Armistice Day 1938

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

At the Arc de Triomphe, in Paris, where rises the undying flame. . . .

At the Cenotaph in London, where black-veiled women weep. . . .

At the Memorial Amphitheatre, in Arlington, where sleeps our Unknown Soldier. . . .

At these and many other shrines sacred to the memory of hero dead, the world once pays reverent tribute.

For again we observe Armistice Day — this year on its twentieth anniversary. Again we honor the men who died in the hope that they were making the world a happier place in which to live.

To the young this celebration may mean much or little. But to millions of older men it brings each year more poignant emotions. Not only the recollections of gay and sturdy comrades who now sleep in honored graves. Not only disappointment because a brave new world which was to rise from the ashes of holocaust failed, somehow, to materialize. But deeper still, a sense of loss and disenchantment, when the high courage and the high idealism that marked those days is compared with the attitude of many of our leaders today.

Then the men in high places preached a united nation pressing onward to great and noble ends. Now, too many of them preach a message of group and class hatred.

Then we were told that it was the duty and the privilege of citizens loyally to aid and support their nation. Now, from countless political platforms we hear the reverse — that the people should expect the Nation to support them.

Then men strove for leadership on the basis of what they could do for America. Now, too many of them speak only of what they can get for their political supporters.

Undoubtedly these attitudes are temporary. Only the body of the Unknown Soldier is dead and buried. The spirit there represented is eternal. And if this year's celebration serves to bring that spirit more actively into our National life; if the observance recalls to men, in high place or low, the exaltation that comes with true co-operation toward a noble end — then Armistice Day will again have served its great and patriotic purpose.

Merchants Lose to Hawthorne A. C.

The Highland Park Merchants met their second defeat of the season last Sunday afternoon when they lost to the Hawthorne A. C. eleven by a 6 to 0 margin. The Merchants were severely handicapped by the absence of two of their star backs, namely Harris and Cortesi. It is reported that Harris will not be able to appear in the lineup during the remainder of the season due to after effects of an injury suffered in previous years of gridiron activity. Cortesi, who has also been on the injured list for the past week, will return to his field general berth in the forthcoming encounter with the Austin Blues next Sunday.

A muddy field slowed the local squad down in the Hawthorne game and consequently was partially responsible for the defeat of last Sunday, as the team has relied mainly on its speedy backs for scoring punch rather than power plays.

Although the Merchants were outplayed in the first half, they retaliated in the last period of play with a 75 yard march to their opponents 2 yard marker, but were unable to cross into the end zone. Incidentally, Hawthorne's touchdown early in the third quarter marked the first time in two years of campaigning that the Merchants have been scored against on a running play.

The contest scheduled for next Sunday afternoon between the home team and the Austin Blues of Chicago will get under way at 2:30 on the Sunset Park gridiron. A banner turnout is expected, as this game is a benefit for Bruno Giangiorgi, who suffered a broken collar bone and two fractured ribs in the Hawthorne contest.

A stage crew headed by Lawrence Wygal, Beverly Frisbie, Doris Kolas, Virginia Evans, and Dean Tjaden have provided the mechanical needs for the production under Mr. Robert Schneider, technical director, who has also designed and guided the construction of the settings.
