Lake College of Commerce Announces Summer Course

The Lake College of Commerce, 14 N. Genesee street, Waukegan, Ill., announces the opening dates of June 6 and June 13 for its summer term. Classes will be in session until the 19th of August.

The summer course gives the high school graduate who plans to enter a college of liberal arts, an opportunity to acquire a knowledge of typewriting and shorthand — valuable assets, because it saves time, makes more usable lecture notes that are taken, and minimizes drudgery.

To the high school graduate who already has a knowledge of commercial subjects, it offers the opportunity of attaining a higher degree of proficiency. Summer work enables future secretaries and accountants — men or women — to graduate from regular courses three months sooner than fall entrants.

With the introduction of the summer course, Lake college offers a new subject which it believes will be invaluable to the student. This subject is salesmanship. Getting a business position, holding the job, advancing to a higher place in the organization—all depend on personal salesmanship as well as technical skill. The business success of every student ultimately depends on how well he can sell himself to his employer and keep his employer sold on him.

Summer school however, implies recreational and social activities; and under the direction of Mr. Loyal V. Sittler, director of public relations, wholesome and enjoyable activities are being planned. As customary, picnics, beach parties, and the like, will come in for their share of play.

Through an arrangement of classes and the elimination of study periods, summer school offers every subject as thoroughly and with the same high standards as other semesters. The college, as always, is under the supervision of certified public accountants.
