RIGHTEOUSNESS EXALTS A NATION by RAYMOND PITCAIRN

Righteousness exalteth a nation.
This is one of the oldest of proverbs: so old, in fact, that to many men today, whole nations seem to have forgotten it. The nations seem to have forgotten, too, that comforting promise from the same fount of wisdom: "The work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance forever."
That, too is a proved and ancient verity.
But these, of course, are modern times. The old, old knowledge is out-moded. Yet nations, as well as men, would do well to pause in the rush and whirl of present-day ambitions and ponder the ancient truths anew.
Nations, as well as men, would do well to consider again the recorded wisdom which has guided so many generations of our forebears.
Nations, as well as men, might measure again the power of truth against false and bombastic phrases, the value of directness and simplicity against shrewdness and evasion.
Nations, as well as men, might find in the deeper wisdom of the heart the solution of those problems which today seem so hopelessly to frustrate the mind.
In our own nation, great leaders have acknowledged their reliance on this ancient wisdom.
"My principle is to do whatever is right," was Thomas Jefferson's own summation of that guidance.
"With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right," was the expression of Lincoln's approach to one of the most serious internal problems in our history.
It is in this spirit that humanity hopes the leaders of the nations may today approach their problems—both within and without their borders.
Clad again in the "armor of righteousness" their strength should be great.

Pictures Tornado Effect In Letter To Parents Here

were not all just flat as in some places, along the roads where the wind had a path the most damage was done.
The houses had suffered considerably, here a porch was gone, there a garage flattened, but the big thing that was picked on was the roof. Almost all had some shingles missing and some had pieces blown off the corners or the gables. It looked as if the wind had a sweet tooth and just ate the frosting.
And as if that was not enough, trees had to fall on houses and mash in roofs. In New London one house showed clearly the force of the wind. A tree falling from straight up would gather a great deal of momentum, by falling about ten degrees over or about 25 feet it would not have so much, especially since its roots would object for that distance. Yet one tree that only leaned about 25 feet had crashed into the corner of a house, and completely wrecked the outer wall, so that the roof was off and the interior of the room was open to the elements, and practically filled with the tree. The wind must have been strong to get the tree going that hard in that short distance.
All along the road where trees were not down, branches were whipped off, making little white wounds visible all thru the trees, as if they had indiscriminately painted some of the nails on their bony fingers white. Silos were just un-wound and plastered up against their adjacent barns.
Providence was not the mess we expected. We saw where the water had come up and ruined show windows but evidently there was not an awful lot of mud or sand in it for the streets were clean when we got there. Lots of big plate glass windows were gone.

Some trees have been uprooted here, but that's about all.
I saw one brick building in Providence that had been badly hit. Strangely enough the roof was on and intact except for the chimneys but the walls immediately below the eaves were missing. All that held the roof was a few steel uprights at the corners.
So long and affectionately,
"WILLY."
Deerpath Theatre Presents "The Count Of Monte Cristo"
"The Count of Monte Cristo" starring Robert Donat and Elissa Landi in the enchantment picture of the year. The thrilling story of a good-bye kiss that kept the flame of hope burning bright for twenty years! Fine, great dramatic situations interspersed with hilarious comedy moments march grandly across the screen in "A Letter of Introduction," which is being presented Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds and George Murphy provide the drama. The comedy is excellently taken care of by that remarkable pair, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy.
"The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," starring Edward G. Robinson, and adopted from the Barre Lynden stage play which scored a great hit both in New York and London, will be shown at the Deerpath Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. The bizarre, exciting and highly amusing story centers absorbingly around Dr. Clitterhouse, Robinson's greatest screen role.

Offer Proposal To End Long Strike On N. S. Line Oct. 1st

the North Shore Line, has offered a plan for ending the strike on the railroad and restoring service at 1 a. m. October 1.
A letter has been mailed to all operating employees of the line, enclosing a card to be signed, expressing his approval or disapproval of the plan involved.
The main proposal offered by Col. Sprague was that the men should return to work at the time set and that the company would pay them as much as possible from the immediate revenues of operation, pending the completion of negotiations now in progress toward a new contract.

It was understood that in the event of the signing of a new contract the wages agreed upon in such contract probably would be made retroactive, although no definite promise to this effect was made.
If the Sprague plan is accepted, it is understood working conditions at the time of resumption will be the same as before the strike, which began August 15. All strikers, as far as operation permitted, would be reinstated. Meanwhile, negotiations for a contract would continue.
