Record Christmas Business Reported at H.P. Post Office

Mailings of both Christmas parcels and holiday greeting cards at the local post office are exceeding all previous records, according to Postmaster Cobb. He states it is especially gratifying to note the much larger percentage of Christmas greetings mailed first class this year. Besides enabling the mailer to write a personal message, these first class greetings may be sealed and go much faster than the third class, unsealed ones. Using 2c and 3c stamps on their holiday greetings instead of 1 1/2c stamps greatly enhances the dignity and effect of their Christmas message. Incidentally, it is the main factor in the big increase in postal revenue at the Highland Park office this December over previous years. This will be helpful in obtaining an allotment for a new office here next year.

The Highland Park post office will continue to remain open evenings until the rush is over, as well as this Saturday afternoon. Saturday there will be complete delivery of all mail and parcels. Sunday, the 24th, and Christmas day the post office will be closed. Mails will arrive and leave on holiday schedule, with special delivery service as usual. On these two days, there will also be a clean-up delivery of all Christmas gift parcels which arrive Sunday and Christmas day.

cuts and were doing considerable damage to the road surfaces. The two bridges on these roads, he added, were not of heavy enough construction to withstand the terrific pounding they were now getting. He made the suggestion, in which the council concurred, that City Engineer Cole examine the bridges with the thought in mind of making a five ton weight limit on trucks using these crossings.

As prophesied in these columns last week, the council at Monday evening's session changed the city ordinance pertaining to opening and closing hours of amusement places to allow public bowling may be indulged in from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. on week days and from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Sundays. No objection to this action was raised from the floor of the council meeting so it may be assumed that the change was in accord with the majority of the community's wishes as the proposed action of the council was publicized a week ago.

Commissioner Swanson closed his report by requesting permission of the council to install overhanging lights on the Ravine drive bridge. He stated that no expense would be incurred by the city from this installation. Permission was granted by the council as requested.

At the close of the meeting, Mayor Ronan announced that due to the press of the holidays there would be no council meetings on the next two Mondays. Your reporter plans to use these columns next week in a discussion of the incinerator problem and what progress the committee in charge is making towards its ultimate solution. In the meantime he wishes to take this opportunity to wish the readers of THE HIGHLAND PARK PRESS a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Highwood Child Hurt When She Runs Into Side of Automobile

Delores Ugolini, aged 8, daughter of John Ugolini, Highwood city treasurer, was injured Tuesday afternoon when she ran into the side of an automobile.

The child had been visiting a young friend and was returning to her home, when the accident occurred. She was crossing the street at the intersection of Palmer and Highwood avenues when she ran into the front fender of a car driven by John Brash of 309 Oak Terrace avenue. Brash took the child to the Highland Park hospital where she was treated for a cut lip and several body bruises, later being returned to her home.

Burglarize 2 Homes in Highwood Tuesday

Two robberies were committed in the City of Highwood early Tuesday morning. A sum of money and a wrist watch were taken from the first home, while the intruder was frightened away from the second home.

The first robbery occurred sometime between 2 and 7 o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of John Lenzini, 308 Highwood avenue. Entrance to the home was gained through a back door. A bill fold was removed from Lenzini's trouser's pocket and the money removed and the balance of the contents strewn on the kitchen floor. Sixteen cents was taken from Mrs. Lenzini's purse and laid on the dresser, where a wrist watch was removed.

At 4:30, Philip Pasquesi, 329 Highwood avenue, who is a driver for a bakery concern, was dressing to make his regular route when he heard a noise in his dining room. Thinking it was his daughter who had been ill, he paid little attention until the door of his room started to open. He called to his daughter, frightening the burglar, who made a quick get-away, dropping his flash light in his escape. The Highwood police are now tracing the owner of the flash light.

flute; Newton Hoffman, oboe; James Krohn, Ross Harrington and Cody Pfanstiehl, violins; Davis Green and Gail Bray, basses; and Miss Marley, piano, have attended rehearsals during the fall. In a sense the orchestra is not new at all, but has grown out of a high school study class started by Mrs. George R. Jones several years ago in Highland Park, leading to a series of meetings on Sunday evenings in recent years in the home of Everett L. Millard, which have been attended by musicians from several North Shore towns.
