FOSBENDER-JOHNSON MARRIAGE

At a very simple wedding for just the immediate families, Linnea Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson of Ironwood, Mich., and William Ross Fosbender, son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Fosbender, were united in marriage. The nuptials were read Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston.

MAJOR AND MRS. DRUM MOVING TO NEW YORK

For the 13th time since the World War Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Drum are moving, this time to Governors Island, N. Y., where Maj. Gen. Drum will be in command of the 2d Corps Area. Between now and the first of November the Fort Sheridan colony is entertaining for them at a series of farewell parties—mostly informal because Gen. Drum will be away so much of the time on inspection tours.

Last Saturday night, however, the post's autumn social season opened with a "hop" being given in honor of the Drums and of Brig. Gen. Karl A. Truesdell and Mrs. Truesdell. The dance and the reception preceding it were an official welcome for Gen. and Mrs. Truesdell. Hosts were the officers of Fort Sheridan and their wives.

Gen. and Mrs. Drum also will be guests of honor at a tea dance the officers at headquarters and their wives are planning. The date for that party has not yet been set. The Drums and their daughter, Anna Carroll, have been at Fort Sheridan just a year, having come here from Hawaii. They have lived in New York before, but never at the post on Governors Island.

PROFESSIONAL DISTRESS

NERVE STRAIN—MENTAL ANGUISH

Doctors and their social duties sometimes have a hard time making connections, and often are the despair of their family and friends.

It may not be generally thought that the modern Doctor takes the case of the patient as much to heart as the old family physician, but those who live close to Doctors will tell you a different story. The Physician who tries to divert his mind, or fulfill social obligations, with a seriously ill patient in his thoughts, is a very absent-minded theatre companion or bridge partner.

The Doctor expecting a momentary summons, is not free from mental strain or wakeful nights. When he finds the case beyond human or scientific help, only the immediate family grieves more than the Doctor. Of course it is up to the Doctor not to show distress, and to keep nerve strain under leash, but modern Physicians take their profession seriously, and want just as sincerely to make and keep you well as the old-fashioned general practitioner.

Get acquainted with your Doctor.

Beautiful Rugs Deserve
the Very Best of Care

Color enhances the attractiveness of your home. Vivid hues in precious rugs and carpets soon become dingy and obscured, under the abuse of countless foot-falls. To lose the beauty of your rugs is to detract from the beauty of your home. Surely, rugs and carpets should be treated with consideration, and should receive frequent attention and care at the hands of experts, who are trained to care for beautiful rugs.
