MISS JANE ASHMAN

The May 22 issue of News-Week contains a very fine article about a Deerfield girl, Miss Jane Ashman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Ashman of Deerfield road. The article tells of her recent radio script success, "Women in the Making of America," a thirteen week series of half-hour broadcasts over NBC blue network. Programs started on May 19 and will be continuous each Friday afternoon thereafter. Miss Ashman, who was 27 years old on Sunday, began her radio work four years ago for the University Broadcasting Council in Chicago when she wrote a series for Field Museum. In 1935 she turned out "Titans of Science." The following year she went to New York writing "Living History" and "Americans at Work." A few months ago she was assistant to Gilbert Selde. She capped all previous labors by collaborating in the writing of a program that was given the highest award by the Woman's National Radio Committee: "Americans All—Immigrants All." Miss Ashman's present series of broadcast scripts tell of scores of pioneer women who labored for freedom, going back to 1660 when Mary Dyer was hanged on Boston Commons and even earlier when Anne Hutchinson was driven from Boston for her Quaker beliefs. Susan B. Anthony and many other women return to life on the radio in "Women in the Making of America."
