W. H. Onderdonk Dies; Funeral Is Held Here Monday

Private funeral services for William Holmes Onderdonk, 405 Lake avenue, who passed away Friday at the Passavant hospital in Chicago, were held Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at his home. Rev. Christoph Keller, rector of Trinity church, officiated.

the chapel at Graceland cemetery, where Mr. Onderdonk's body was cremated. The ashes will be placed in a lot at Rosehill cemetery beside the graves of his parents. A stone from Tribune Tower, the building Mr. Onderdonk loved and served, will be removed, carved and used for his headstone.

Mr. Onderdonk became ill of pneumonia three months ago. He passed the crisis of the illness in his home, but was taken to the hospital in Chicago when he failed to regain strength. Complications of the disease caused his death.

Mr. Onderdonk, who was 59 years old, was born at Jersey City, N. J., moving to Evanston with his family at an early age. He attended the public schools there, later entering Northwestern Academy from which he enrolled at Northwestern university.

After completing his education he entered the real estate business in Chicago, learning much of property management and administration. In 1906 he joined the Chicago Tribune, becoming manager of the building at Madison and Dearborn streets, where the newspaper was then published.

When Tribune Tower was erected on Michigan avenue in 1925, the building corporation was formed with Mr. Onderdonk as vice president. Many of his ideas went into the building of the tower. This was true again later when the home of W-G-N, the Tribune's radio station, was being built just north of the tower. Many features of this structure are years ahead of similar ones erected later.

In addition to the Michigan avenue buildings and the one in the loop, Mr. Onderdonk had under his supervision the paper warehouses, and many other units used on production of the newspaper.

Mr. Onderdonk had been a resident of Highland Park for nineteen years, and also deeply interested in all civic and philanthropic enterprises locally, he had never taken an active part in the affairs of the city. He was an active member of the Exmoor Country club.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Catherine Hamilton Onderdonk, a son Dudley, a daughter Virginia, who is in England attending Cambridge university, and three brothers, Dudley and John of New York and Lawrence Onderdonk of Winnetka.

Mrs. Ruben Olson Passes on Saturday

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Swedish Methodist church in Highwood, followed by burial in Memorial Park cemetery.

The deceased is survived by her husband, Ruben Olson, a carpenter, and two young daughters, Alice Fay and Bernice Margaret.

Devote More Time to Mentally Superior Delinquents Advised

On Wednesday, January 12, Dr. Irene Josselyn of Highland Park, psychiatrist at the Institute of Juvenile Research, spoke before the Ravinia Woman's Club on the "Inter-relationship of the Family and the Community." She said that the first part of the 20th century might be termed the "Age of Disastrous Individualism." Our neurotic adults products of a too conventionalized youth, have made individualism a deity. Their attitude is one of "What Can the World Mean to Me?" which cannot help but result in a disintegration of social living.

Psychiatrists define maturity as having been reached when "the individual's needs and interests are so expressed that they serve society, and, incidentally, the individual." Dr. Josselyn expressed a desire that we might become more excited over the mentally super-delinquents, instead of devoting so much attention to the mentally inferior delinquents. Gangsters, forgers, etc., are generally superior individuals, and the main reason some people become geniuses and others become criminals is that unconsciously the geniuses are motivated by a social sense.

Children are essentially social, with adults mistakenly injecting the idea, "what do you care what the outside world thinks — so long as you know you're right?" It's rather tough on a child who carries this out; anyway the stronger "individual" is bound to dominate the group. It is the duty of parents to instill a community feeling because a child cannot jump free from the family group to the world at large; the community is a ready-made, intervening step.

Notre Dame Glee Club to Appear in Benefit Concert Jan. 23

Music lovers will have an opportunity of hearing the Notre Dame Glee club in concert in the Grand Ball room of the Palmer House, Chicago, at 3 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, January 23. The program will be sufficiently diversified to appeal to all.

Clubs affiliated with the Council of Catholic Women of the Archdiocese of Chicago are bringing this nationally famous singing unit of forty male voices under the direction of Professor Joseph F. Casasanta to raise funds to be used to further the social service work of the council.

Tickets may be purchased from the presidents of all affiliated clubs or the office of the council, 31 East Congress street, Chicago.

Professor Casasanta has gained wide spread recognition and esteem among music critics because of the delicacy and precision of his choral and instrumental direction.

The Council of Catholic Women of the Archdiocese of Chicago has been functioning for six years and groups of volunteer workers from parishes in the Archdiocese have banded themselves into a "Legion of Mercy" whose duty is to appear in the Court of Domestic Relations and look after the welfare of the innocent parties, especially the young girls.

The council looks back on a splendid record of achievements and forward to a well defined program of Catholic Social Service.
