Chicago Woman Is Hurt in Collision of Cars Saturday

A collision between the cars of Robert Golder, 43, of the Picadilly hotel, 53rd and Blackstone avenue, Chicago and C. Hansen, 27, of 1423 Farragut avenue, Chicago, occurred at Pleasant and Washington streets last Saturday morning at 1:45. Mrs. Hansen received cuts and bruises. Golder was traveling south on Pleasant and Hansen west on Washington. Mrs. Hansen was cut and bruised on the legs, head and the left elbow. She was treated by Dr. Grady at the Highland Park hospital where she remained that night. Both cars were badly damaged.

Cow Brokerages Flourished During 1840-1860 in Illinois

Operating cow brokerages was a profitable business in central and northern Illinois between 1840 and 1860. Newspaper files consulted by research workers on W.P.A.'s Federal Writer's Project carry occasional stories concerning persons who contracted with residents of Chicago, Springfield, Peoria and other cities and towns in the State, to furnish them with good milk cows.

Brokers would scour the counties adjoining the area in which they worked for the required number and breed of cows. These cows would be collected at some central place and then driven by herds into the city for which the broker had contracts.

Poor Time for Nudism Sonny sat on the lower steps, his face resting in his two chubby hands.

"What's the matter, Sonny?" "Nothin'—just thinkin'." "What about?" "Thinkin' how dumb these are—put em on in summer."

Elmwood Immortalizes Illinois Pioneers

The Illinois pioneer family is immortalized in a great bronze monument at Elmwood, Peoria county. It is the work of the late Lorado Taft, renowned sculptor, whose parents were early settlers there, research workers of the Federal Writers' Project, W. P. A., have learned. The statutory group called "The Pioneers" was dedicated to their memory, May 27, 1928.

Ten feet tall, on a four-ton granite base, the heroic size figures depict the ruggedness of early Illinois settlers who, according to the inscription, "Bridged the Streams, Subdued the Soil, Founded a State." A man, musket in hand, is represented embracing his wife and child; and a dog, alert for approaching danger, crouches at his feet.

Chamlee, Oldberg, Van Hoogstraten On Ravinia Program

Mario Chamlee, Arne Oldberg, and William Van Hoogstraten, three well known musicians, are scheduled to appear on this week's program of the Ravinia Festival. All three are familiar to concert patrons, as they are no newcomers to the Park. Chamlee gained fame during his association with the Ravinia Opera a few years ago, while the latter two appeared at Ravinia last year.

Chamlee, operatic tenor, will sing two arias from operas in which he has appeared. His repertoire from Wagner's "Lohengrin, and "Ah, Fuyez, Douce Image," from Massenet's "Manon," Thursday evening.

Oldberg, well known composer and professor of composition at Northwestern University School of Music, will hear the first performance of his composition, "Fantasia," conducted by Van Hoogstraten Friday evening. "Fantasia" was composed as a commissioned work by the Festival Committee. After Friday's concert Oldberg will return to Los Angeles to continue work on a new symphony.

Van Hoogstraten, Dutch conductor of international reputation, will make the first of his four appearances at Ravinia Thursday evening. He will also conduct Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon. Following his Ravinia engagement, the conductor will enter upon his eighteenth consecutive season at the Lewisohn Stadium in New York.
