Tribune Gives Facts on New Automobile Liability Bill

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) Springfield, Ill., June 26.—(Special.)—A financial responsibility bill, expected to be enacted with a drivers license law before the special session is ended here on Thursday night, is simple in its purposes but complicated in its methods of attaining these purposes. Its terms, covering sixteen printed pages, may bewilder many of the 2,700,000 Illinois drivers who will be concerned. The main purpose of the financial responsibility act, as it is satisfactorily functioning in other states, is to curb recklessness inspired by a knowledge that the driver will not pay for any damages that his recklessness might cause.

Statement on Provisions

A simple but incomplete statement of the provisions is this: When a driver's license has been revoked for one of the more serious traffic offenses his driving license and his auto license are suspended until he establishes proof of his ability to pay for damages in any accident he might cause thereafter. When a motorist is convicted in a civil suit for damages resulting from an automobile accident, his license is suspended until the judgment is paid and he establishes proof of his financial responsibility should his carelessness cause a second accident.

The proposed law, as drafted, offers several means for establishing this proof. However, as the law functions in other states, the usual method is to post a public liability insurance policy. The policy must cover $5,000 for the injury or death of more than one person, and $1,000 for property damage.

Insurance Not Compulsory

This does not mean that public liability insurance is to be compulsory. Compulsory insurance has been tried in only one state, Massachusetts, and the results, according to reports, have not been satisfactory.

Under the financial responsibility law, insurance is not compulsory until after the motorist has been found guilty of carelessness in a civil suit or has been found guilty of one of the more serious traffic offenses in a criminal prosecution.

A motorist may elect to go without liability insurance, either because the premium would be a hardship or because he does little driving.

If this is his choice, which is permissible under the financial responsibility act, the law places a burden upon him to exercise more than ordinary care. He is restrained by a threat of losing his driving and car licenses for any serious traffic violation, or for any accident damages which he would be unable to pay.

The bill sets up qualifications of these provisions. For the vast majority of motorists, it is sufficient to know they must carry a so-called 5 and 10 insurance policy or they are in danger of being barred from the highways if, resorting to the vernacular, their driving gets them into a serious jam.

L. F. College Hall To Undergo $15,000 Remodeling Project

Work on the renovation of College hall, historic building at Lake Forest college, is now well under way and is scheduled to be completed the latter part of August.

The approximate sum of $15,000 is being spent by the college in the building of fireproof concrete and steel stairways and in constructing a new entrance to the building. The project is a continuation of a program for the improvement of the college equipment which was started last year with the enlargement of Reid Memorial library at a cost of $21,000.

Modern Meats for Summer Treats Is Assurance of Quality

According to globe trotters, no country in the world is so progressive as America in the method of preparing food. Making food better and easier to serve is the working ideal of American provisioners who have the responsibility of supplying the table of Mr. and Mrs. Uncle Sam. This attitude, which is in marked contrast to that of many countries where food and methods of serving are substantially the same as they were generations or centuries ago, is especially notable among the leading meat packers.

An example of this is Tender Made Ham, which in a little over two years, since its introduction, has become famous, from Coast to Coast. But the popularity of this ham as "the ham you cut with a fork," rests on more than the tenderness which is unduplicated in any other ham. It is due to a distinctive palate delighting flavor that no other ham can offer, and to the fact that it is ready to serve as you buy it or to just heat and eat before serving.

These time saving features of Tender Made Ham are not only a great boon to the busy homemakers and hotel and restaurant chefs, but it makes this modern ham most economical too. As this ham is ready to eat as purchased there is practically no cooking loss as it needs only to be heated, for hot ham dishes. There is a very definite saving when one realizes that from 1-5 to 1-4 of an ordinary ham is lost in the old fashioned process of home cooking.

One result of the secret process of preparing Tender Made Ham is that all of its rich natural ham juices are retained, giving the ham a distinctive flavor that can be achieved in no other way. Another outstanding result of this process is that the shanks and butts are more tender and juicy than the center cuts of most ham. This means an additional economy for thrifty homemakers, for instead of being forced to use these end pieces as boiled ham with vegetables or ground up for croquettes they may be utilized as breakfast slices, baked ham or for delicious sandwiches, and cold plates. In other words, for the first time the whole ham is useable from end to end.

This ham was originally available only with the bone-in, but in response to a widespread demand it was later offered to homemakers with the bone in or boneless in carefully sealed flavor saving whole, half and quarter size tins. The latest most modern form for this outstanding favorite of American tables is the Boneless All Purpose Tender Made Ham with Gelatin. A solid piece of Tender Made Ham with a transparent edible gelatin covering. Its attractive, smart and the easiest to serve Ham you have ever seen. You can buy or serve as little or as much as you want. It's as easy to carve and to serve as a meat loaf. The men of the house like this feature too. In any form there is the same distinctive flavor and mouth-melting tenderness and all are ready to serve or just heat and eat.

For any summer menu need Tender Made Ham truly merits place of honor on American tables.

Refrain Purchase Of Fireworks As Safety Measure

An appeal to parents throughout Illinois to refrain from purchasing firecrackers and other fireworks for themselves or their children was issued this week by the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

"This week thousands of men, women and children in the United States will be injured, many of them fatally, as the result of fireworks accidents," said Miss Audrey

M. Hayden, executive secretary of the society. "The state of Illinois will be the safest state in the Union if all parents will assume personal responsibility to see that they and their children do not handle fireworks."

There are no such things as safe fireworks, Miss Hayden explained, declaring that the society files are filled with records of deaths and injuries caused by the supposedly "safe" sparklers, Roman candles and small firecrackers.

"Independence day should be observed by all patriotic citizens," she said, "but there are many ways of displaying patriotism without bringing about the terrific toll of injuries, deaths and damage to property occasioned in the past. Many communities, such as Chicago, are holding central civic celebrations where all the fireworks one may care to see will be shot off. The society urges those who feel fireworks are an essential part of Independence Day to attend those celebrations and feel secure in their own personal safety."

In communities where civic organizations are sponsoring fireworks celebrations, the society urges those groups to make certain that pyrotechnics experts are placed in charge of the fireworks. In its plea to every person in the state, the society sums up its message as follows:

"Make this a real safe and sane Fourth!"

Illinois Dunes Park Near Waukegan To Open Sunday, July 3

With the big beach house nearly completed and other improvements well under way, workmen at the Illinois Dunes Park just north of Waukegan, are rushing to have everything in readiness for an official opening Sunday, July 3.

The park is already open and has been visited by several thousand persons this year, according to Stephen V. Hotham, general manager. Lake county and other civic and lay leaders in the Chicagoland area will attend the formal dedication of the beach house and inspection of the other new features of the park.

The modern trailer resort will be about ready for use on that day. Plumbing and electrical facilities are installed. A 140-foot well has been drilled to serve the trailer 'city.'

Illinois Dunes park officials are negotiating with the Chicago and North Western Railway company to stop some of its trains at the Dunes Park station which is at the entrance to the park, on week-ends and holidays. This station was formerly called Beach and was renamed in honor of the park which is destined sooner or later to become a state park. Arrangements are also being made for special transportation service over the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee railroad.

The newly organized association contemplates the installation of other features in the park in the near future. With three miles of Lake Michigan beach and 2,000 acres of woods, meadow and dunes, Illinois Dunes park will be able to accommodate many thousands of persons at one time.

Need for such a roomy play space has been apparent for some time. Nearly all the Chicago beaches are overcrowded and those of centers nearby have been compelled to charge relatively high rates and otherwise restrict the areas to prevent congestion. Addition of the big lake front park to its already imposing assortment of summer resorts, will give Lake county, Illinois, additional claim to being the playground of all Chicagoland.

Every other driver on the road may be a fool, but that is no reason for making it unanimous. Never try to pass the car ahead until you are sure you have the room, the time, and the ability.
