LOUISE RUFFNER TO WED EASTERNER

Mrs. William Roger Ruffner of Dean avenue is again about to lose another daughter to Schenectady, N. Y., this time her youngest child, Louise Leonore, whose engagement to Edward Alfred Leach, son of Mrs. Alfred G. Leach of Wrentham, Mass., is being made known. Miss Ruffner expects to be married to Mr. Leach early next year and will go to Schenectady to make her home.

The two other daughters, Mrs. Harrison T. Todd (Marianna Ruffner) and Mrs. Edward B. Wintersteen (Virginia Ruffner) are neighbors in this New York town, and it was one of Miss Ruffner's frequent visits to her sisters that she and Mr. Leach met and became engaged. He has visited in Highland Park many times and has met many of Miss Ruffner's friends.

Miss Ruffner, who attended the North Shore Country Day school and Pine Manor, made her debut in 1931 at a garden tea at Ruffwood. Mr. Leach was graduated in 1927 from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

She is leaving soon for the east to visit her sisters and her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Ruffner, and no doubt will combine house hunting with a little whirl of parties.

NANCY CHALMERS MARRIED SATURDAY

At a very beautiful wedding Saturday evening, Miss Nancy Chalmers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chalmers, became the bride of Robert Clarkson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clarkson. Mrs. John Rink, soloist, accompanied by the organist, sang "Oh Promise Me" before the ceremony. The nuptials were read at 8 o'clock by the Rev. Louis W. Sherwin before the altar banked with palms and ferns at the Highland Park Presbyterian church. The bride was lovely in a gown of white taffeta with a long veil and carrying a bouquet of sweet peas, white roses and lillies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Ruth Chalmers, and the bridesmaids, the Misses Phyllis Udell, Doris Simpson, Katherine Kedzie and Marian Clarkson, were also gowned in white taffeta with hoop skirts, old fashioned lace mits and carried old fashioned bouquets. Their small hats were made of white taffeta with white ostrich plumes adorning the front. Little Margaret and Marlene May Murray in frocks of white taffeta and carrying little princess baskets of flower petals attended the bride as flower girls. Harold Clarkson of Grove City, Pa., attended his nephew as best man. The ushers were Messrs. Grant Benson, Adolph Norvik, Warren Dean and Frank Moran.

The reception was held at the Georgian hotel in Evanston with "The Townsman" furnishing music for dancing. After a two weeks honeymoon in the South and East the young couple will live in the Deibel apartments on S. First street.

An Autumn Nocturne
The golden harvest of the trees was on the ground
In preparation for the winter snows
Vermilion was the trimming of Miss Autumn's brush
And in the forest where the gentian grows
I wandered here and there, then laid me down to sleep.
But night time had a circus on that eve'
And in the sky a thousand brilliant gems of light
Produced designs of strange but lovely weave.
The maiden moon was dressed in fleecy silken gown—
Spun from the clouds that floated in the air—
She trailed her garments 'cross the magic paths of light
And touched me with her fingers soft and fair.
A million moonbeams bathed me as I tried to sleep
And fragrance from a field beyond a fence
Enhanced my nostrils as the rose of attar would
If sprinkled in the copse where brush is dense.
It seemed to linger on the ground so near my head
The while I gazed up at the spangled sky
That dripped with dew as honey drips upon the ground
From some gaunt tree that reaches up on high—
And then to my delight a cheerful cricket chirped
In harmony with kindly thoughts of mine
For this was fall, the glory time of all the year,
And far more precious than an ageing wine.
