

Summer Training Camps in Full Swing at Fort Sheridan

Brigadier General Karl Truesdell, U.S.A., announced today that the summer training camps at Fort Sheridan, Ill., were well under way, with every indication that a most successful season could be expected. General Truesdell has assigned Major M.A.S. Ming, 6th Field Artillery Brigade, as executive for the summer training camps, and Major H. A. Austin, Infantry, as adjutant. A number of officers of the regular army have been ordered to Fort Sheridan for assignment to the camp staff and as instructors during the summer.

On June 17th a group of 183 recent graduates of college ROTC units from the middle west sported their 2nd lieutenant's bars for the first time during two weeks intensive instruction under the supervision of Lieutenant Colonel B. S. Du Bois, Coast Artillery Corps. These students have been organized into three provisional batteries, which rotate in handling the army's three inch anti-aircraft guns, 50 caliber machine guns, and anti-aircraft searchlights. Target practices with service ammunition will be fired at sleeve targets towed by high speed planes of the army air service during the month of July.

On July 3rd a group of 145 Reserve Officers from the 61st, 526th, 531st 532nd, 945th and 951st Coast Artillery Regiments reported for two weeks training. These officers from the middle west are all assigned to anti-aircraft units. Recent developments abroad have indicated that anti-aircraft artillery will play an increasingly important role in any future emergency, and reserve officers assigned to anti-aircraft regiments are making every effort to perfect themselves in the technique of firing the "sky guns."

During the period July 7th to August 5th approximately 1250 boys from Illinois and Wisconsin will assemble at Fort Sheridan for the 1938 Citizens Military Training camp. Young men who attend four summer camps and complete the course of instruction successfully are commissioned 2nd lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve Corps. In general the forenoons are devoted to military training, and the afternoons to athletics, recreation, and such additional military work as may be necessary for candidates of the higher courses.

The candidates will be divided into six rifle companies of approximately 200 each, and one machine gun company with a strength of 100. Upon their arrival in camp each candidate is given a strict physical examination by United States Army surgeons to determine their fitness. Any boy who shows the slightest sign of any contagious sickness is segregated without delay. Candidates whose physical condition does not meet the exacting standards required are rejected, and returned to their homes. Instruction during the 1938 camp will be conducted under the supervision of Colonel C. A. Lewis, Infantry, assisted by Major G. S. Clarke, Infantry, as adjutant, and Captain A. F. White, Infantry, handling the plans and training.

The direct instruction of CMTC candidates will be the responsibility of Reserve Officers assigned to four infantry regiments which will be ordered to Fort Sheridan for that purpose. Upon their arrival each candidate takes a shower, is physically examined, fitted with clothing, and assigned to his company where he is issued such additional equipment as he will need during the camp. His civilian clothing is stored, and, within 24 hours of his arrival in camp, a letter is sent to his parents notifying them of his arrival. This procedure is known as processing, and will be handled by reserve officers of the 51st Infantry assisted by officers of the 1630th and 1631st Replacement Centers. The 51st Infantry is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel H. E. Ihlenfeld, Infantry Reserve. Most of the officers live in the vicinity of Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

With the completion of processing, the training of candidates will be taken up by the 420th Infantry, under the command of Major H. H. McIntyre, Infantry Reserve. This regiment has two battalions located at Rockford, and one battalion at Quincy, Ill. Ten officers of the 325th Military Police Battalion will assist in the training.

In addition to the training of CMTC candidates, the latter part of July will witness the training of the 343rd Infantry. This regiment is composed of reserve officers from the vicinity of Peoria and Galesburg, Ill., and is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel A. O. Brown, Infantry Reserve. It arrives at Fort Sheridan on July 17th. On the same day 110 officers of the Coast Artillery Reserve from the 5th Corps Area will arrive to conduct anti-aircraft training for two weeks, followed by 264 reserve officers from Coast Artillery Anti-aircraft units from 7th Corps Area states of Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Nebraska, and North Dakota. It is necessary to bring these officers from such great distances because Fort Sheridan is the only army post in the middle west having the necessary facilities and equipment assigned to the regular army troops of the 61st Coast Artillery (AA).

Every effort has been made to insure the health of candidates and officers. Tents, mess halls, kitchens and equipment have been renovated and placed in first class condition, and recreational facilities provided in order that all may be comfortable and happy while in camp at Fort Sheridan.

Major, Coast Artillery Corps
Publicity Officer.

"Joy of Living" at Deerpath Theatre

"Joy of Living," "The Lone Wolf in Paris," and "Cocoanut Grove" playing at the Deerpath theatre this week.

"Joy of Living" comes to the Deerpath Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The family vs. romance problem forms the hilarious basis of the story, which is enlivened with catchy Jerome Kern tunes and a spectacular dance routine. Irene Dunne and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. have the leading roles supported by Alice Brady, Guy Kibbee, Jean Dixon, Eric Blore and Lucille Ball. Bringing to the screen one of the gayest and most exciting romantic comedies of the year, "The Lone Wolf in Paris" with its colorful background of continental intrigue, proves an ideal vehicle for the charm of Francis Lederer and the beauty of Frances Drake. In this sophisticated adventure story, playing at the Deerpath Saturday, Lederer is offered a role that fits him like the proverbial glove, as he brings to life Louis Joseph Vance's fame gentleman crook most successfully.

The world's most famous nightclub is brought to the screen for the first time in "Cocoanut Grove," the new film coming to the Deerpath

Sunday for a four day run. Distinctly new type of film fun is presented in this gay romance that revolves about the trials, tribulations and final success of an unknown swing band trying to break into the actual Cocoanut Grove, mecca of all young band leaders. Fred MacMurray heads a large cast of tried and proven favorites that include Harriet Hilliard, the radio thrush, as his romantic lead, Ben Blue, the Yacht Club Boys, Rufe Davis, Harry Owens and his Royal Hawaiian orchestra, Billy Lee and Dorothy Howe.
