Camp-O-Rals

Scouts of the North Shore will have a chance to demonstrate their skill as woodsmen at the Sectional Camp-O-Ral to be held May 21-22.

The rally for the south half of the Council will be held at West Turnbull Wood, Glencoe, and the north division will take place at Swifts' Wood, Lake Forest.

Patrols from the various troops will arrive Saturday afternoon with a full pack, set up their camp, and participate in a wide variety of Campcraft activities. A feature of the Camp-O-Ral will be a campfire program Saturday night at which stunts will be given by the patrols.

Sunday morning, following breakfast and church service, camp activity will continue, culminating in the presentation of awards at 11 o'clock.

Col. J. B. Jackson, Camp-O-Ral chairman, expects a large number of participating patrols. Harold Spinney of Wilmette is chairman of the South division, and Calvin Gartley of Lake Forest is chairman of the North division. Two weeks later an Area Camp-O-Ral will be held for the winner of the two sections.

New Athletic Field at Ma-Ka-Ja-Wan

John W. Davis, chairman of the Camp committee of the North Shore Area Council, announced today that the new athletic field at Camp Ma-Ka-Ja-Wan has been completed. This is the second field at this Council Scout Camp for such purposes, and is located on the camp side of the lake between the Main Lodge and Blackfoot Village.

This is a distinct improvement in camp and the executive staff are greatly pleased with what this new field will accomplish in providing more time for ball games, badminton, volley ball and several other games. It will save time in transportation and use of barge and will provide a longer time for the evening campfires.

A DOGS LIFE

Dr. Jim Butterworth

Well, Reilly is, just as his name implies, an Irish Terrier, and, like most Irish Terriers, Reilly can lick anything and anyone from Maine to Mexico and from Nome to Nantucket et. I almost forgot to mention that Reilly's full name is Reilly B. McIlvaine, Jr. In order to make a long story relatively short, we had better first amend the above statement to the effect that Reilly can do the mentioned licking provided the opponents and combatants come one at a time and provided that they aren't more than three times bigger than he, and second, get the story off to a good start by telling of the day that Reilly thought he could take on Butch and Biggie Butch, respectively an Old English Sheep Dog, and a Great Dane, at one and the same time. Really, Reilly only remembered about the first part of the day—up until the time he met the belligerents—after that it was all pretty much of a blank.

Naturally, when Reilly's mother and dad found him being literally chewed to pieces, piece by piece, they were very much perturbed and upset, so they sent him down to my house to stay for a while and sort of get fixed up. And even I was a bit disturbed when Marty put him on the operating table and all we could see was mud and blood. Well, the first thing we did was to spend a great deal of time picking mud and dirt and bits of gravel out of the wounds and hair, and after we had gotten down to practically rock bottom and Reilly was looking almost like an Irish Terrier again—really only half an Irish Terrier, for only half of him was there—we decided right then that it was going to be a long job and there probably wouldn't be any of us eating supper that night—at least not until much later.

Anyway, when we had gotten all through and had completed our sewing, Reilly looked like one big stitch, for there were eighty-two stitches in him, everywhere from his nose to his tail, and from his back to his toes. He didn't feel much like moving around for several days, though when the last stitch was removed he decided that maybe he was going to live after all. He stayed down at my house for a long while, and all sorts of things happened in the meantime, everything from sore toes to sore tummies, and before he was completely on the road to recovery he was able to talk about his three operations instead of just one.

However, after so long he finally began to feel better and pretty soon his dad came down to take him home. I didn't say anything at the time but I thought to myself that I'd be willing to bet almost anything, even five cents, that Reilly would go out and look for Butch and Biggie Butch the minute he arrived home, and sure enough, that's what occurred. Butch and Biggie Butch had drawn up a truce, though, so nothing serious happened. And I'll bet Reilly's dad was glad of that.
