At this meeting a framed constitution of the United States will be presented to the High school. The public is cordially invited to attend. The address will be given by Charles C. Kapschull, a past state commander.

H. S. Students See Flags of American History

Mrs. E. R. Phelps, past president of the North Shore chapter of the D.A.R., presented to Highland Park 1200 high school students in their Lincoln assembly last Friday a stirring patriotic address that they will not soon forget. Beginning with a short eulogy to the Great Emancipator, Mrs. Phelps spent the remainder of her time describing and displaying the many flags, 18 in all, which had flown over these United States, a nation that owes its unity largely to his steady hand and unswerving purpose of saving the Union.

As Mrs. Phelps recounted the historic significance of each flag, two high school girls unfurled before their audience one of the 18 replicas made by the North Shore Chapter after untiring and careful research had assured them of its authentic design.

The flags described and displayed by Mrs. Phelps were as follows: The flag of Columbus' voyage to the new continent—the royal flag of Ferdinand and Isabella and the flag of Spain; the French Fleur De-Lys of 1634—carried into Illinois by La Salle, Marquette, and Joliet in 1795, probably the pennant that once graced the shores of Lake Michigan near Highland Park; the English Cross of St. George carried into the St. Lawrence by Cabot in 1493; the Scottish Cross of St. Andrew of 1603; the English King's Colors of the Colonies at Plymouth and Jamestown; the British Isles flag of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales (1607 - 1802); the rare Concord (Massachusetts) banner raised by the "embattled farmers" who "fired the shot heard round the world."

The famous Colonial flag of the White Pine (1775-1776); the Continental and Pine in a Red Field (1775); the Bunker Hill flag which combined the English St. George's Cross and the Continental Pine in a Blue Field; the Crescent flag that unfurled over Fort Moultrie; the Gadsden or North Carolina Snake flag of John Paul Jones (1776).

The first flag to suggest the ultimate banner of these United States was the Cambridge of George Washington's troops which combined the King's Colors of England with seven red and six white bars to represent the thirteen colonies. On July 14, 1777 came the Betsy Ross flag with its thirteen stars arranged in a circle, within a field of blue, and with its thirteen bars—the first flag of the new United States of America. The "Star Spangled Banner" of Francis Scott Key with its 15 stars and 15 bars was altered by Congress' order in July 1818 when it was decided to add a star for each new state and to have but thirteen bars to represent the original colonies.

Mrs. Phelps, after paying homage to Key whose national anthem had been sung to open the program, presented the Confederate flag, "the Stars and Bars," and closed by leading the entire student body in the Pledge of Allegiance to the present flag of the forty-eight United States of America.

The high school is indeed deeply grateful to Mrs. Phelps and the North Shore Chapter of D.A.R. for such an appropriate Lincoln assembly.

University libraries are establishing browsing rooms where students may come and spend a quiet, leisure hour or two. This policy has been resorted to because most university libraries have the closed stack system which does not permit its patrons to wander at will among the book shelves.

Public libraries, especially the small ones, long ago opened their entire book collection to patrons. The stacks at the Highland Park Public Library are open to all who care to use them. They are located on the main floor to the east of the charging desk and contain some 20,000 additional volumes of fiction and non-fiction. Ask to have the stack arrangement explained to you the next time you visit the library or consult the chart on the wall at the entrance to the stack room. The reference department of the Highland Park Public Library is anxious to extend its reference service to the people of this area. We answered an average of two questions a day last year. If you have a puzzler, let us help you solve it.
