

Inklings from Neighboring Towns

C. L. Taylor of 747 Lincoln avenue, Winnetka, assistant general solicitor of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, has been appointed commerce counsel of the road, effective September 1, according to announcement this week.

Mr. Taylor succeeds J. N. Davis, who has been appointed general attorney of the road at Seattle.

A native of Iowa, Mr. Taylor has been assistant general solicitor of the railroad since 1929. He attended the University of Iowa and was engaged in the practice of law at Cedar Rapids and Des Moines. In 1916, at the age of 26, he was appointed judge of the Superior court at Cedar Rapids, the youngest judge in the country at that time.

The Kraft-Phenix Cheese company has established a distribution plant in Libertyville upon the Ree garage site on Milwaukee avenue. A 10-year lease has been signed. A new building is now under construction for the housing of the Ree Motor Sales equipment.

Has anybody seen young Dick Lyons' power built model airplane? Lyons, together with seven of his plane minded pals, were playing with their planes a week ago Thursday. Dick's plane, which is equipped with a timer to shut off the motor after 20 seconds in the air, lost his plane when the timer failed to work after it had been sent into the air. The all gold colored plane with a 4-foot wing spread with the name Buccaneer 48 painted on its side was last seen heading toward South Milwaukee avenue near Half Day.

Glencoe's new Central school, now under construction, will be substantially completed by September 1, it was announced yesterday by John McFadden, executive assistant to Superintendent Paul J. Misner. Dedication of the edifice will be held on Sunday, September 10.

The building, which was begun a year ago, will cost $470,000, of which 45 per cent was in the form of a grant by the Public Works administration of the federal government.

Armstrong, Furst, and Tilton were the architects and Coath and Goss the general contractors.

Gladiolus, glad-i-o-li or perhaps just plain gladiola, thousands of them, are being displayed at Glad-Acre gardens on Belvidere road, west of Waukegan road, in Waukegan. H. G. Reed, who began raising gladioli in his back yard, rather as a hobby, now has developed one of the finest fields of blooms in this part of the country. There are more than 200,000 flowers representing more than 1,000 varieties of "glads" now on display, to which he is inviting interested spectators.

Ingenuity and mechanical skill to a high degree are represented in a model of the "City of Denver," crack train of the Union Pacific railway, now on display at the Marshall Field and company retail store in Chicago. The model was constructed by Harold J. Nilson, 1518 Central avenue, Wilmette, who began work on the model a couple of years ago as a hobby to keep his hands and mind busy in leisure hours. As the work progressed news of what he was doing reached Arthur G. Bloom of that city, passenger traffic agent for the Union Pacific in the Chicago area. He then brought it to the attention of Paul Beach, chief of the railroad's advertising department at Omaha who came to Wilmette some weeks ago for a personal inspection and being convinced of its value for publicity purposes, negotiated for its purchase.

The model consists of a power car and three passenger coaches. It is approximately 16 feet in length, the power car being five feet long. It operates electrically, the power car being equipped with a small motor. The entire train is painted in yellow and brown, the color scheme of the original "City of Denver."

The model was fashioned from a photograph of the actual train and every part of it, engine, wheels, etc., is in exact scale. An interesting fact is that all parts of the model were formed on a lathe of Mr. Nilson's own construction.

"Young Mr. Lincoln" at Deerpath Theatre

With Switzerland as its background, an Atlantic liner as its battleground, and hilarious laughter as its scatter-brained battle cry, "Bridal Suite," with Annabella and Robert Young, will invade the screen of the Deerpath theatre this coming Friday and Saturday, August 18 and 19. Walter Connolly, Reginald Owen, Gene Lockhart, Arthur Treacher and Billie Burke are among the chief supporting funmakers.

The thrilling, romantic, eventful youth of Abe Lincoln makes Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln" a complete screen surprise and excellent entertainment. Directed by John Ford, the film playing at the Deerpath theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, August 20, 21 and 22, features Henry Fonda in the title role, Alice Brady, Marjorie Weaver as Mary Todd, and Arleen Whelan.

A novel and striking new motion picture that embraces all the strata of society, from wealth to poverty and from the high social scale to the underworld is presented in "Tell No Tales," featuring Melynn Douglas and Louise Platt and playing Wednesday and Thursday, August 23 and 24, at the Deerpath theatre. Five separate stories with five separate groups of characters are told, each intensely dramatic and building to the climax of the bigger drama. The cast includes Gene Lockhart, Douglas Dumbrille, Florence George, Sara Haden and Oscar O'Shea.

David MacMillan Gives Five Factors for Successful Lawn

David MacMillan, formerly associated with the U. S. Department of Agriculture and now with Vaughn's of Chicago, was the principal speaker last week at the regular monthly meeting of the Men's Garden Club of Highland Park. His subject was "Lawns, Their Construction and Maintenance."

Mr. Larry Abt, chairman of the Program Committee, announced that the next meeting of the club would be held September 22, with Richardson Wright of New York City as the speaker. Mr. Wright is a nationally famous garden authority and his appearance in this city will be sponsored jointly by the Men's Garden Club and the North Shore Garden Club.

"Climate, kind of grass, soil, seed selection, the time and rate of seeding are the five important factors in the development of a successful lawn," said Mr. MacMillan. "And don't become discouraged," he said, "it takes at least five years to build a good permanent lawn."

"The Highland Park area has more than its share of hard clay soil," said Mr. MacMillan, "so a good subsoil base and adequate topping of black soil are very important." The black soil top should be from 8 in. to 12 in. in depth, according to Mr. MacMillan, and just because soil is black is not sufficient qualification, for any soil has very definite limits of plant food in it.

"For the clay soil in this area an excellent seed mixture is 3-5 Kentucky Blue Grass seed and 2-5 Velvet or Rhode Island bent grass, not creeping bent," Mr. MacMillan stated. "And the best of all times for seeding is the period of August 15 to October 1—providing we are not in the midst of a long drought or experiencing an unusually hot stretch of weather."

"A lawn should be fertilized at least twice a year," said Mr. MacMillan—"in the spring just before the grass starts and again around August."

Mr. MacMillan described the most effective fertilizers for use in this area, and concluded his talk with a detailed outline of the best method for ridding a lawn of weeds. At the end of the meeting, Mr. MacMillan answered a barrage of questions from the Garden Club members in attendance.

H. P. Wolves Will Meet Waukegan Here Friday Evening

Highland Park's much-improved Wolves' softball team will be host to the sensational Devenas Unknown ten of Waukegan at 9 p.m. Friday under the Sunset park floodlights.

The Unknowns were rained out here three weeks ago. Tonight (Thursday) the Wolves will motor to Antioch to meet the fast village aggregation under the mazdas.

Manager Bob Skidmore and Catcher Hugo Schneider, the leading hitter, returned from their Canadian vacation Sunday to learn that the Wolves in their absence had captured three games while losing but one.

Van's Sport Thrills WILLIAM TUNIS VAN KIRK

The Umpire's Decision
Away back in 1906, September 2nd to be exact, the Chicago White Sox were coming down the pennant trail neck-n-neck with the New York Highlanders. The Chicago fans were a tense crowd during the last days of the race. They filled the stands daily at Old Sox Park. They would sit breathlessly waiting for some sudden turn in the game to bring them shouting to their feet.

Into such a setting as this Detroit moved when they came to town to play a crucial series with the White Sox, and much to the surprise of Chicago fans, an umpire by the name of Evans, fresh from an embarrassing episode at Philadelphia due to inexperience, was called on to share the umpiring with Connolly.

With Big Ed Walsh on the mound for the Sox, and "Red" Donahue pitching for Detroit, the game had been a pitcher's contest from the first, and now, going into the ninth inning, the score was 1-1, and the way the pitchers were working, it might remain that way until the end of time. Walsh had struck out nine men, and only five scratch hits had been made on Donahue.

Payne, playing center field for Detroit, was first at bat, and he led off with a single. Coughlin fanned, and Schaefer was retired after a stinging blow to first. Payne, meanwhile, by very fast work on the bases, had managed to reach second. Then Schmidt smashed a hot one at Davis, the Sox shortstop. The ball was to hot for him to handle. While he pawed the ground desperately for the ball, Payne raced to third, and in his haste to catch Payne at third Davis threw the ball away, allowing Payne to score the winning run for Detroit. The next man was retired, and now Chicago faced her last turn at bat.

Davis, the first Sox batter, took advantage of the Detroit third baseman's position in back of third, and bunted. In the eyes of thousands of Sox fans, Davis beat the throw to first, but to their indignation, Evans called him out.

The cry that made the blood of umpires run cold in the early part of the century filled the air: "Kill the umpire!"

Evans, Connolly, Jones, Davis and others formed a circle around first base. Fists were raised and lowered. Tongues barked in the hot September sun.

"Look out! Pop bottles!" A shower of glass descended around first base. To restore order, the offending umpire was bundled off the field and hidden under the stands. Frenzied fans searched for him throughout the rest of the inning. The Sox were retired, losing the game by a score of 2-1.

Then a cordon of police moved across the infield toward the exit. Like a Greek phalanx in historic times they surrounded and protected Umpire Evans as he left the park. Even so, they were not entirely successful in warding off blows from behind, and once Officer Moran beat down a pop bottle with his club just before it hit Evans on the head.

The little group fought its way to an exit, and stopped a passing street car. Furious Chicago fans trailed behind, running at times to leap on the rear platform and further denounce the work of Umpire Evans, but the unfortunate official did manage to escape actual physical injury. Thus did an aspiring ball official escape the teeth of an angry mob in the colorful days of 1906.
