

Confusion Exists Regarding Funds of Community Service

 soldiers and sailors realized the need of directed recreation. They wanted Highland Park to have recreation too. So they incorporated as a recreation agency. This was done in 1920. The next year the committee bought and managed the Community Shop, a 75 foot piece of property located at 378 Central avenue. To do so a committee of women sold bonds for $30,500. These bonds were paid off and the property was given to Community Service for recreational purposes. Here, too, recreation activities were carried on for several years. Then in 1928 the property was sold, the proceeds of same created the trust fund already mentioned. For the last ten years this fund has been administered by the Community Service Board of Directors; comprised of thirty men and women of the community.

Highland Park needs a Community House, it does not have adequate recreation facilities, and Community Service is willing to invest its funds towards one. It needs, however, the help of the deavor a success.

Andrew Harke Finds that 308 "Anywhere" May Not Be Home

It mattered little to Andrew Harke, 27, whether it was a "Prairie" or an "Oakwood," for at any rate it was 308, and 308 might be anywhere, or "any port in a storm."

Harke left his home at 308 Oakwood avenue Sunday evening bound for an evening of pleasure. Following his drinking spree, a companion drove him to 308 Prairie avenue, where he said he lived.

Trying his key in the door of the first floor apartment, and being unable to get in, he climbed to the second story, where he found the door of the apartment unlocked, so walked in.

Frank Cancello, occupant of the flat, finding the intruder and realizing that he had been drinking, politely invited him to leave. Harke refused to go, insisted it was his home, and ordered Cancello to leave. He then prepared to go to bed. Cancello, who was about exasperated by this time, called the Highwood police, who took Harke to jail to think over his numbers. Perhaps next time he will recall his street name.

Mrs. George Titman Passes Away Dec. 17

Mrs. Fannie Moller Titman, wife of George A. Titman, 55 Deerfield place, passed away Friday evening at her home, following several months of failing health. She was forty-six years old, and had been a resident of Highland Park for fourteen years.

The deceased was born in Chicago, March 30, 1891, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moller. Here she spent the greater part of her life. At an early age she became associated with the Mosley Chapel Mission, a part of the Second Presbyterian church, and it was there she gained much of her religious training. It was through the channels of the young people's organization of that church that she met and became acquainted with Mr. Titman, with whom she united in marriage on Nov. 12, 1912. About a month ago, they celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. Two children were born to this union, George Robert and Helen Louise.

In 1923 the family came to Highland Park, where they have since resided.

Mrs. Titman was quiet and unassuming in her manner and was a devoted affectionate companion.

She lived for her family and her home. Before submitting to a major operation a few months ago she called her loved ones about her and expressed her vital concern about the future and the happiness of each one of them in the event that all did not go well with her, proving that her thoughts were always centered in her loved ones more than in herself.

Besides her husband and children, Mrs. Titman is survived by her mother, Mrs. Fannie Moeller of Oak Park, three sisters, the Misses Louise and Gertrude of Oak Park and Mrs. Julius Reppe of Argenta, Ill., and three brothers, William of Clinton, Frank of Chicago and Joseph of Morgan Park.

Funeral services were held at Kelley's chapel Monday at 2 p.m. Rev. H. F. Siemsen officiated. Rev. J. H. Taylor was to have assisted in the service, but due to a fall on the icy pavement last Saturday was unable to attend. Cremation took place at Graceland cemetery.

Mrs. Matilda Schrey Passes Away at Daughters Home

Mrs. Matilda Schrey, mother of Mrs. Wm. Guyot, of 598 Glenview avenue, passed from this life on Thursday evening, December 16th. Mrs. Schrey came to pay her daughter a visit about a month ago. Soon after arriving in Highland Park she became ill from which she did not rally. She was privileged to celebrate her 85th birthday on the 24th of June. Mrs. Schrey was quiet and unassuming in her manner, but she lived a very useful and beautiful Christian life. She devoted most of her time and talent to her family and gave generously of herself to those who were in need. Mrs. Schrey was born at Olney, Illinois, and spent all of her life in the community. She united with the Evangelical church of that city during the days of childhood, and maintained a very vital interest in the worthwhile things of life to the very end. The church held a very large place in the program of her life and she was always doing something to further its cause both at home and abroad. Although Mrs. Schrey never lived in Highland Park, she through her visits from time to time. She always looked forward to coming here to share some of her time with her loved ones and others who she knew. Besides Mrs. Guyot she leaves another daughter, Guyot she leaves another daughter and two sons. They are Mrs. Mammie Doyle of Olney, Joe Schrey of Pratt, Kas, and Henry of Kankakee, a sister Mrs. Catharine Speicher also survives.

Services were held at the Wm. Guyot home on Friday afternoon at which Rev. H. F. Siemsen officiated. Further services were held at the Evangelical church at Olney, Illinois, on Sunday afternoon, with interment at Olney.

Deerpath to Usher in New Year with Big Celebration

Deanna Durbin's first starring picture, "Three Smart Girls," will come to the Deerpath theatre next Friday and Saturday, Christmas Eve and Day. Declared one of the best pictures of last season, it has been much in demand since the release of her latest masterpiece, "100 Men and a Girl." An excellent supporting cast includes Nan Grey and Barbara Read, the other "girls," Binnie Barnes, Kaye Brady, Ray Milland, Charles Winninger, and the popular Mischa Auer.

"Broadway Melody of 1938," starring two topnotchers—Robert Taylor and Eleanor Powell, comes to the Deerpath on Sunday, December 26, for three days. Another of the series of excellent musical-comedy-dance pictures, it is enhanced by the presence of Buddy Ebsen, George Murphy, Binnie Barnes, Robert Benchley and Sophie Tucker.

The last three days of the year will bring John Boles, Jack Oakie, and Ida Lupino to the Deerpath in "Fight for Your Lady." Margot Grahame, Billy Gilbert and Eric Rhodes are also in this picture which is tops for light comedy of the type that its principals can portray.

The biggest New Year's celebration ever to be seen at the Deerpath theatre is being planned for the ushering in of 1938. A big midnight show will begin at 10:50 p.m. and will include a showing of "Fight for Your Lady," a tremendous celebration with noisemakers, hats, serpentine, novelties, favors, and all kinds of fun, and the first showing of "Walter Wagner's Vogues of 1938" with five short features added. It's a really big evening and its cost is comparatively trifling—50 cents plus tax for each person.

Xmas Seal Data of Interest to Stamp Collectors

Have you examined carefully those sheets of Christmas Health Seals you purchased?
 The collecting of Christmas Seals has become quite a fad among laymen, as well as among recognized stamp collectors. Each issue differs from all the preceding ones and there are even distinguishing marks on the sheets of the same issue, the detection of which makes an interesting study.

Four printers received the contract for the printing of the supply of seals required for this year. To each one was sent a set of four negatives which is necessary for the four colors used. These negatives are made up from a master negative so that the Seals produced by each printer should be identical. In order for each printer to recognize his product, a mark is placed on the printing plate for identification. The position selected this year for the identification mark was on seal No. 56, the one in the sixth position from left in the sixth horizontal row, counting from the top of the sheet. The Eureka Seal has its mark on the "S" on the black plate on seal No. 56. The E. & D. placed its mark, a "D" on the black plate on seal No. 56. The U. S. mark is a "U" on the black plate on seal No. 55. Of the last named there is a sheet without the "U" on seal No. 55, which indicates the mark was omitted on one pane of 100 seals of the 16 panes which is the make up of an entire printed sheet. All these marks are on the snow in the lower right-hand corner of the seal.

A few flaws appear to be constant. On seal No. 95 will be found a red dash on the Town Crier's cheek, to the right of his mouth and comes on sheets of all four printers. On seal No. 55 there is a red dot at the elbow of the arm holding the lantern on the E. & D. sheets. On the U. S. sheets will be found on seal No. 35 a flaw like a path in the snow which crosses the date "1937"; on seal No. 43 there is a small white flaw in the blue to the right of "1937"; on seal No. 54 is a small white flaw in the blue to the right of the lantern and on seal No. 67 there is a white flaw in blue, like a scratch, over the "9". Virtually all the seals sold in Ohio are of the "S" vintage, but persons interested in Christmas Seal collection and the detection of the varying and distinctive marks can obtain information about the other sheets from the National Tuberculosis Association.
