Highland Park Is Center Of County Gambling Trials

Highland Park became the center of activity over the week end when raiding forces secretly obtained warrants sworn to by Douglas Warner of Zion City from Justice of the Peace Henry Hanson of this city.

A series of sensational raids were made Saturday and Sunday on Lake county resorts operating slot machines. In all, 243 raids were made at roadhouses, saloons and night clubs, accused of having horse race betting paraphernalia and other gambling devices.

According to Amanda Herrick, president of the Waukegan unit of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, plans for raids had been made over a period of months. The drive was backed by church groups and prominent citizens in Waukegan, Highland Park and other parts of Lake county.

Feeling against States Attorney Mason was voiced yesterday by the contenders who intimated a possible interest in gambling on the part of Mason and other county officers.

All of the 243 cases are being tried this week in night sessions before Magistrate Hansen in Deerfield Township Town Hall. Slot machines which were seized in the raid were brought to Highland Park for storage in warehouses.

No Action Taken On Dump Proposition; Committee Chosen

The question as to whether Denzel's pond should be used by the City of Highland Park for a city refuse disposal is still under discussion, following a protest meeting held Monday evening at the City Hall. One hundred and fifty of the two hundred and thirteen citizens who signed a petition protesting the proposition attended the meeting. They were largely members of the Briergate Community club, a group of property owners residing in Highland Park Gardens and Sherwood Forest subdivision.

After several hours of discussion it was suggested that a committee of three be appointed, who in turn would each choose two other members who would confer with the city officials at a future date. The plan was approved and Mayor William Dooley appointed Milton J. Hardacre to represent the south section, John Oliver, the north section, and John Munro the west section of Highland Park. These men will now choose two members each to represent the city at large. The date for the meeting with the city council to iron out the proposition or to decide on another site for the much needed dump, has not been announced.

The present incinerator was built in 1918 and was of the Dutch oven type of burner, equipped to handle only eight tons of refuse. Five acres of ground adjoins the plant. In 1924 and in 1927 the incinerator underwent repairs, but the plant is inadequate to handle the increased amount due to the rapid growth of Highland Park's population.

The cost of a new burner would run between $40,000 and $50,000, and at the present time the city is not financially able to finance the new equipment. Using the Denzel pond to dispose of refuse is a temporary measure which the city planned to take, until such time as sufficient funds could be had to enlarge the incinerator.

John Munro, spokesman for the Briergate Community Club group, suggested several ways by which the city might secure the necessary capital to handle the situation. He stated that adjoining north shore towns had better facilities than our own; that the cost to residents in some towns was as little as 50c a month, while others operated without a fee for garbage disposal, while in Highland Park, home owners are required to pay considerably more.

It is believed by this group, that in as much as government funds are available, Highland Park should make some effort to secure the amount necessary to build a new incinerator, which will take care of the needs of the town. They oppose a "city dump" on the grounds that it is unsanitary, unhealthy, and is a detriment to properties within the city limits.

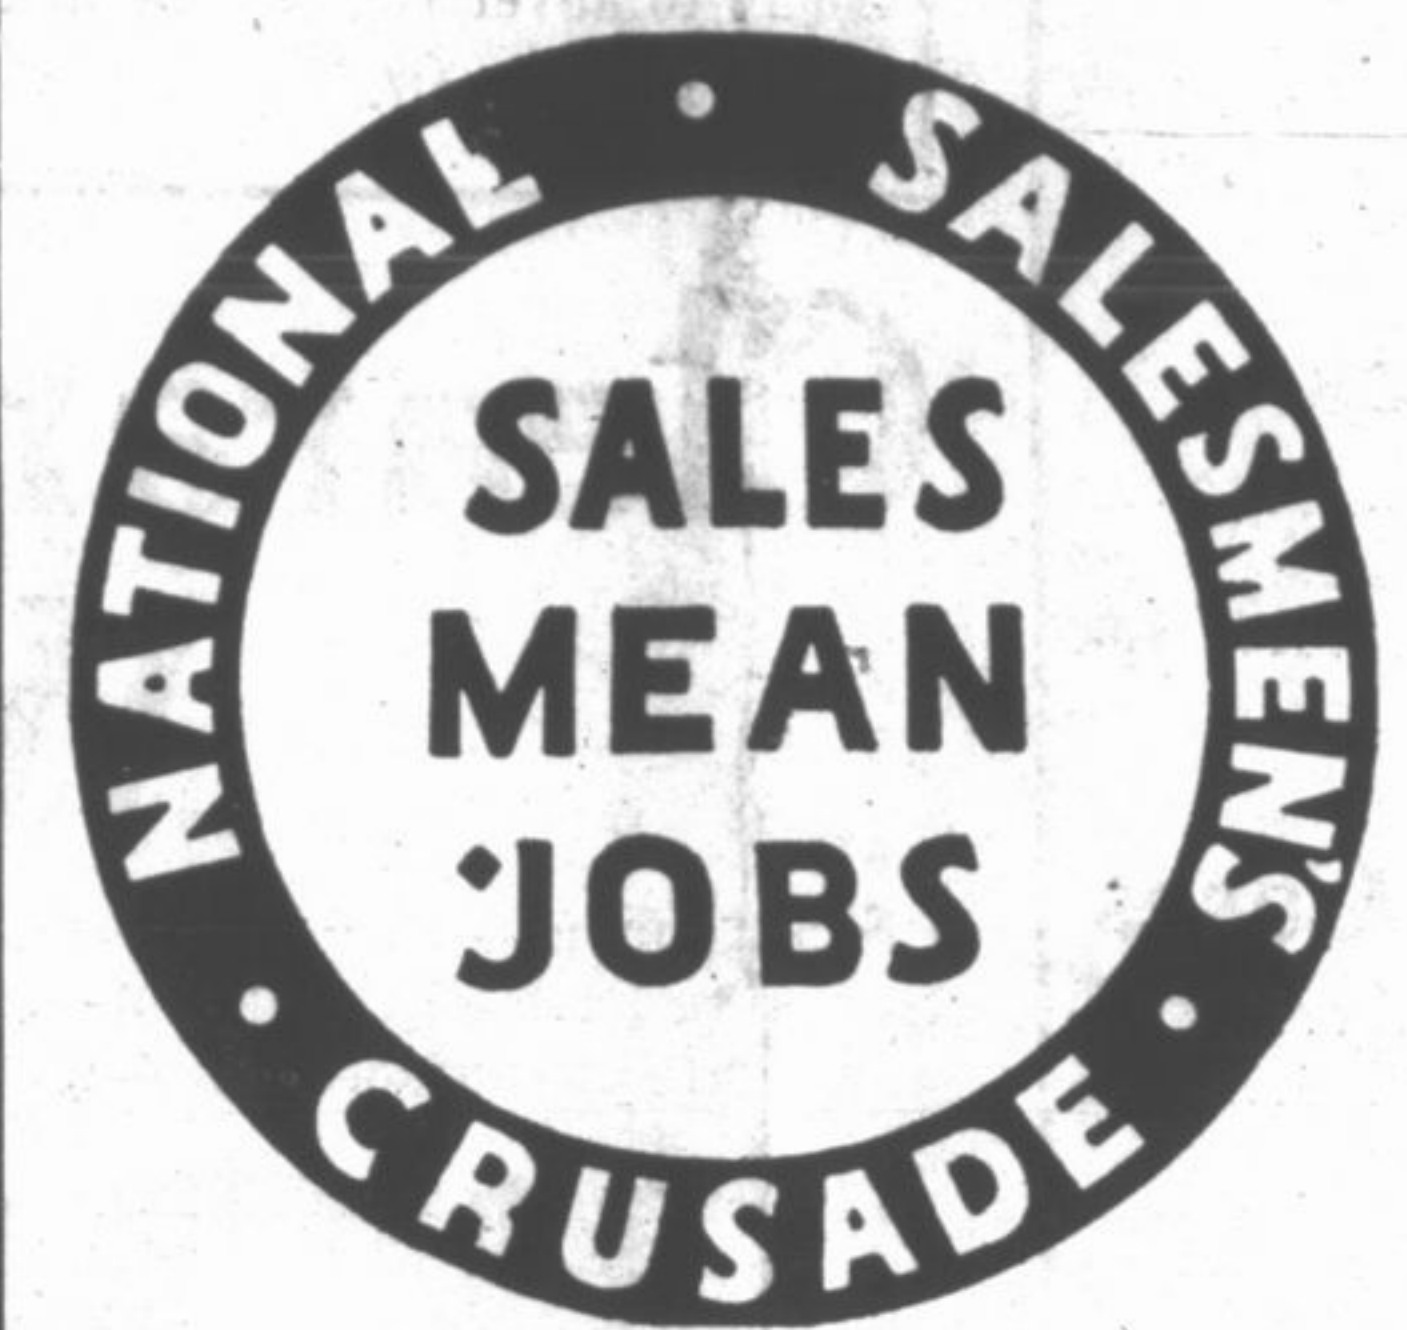

"Test Pilot" Four Star Picture On Alcyon Screen

Joe Penner, top-notch funster of radio and screen, will be on the double-feature program at the Alcyon theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week in the picture, "Go Chase Yourself," in which you will find a series of exciting and side-splitting situations.

On the same program is the film "Beloved Brat," a story of a willful, spoiled, pestiferous little brat—played by Bonita Granville, of course—who is finally transformed into a sweet lovable child with the aid of Dolores Costello. Miss Costello's return to the screen is warmly welcomed by all movie-goers. The picture deals straightforwardly with a problem that is close to the hearts and minds of all of us.

Spectacular fling, four stellar players and a four-star story provide startling entertainment. In "Test Pilot," most authentic aviation picture yet produced, which will be presented at the Alcyon for five days starting next Sunday, July 17. The story is that of a test pilot, played by Clark Gable. Without varying from actual experience, it tells exactly how one of these daredevils lives, not sparing the man, but withal showing that he is human. Gable handles his part superbly, returning to the No. 1 star of the world. Myrna Loy, as an unsophisticated yet brilliant country girl, is the central figure of an unusual triangle. Spencer Tracy, as Gable's bosom pal and severest critic, has another powerful and dramatic role. Lionel Barrymore, here given his biggest role in years, once again proves an artist who has made screen history.

FLAGS OF AMERICA

The Highland Park Public Library has an exhibit of American flags. These flags, made by the North Shore chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, were loaned to the library for this exhibit.

The flags are arranged in historical order beginning with the Flag of Columbus, which has a plain white background with the letters "F" and "Y" on it; Next the flags of Spain and France as they were planted on the shore of America; Then the flags of the British Colonies—Cabot, St. Andrew, and the King's Colors. These are followed by a group of North American Colony flags, which include the White Pine Tree Flag and the Red Pine Tree Flag. Then begin the series which were the beginning of our present United States Flag.—The Betsy Ross Flag with thirteen stripes of red and white and thirteen stars on a blue field, the Star Spangled Banner or sometimes called the Fort Henry Flag, followed by the Confederate Flag, with three stripes of red and white and seven stars on a blue field, and finally our present flag.

You will enjoy seeing this exhibit and finding out more about each flag.

Highland Park Merchants Open National Salesmen's Crusade

The National Salesman's crusade started off with a bang in Highland Park Tuesday morning, following a breakfast at the "Twig 'n Thistle". Seventy-five members of the local Chamber of Commerce, their employees and salesmen attended the meeting.

Mr. Wm. Godfrey, sales manager of the Nash Kelvinator, crusade used as a slogan for the campaign "Sales Mean Jobs." Several Highland Park business men who had attended similar meetings in other cities, spoke briefly giving their views on the crusade and urged all Highland Park merchants to enter into the spirit of the campaign with a view to improving conditions locally.

Not only is it entirely up to the merchants of this nation to try to meet the public's demands, but it is also up to the citizens of this country to help to bring the nation out of a crisis.

The idea for the National Salesmen's crusade grew out of five simple facts, which are as follows:

1. Unemployment is a major national problem. The purchasing power of every family in the nation is influenced directly or indirectly by the purchasing power of every other family. The success of any manufacturer or any industry is directly or indirectly dependent upon the success of other manufacturers or other industries.

2. Most families still have the ability to buy, even though the purchasing power of many is either impaired or non-existent. It is true that millions of our citizens are unemployed, but it also is true that many other millions are at work.

3. If sufficient quantities of the products of our farms and our factories can be sold to those who are at work, the necessity for new production will create employment—and, consequently, purchasing power—for those now without jobs.

4. The key position is occupied by the salesmen of America, because not only is it they who can seek out all possible buyers, but, also, it is they who can stimulate the desires of those buyers to a point at which such desires outweigh the fears that have been keeping them from purchasing.

The National Salesmen's Crusade

grew out of these five basic truths. All five may be expressed in the simple phrase, "Sales Mean Jobs." Conversely, "Jobs Mean Sales," because people purchase only when they have purchasing power. When sales are stimulated, the way is open for stimulated purchasing power, which in turn opens the way for more sales.

No previous attempts to promote business recovery have placed the emphasis upon the American salesman. His tremendous power to create employment has gone unused in times of stress. The national need for his services never has been greater than it is today. Valuable help can come from our financiers, our statesmen, our individual industrial leaders. But the real leadership—the greatest potential source of power to stimulate business—lies in the collective action of the hundreds of thousands of men and women who sell. It is this power that the National Salesmen's Crusade proposes to put to use.

A Plan of Action

That is the first fundamental behind the National Salesmen's Crusade—recognition of the simple fact that business recovery can come from more sales, and that more sales depend upon the efforts of the people in the selling profession.

Could a plan of action be built upon this idea? The sponsors of the National Salesmen's Crusade believed one could be.

Could all types of selling people be sufficiently inspired to exert greater effort than they ever exerted before in a period of business recession? The sponsors of the National Salesmen's Crusade believed there could be.

Was there business available—more business than anyone realized? The sponsors of the National Salesmen's Crusade believed there was.

Would the public cooperate? The sponsors of the National Salesmen's Crusade believed it would.

The purchasing power of Highland Park can help in this campaign. Buy in Highland Park, and help your local salesmen and merchants to aid this national event. Every dollar spent here will create business here or elsewhere which will help to reopen factories putting men to work. Putting men to work stabilizes business, and will soon bring the nation back to a sound basis again. Get behind your business men. Help them to bring this country out of this recession. The National Salesmen's crusade has started in Highland Park, and it is up to every business man, merchant and resident to see that it is successful in this city.

Legion Carnival Closes Tonight After Successful 3 Day Run

The annual carnival of Dumaresq Spencer Post of the American Legion, which opened Tuesday evening in Sunset Park, was very well patronized (according to Commander Heinrichs of the local post. The carnival will continue this evening (Thursday) ending at midnight.

An added feature of this year's affair is a new ride, "chairplane" which is attracting large crowds of merry makers.

A registration booth with over two hundred prizes ranging from a finger wave to a ton of coal donated by the local merchants, as well as several cash prizes is featured each evening. Twenty-seven prizes went to registrants the first evening of the affair.

Dancing to swing music, of some of the most renowned bands in the country, attracts lovers of dancing each evening.

As a finale to the three day event, a Plymouth car will be given away this evening together with many other useful prizes.

E. Moldaner Attends N. Y. Fur Style Show

Ernest Moldaner, member of the firm of Moldaner and Humer, furriers, attended the New York Fur manufacturers style show held early this week at the Palmer House in Chicago. Six hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of furs were displayed with Persian lamb as the leader. Styles have more fullness and are considerably shorter. Mr. Moldaner believes that now is the time for local patrons to become fur minded. He is prepared to offer many valuable suggestions for alterations on those out-moded coats, and perhaps a new coat.

Farley To Seek Postal Projects For Lake County

Joseph F. Elward secured a definite commitment from Postmaster General James A. Farley that the new program of post office buildings to be erected by the postoffice department would include Lake County, Illinois.

A government announcement recently of new postal projects committed Lake county, and during Postmaster-General Farley's trip through Lake county last Friday, Elward rode in from Waukegan to Chicago with the head of the postal service, and during the trip pointed out to Farley the need for additional post office facilities for certain communities in the county so as to improve the service for the people.

It was during this trip, and at the request of Elward, that Farley promised to make every effort to secure additional postal facilities for the residents of Lake county. Farley stated that Highland Park, Illinois, would be checked first for proposed post office building as present facilities in that community are hampered because of lack of space.
