IN MEMORIAM

W. C. McKenzie

News of the death of W. C. Mc-Kenzie has deeply stirred thoughts and emotions of "old" Highland Parkers those who went to school to him when Highland Park was still rural-in the days of the unpaved street and wooden sidewalk, when the now idle fountain on Sheridan road was pouring out its refreshment for tired horses Then Lincoln school was a little hunched up frame building with thimble-shaped belfry on top. Here Mr. McKenzie reigned as schoolmaster supreme.

him, as I remember now. But we knew, in our hearts, that he was a rarely kind man, and a unique the U.S. Public Health Service. personality.

Though he must have been of average height we thought of him when he strolled between the rows of seats and squinted down at us from the towering region of his half-bald head. Me must have been comparatively young man, then. But we believed him very old, partly because we ourselves were children. Partly, too, because we vaguely realized he was a philosopherosophy and a rippling undercurrent of motherhood. of humor.

He loved to use the element of surprise in his discipline. When he would startle two whisperers by afternoon made favorable com- oil trucks which in recent months ment confessed to me directed from the Circuit Court of turning suddenly and throwing a ments. "I have eyes in the back of my head," he bragged, "just look up here and see," and he would point the hour of 9:30 o'clock A.M. of said day at to the place where his kinky ring of hair supposedly covered them

But his favorite method of dealing with culprits was to embarrass them. If he saw a boy and girl whispering together he would say very formally, "Now if Miss Soand-so would like to visit with Mr. So-and-so I would suggest that they sit together in the same seat." This, of course, would set the whole room to giggling and the offending pair to blushing. Needless to say he never had to enforce the suggestion.

However, If any one whisperer was too persistent he would offer her an arm, Lord Chesterfield style, and walk her down the aisle and out into the recitation room. There he bowed her graciously into solitary confinement.

His methods of teaching may have been old fashioned but the knowledge "stuck." The multiplication table was drilled into us daily. We never forgot it.

He gave us a real feeling for poetry, too. I can see now, when close my eyes, Kingsley's, "O Mary go and call the cattle home," written on the blackboard in his own clear handwriting. He had us mem-The Fifty-Second Annual Statement Ending orize this and many verses of like value that have enriched our lives.

In the middle of our games Mr. McKenzie, or "Mac" as we lov-1,731.50 ingly called him behind his back, surprised us all by climbing in at 184.18 the window with a big box of candy 12,078.65 under his arm.

He introduced the first Field Day at Lincoln school, and paid for the 33,547.50 candy and book prizes out of his own pocket.

The school was originally named the Lincoln Avenue school. It was Mr. McKenzie who suggested dropping the Avenue. He was a great admirer of Lincoln and wanted the 12.00 | "new" school dedicated to the Emancipator. (The new school was the square brick building with white columns that we now call the old 808.40 | school).

A long line of Spencers and Kopps, Schaufflers and Murphys learned the three "R's" under him, on Ridge road, which will be one of to say nothing of those of us who the finest on the North Shore when 848.31 came from smaller families.

The original Lincoln school house has been swept away without a trace remaining. Now the schoolmaster is gone, as well. But death is too static a thing to grip so active a personality. That personality follows and heartens us down the Rowena Bennett.
