THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

Embodied in the Spirit of Christmas are all the composite radiance, beauty, idealism and character that mankind has ever known:

- The splendor of the star whose shining rays illuminate the higher road; The simplicity and faith of little children; The glowing warmth of true friendship; The joyousness of giving; The spiritual thrill of living for others; The secret peace through understanding and goodwill; The wonder working magic of kind words and acts; The contagious quality of happiness and good cheer; The challenge of the Cross; The transforming power of love.

Projecting the Spirit of Christmas through all time and space would rebuild the world in harmony with the plans of the Divine Architect.

by RAYMOND PITCAIRN

(National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic)

Again, throughout our own and many other lands, men pause to remember the first Christmas night that brought to a troubled world not a new panacea, but a New Spirit.

It was the Spirit of Peace: borne on a celestial song which not time, nor greed, nor human ambitions have ever quite muted.

It is a welcome, a necessary, refrain. It comes with a message to all.

To the humble and the obscure—first to hear it on that solemn mid-night—it tells again that peace and strength and comfort come from sources infinitely deeper, infinitely wiser than any earthly leadership.

To the powerful and ambitious that seek new empire, it tells again that the King of Kings came not in military glory, but as a Prince of Peace, who continued to conquer long after the strongest legions were dust.

To all who strive for grandeur and the pride of great possessions, it tells again that a humble stable, with its cot of scented hay, looms larger in the mind of the world today than the richest palaces of Imperial Rome.

That is because the New Spirit which came with a Song in the air and a Star in the sky is the spirit of love and compassion. While it rules, hatreds and warring rivalries between man and man, between class and class, between nation and nation, are forgotten.

Christmas, then, returns as a call to all men to keep that Spirit alive. Through successive generations, humanity has sought to hold the Song and follow the star—often failing. Through our own generation and those to come, Christmas reminds us, the quest must continue until "the reign of violence is o'er."

And then the ancient message, "Peace on Earth, Good-will toward Men," shall have glorious reality as well as imperishable beauty.

Tender Made Ham Served with Turkey a Glorified Meal

Last Christmas a homemaker who was trying to evolve new ways of putting new taste appeal in the Christmas dinner thought up this thrilling turkey and ham ensemble.

Her family and friends bragged about the marvelous Christmas dinner so much that in that neighborhood many families enjoyed the new taste thrill for their New Year's dinner.

In that indefinable and inexplorable way that good news becomes known the new idea spread like wild fire. Home economists and epicures gave publicity to the turkey-ham idea so that by Thanksgiving this year, homemakers all over the country made turkey and ham the center of interest for the Thanksgiving feast.

Turkey properly roasted and filled with savory dressing is unquestionably good, but culinary experts agree that the blend of delicate turkey meat and the succulent, mouth-melting Tender Made Ham provides an entirely new and thrilling taste excitement.

Those who have served this turkey-ham combination say its popularity is due largely to a new type of ham that came on the market about two years ago. This ham is produced by one of America's leading packers by a new secret process that retains all the rich natural juices.

Not only from the taste and tenderness standpoint but from the convenience and economy standpoint, this ham appeals to the practical homemaker. It is ready to eat as purchased or may be heated in a fraction of the usual cooking time, saving practically all cooking shrinkage which, as the experienced cook knows, amounts to from 1-5 to 1-4 of the ordinary ham.

For all three reasons Tender Made Ham is a wonderful standby for the homemaker during the holidays. For the Christmas dinner she can serve a hot slice of Tender Made Ham with each slice of turkey. For gay buffet suppers it makes a wonderful treat served cold with cold turkey.
