governor, 1830-1834; Justice of the Supreme Court, 1818-1825. In 1839 he was appointed the financial agent of the State to effect a loan in England under the internal improvement system.

Q. What was John Quincy Adams' estimate as shown in his diary, of Reynolds?

A. Although Reynolds was a good Latin, Greek and French scholar he hid his learning because of the contempt of early settlers for "book larnin'" and as a result Adams, who disliked him, referred to him as "coarse, vulgar, ignorant and knavish."

Q. What was Reynolds' attitude toward the Civil War?

A. He wrote to Governor Smith of Virginia sustaining the South, and to Jefferson Davis advising a resort to arms for the disruption of the Union.

Q. What notable literary work did Reynolds write during his late years?

A. "Pioneer History of Illinois."

Intra-Mural Sports Program Offered H. P. Boys All Year

In order to encourage boys who are not on all-school teams to exercise physically through participation in some game of their own choice, an intra-mural sports program for boys is offered to the students of the Highland Park high school throughout the entire year.

Participation in the eleven sports comprising the year's program is encouraged through a system of individual and session competition. On the basis of points given for victories and participation in the various activities, an award is made to the winning home room at the end of the year and also to the two boys with the highest individual scores.

Three hundred seventeen boys from twenty-one different sessions you so far this year. Considering the boys on the inter-scholastic teams, this leaves very few students who are not active in some sport.

The sports included in the program this year are softball, volleyball, basketball, badminton, ping-pong, free throwing, ice hockey, swimming, tennis, track and Indian ball.

Some drivers of automobiles feel that they must drive a car that has more horsepower than other cars. They feel that they must sit behind the wheel and drive an automobile as though it had 100 wild horses out in front of it running at random.

Under the hood of every automobile are anywhere from 4 to 100 horses—docile and tame in the hands of some drivers, but wild and dangerous to life, limb, and property in the hands of others.

"Ride 'em Cowboy" may be a good poor advice to the person who takes cheer at a rodeo but "step on it" is a car out on a public highway that other people must use.
