All members of the board were present except Trustee Ralph Peterson.

The question of dumping garbage within the village limits was brought up again and the board agreed to go into action. Plans were made for special police to get evidence for the prosecution of violators.

Plans for the carnival on July 22, 23, and 24, are formulated at special sessions of the board in cooperation with other civic groups. Mayor C. M. Willman is general chairman of this village benefit and Deerfield Days will be bigger and better than ever before, if the community will lend its support.

A Chevrolet is to be the main prize of the event. Proceeds of the carnival will be used to decrease the village deficit.

The fireworks display will begin at 9 p.m. There will be in this public display Liberty brilliant bombshells; fancy effect shells; Oriental streamlined bombshells; a 600-shot machine gun battle battery, jewels, mines, weeping willow, and many others, with a special barrage making an inspiring finale.

The Family Tree

The home of the Murphys was originally in the eastern part of Wexford. The family is traced back to Muirchu (sea warrior), the 50th king of Leinster, A.D. 1090. Later the name O'Moroghu was translated into English as O'murphy and finally as Murphy.

The family maintained its independence and estates with their own soldiers until finally dispossessed by the English in 1613. From then on, the Murphys spread all over Ireland and the world. Many found their way into the American colonies.

The family coat of arms shows four lions and three sheaves. The motto is "Brave and Hospitable." Lions symbolize courage and warlike qualities and the sheaves indicate possession of land with the possibility to show hospitality.

The Rev. James V. Murphy has prepared a most interesting account of the Murphys and names all the members of that family who served in the Revolutionary period and in the founding of the various state of the Union. He names soldiers, sailors, statesmen, all Murphys, who helped make history for this country and sums up his "family tree" with these words: "May we not all gain inspiration from the fact that our family has simply grown up with the country. May we ever be true to her ideals and traditions."
