Five Distinguished Artists Listed on Next Year's Series

Plans for the second season of Highland Park's North Shore Series include the appearance of five of the most noted attractions to be heard on the concert stage today. Heading the list of distinguished artists who will appear in the auditorium of the Highland Park High school will be Marian Anderson, the most famous of living contraltos, who will sing on October 27. Miss Anderson will be followed by the original Jaroff Don Cossack choir of 25 superb male voices, whose unique and colorful presentation of Russian melodies have thrilled audiences.

Levitzi, pianist, will appear as the third feature on the series on January 28.

On March 4th, the series will present Mischa Elman, who is universally considered to rank among the world's greatest exponents of the violin. The concluding recital will be on April 22 by Ezio Pinza, basso of the Metropolitan Opera company, who is familiar to countless middle-western opera-lovers through his brilliant operatic performances.

The sponsors of the series have announced that, in order to assure the success of this outstanding program, it will be necessary to have obtained 1,000 pledges for season subscriptions by June 1, 1940. All seats will be sold at one price, and will be reserved in the order in which requests are received. Those wishing to assure themselves of hearing the series are asked to send in reservations immediately to the North Shore Series, Box 584, Highland Park. The season subscription drive will close on June 1, and the series will be presented as announced if 1,000 season subscriptions have been obtained by that date.

Frank Buck Noted Explorer to Appear At Chicago Circus

There'll be a bit of Malaya transplanted in the Chicago Stadium for seventeen days beginning Friday, April 19. During that time the Stadium will present its second annual Greater Olympia Circus and one of the added attractions during the show will be the appearance of Frank Buck, noted wild animal collector, trapper, and explorer. In addition to the explorer himself, there will be a replica of one of his jungle camps used as a headquarters during his various expeditions, and also several hundred of the wild animals he has captured during his last trip to the Malayan jungles.

Last year Buck established his Jungleland at the New York World's Fair and it will be that camp that he's bringing to Chicago. It will be built of material imported from Malaya and consists of the usual Attap thatched roofing, bamboo supports, jungle grass and other tropical vegetation used by the natives for building purposes. All of the traps, nets, lures and other equipment used by Buck in capturing animals, reptiles and birds will be exhibited and demonstrated by Buck and his Malay helpers. He will have on display twenty different species of cat animals, bears, deers, several hundred monkeys of different sorts, elephants, a rhinoceros, and other small mammals. He will also have with him a huge python, other reptiles and many rare tropical birds.

The Buck exhibition will be free to all attending the circus.

Community Chest Has Information on War Relief Agencies

(Continued from Page 1) unscrupulous promoters, are launching fund-raising drives, asking for money in the name of whatever cause currently has the most popular appeal. Unfortunately, the names of prominent citizens on a board of directors, as experience has repeatedly evidenced, is not sufficient guarantee of an agency's reliability. The way for generous contributors to give with complete assurance is to ask for full information.

Highwood Scouts Win a Rating at Regional Contest

As a result of the Regional First Aid contest for Boy Scouts in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin one troop in the North Shore Area council earned the highest rating possible and another the next to the highest. Troop 37 of Highwood won an "A" rating and was one of the 29 teams which gained this rating. Troop 2 of Wilmette earned a "B" rating.

This contest was the largest ever held in this region for Boy Scouts and included 76 teams from the four states. There were a total of 608 scouts on the floor participating in the four problems of practical first aid. 152 men including the uniformed Red Cross First Aid Corps of Chicago acted as judges. The entire event was observed by approximately 1400 adults from the various states.

The two teams from the North Shore Area council earned the privilege of entering the regional meet as a result first of a council meet in which seven out of 18 teams won an "A" rating. Then a sectional meet was held in Evanston in which five of the teams were eliminated.

Members of the team from Troop 37 of Highwood of which Lloyd Brown is the scoutmaster included Jim Muzik, Evan Dever, Alex Haincheck, William Hamlin, and Frank Mordini. Everett Kennedy, Bob Brooks, Bill Steitz, and Charles Morrison were on the team from Troop 2 of Wilmette where Harold E. Spinney is the scoutmaster.

Spent millions, wed thrice — but was New York's Loneliest Woman." The tragic story of the disappointing life of the heiress who sought happiness in vain, despite her millions, and who died the other day with no loved ones at her side. "The Man Who Came To Dinner" Hailed As Laugh Maker

"The Man Who Came To Dinner," hailed by the critics as the funniest comedy in many years, will not be seen outside Chicago this season. It is now in its fifth month at the Harris theater, and it will doubtless remain there for many weeks to come. It is estimated that more than 160,000 persons have seen the play so far in Chicago alone. It is also on view in New York and San Francisco, in both of which cities it is playing to capacity.

No less than eleven popular stage attractions have come and gone in the Loop since "The Man Who Came To Dinner" took up its residence there; but this laugh riot by the authors of the memorable "You Can't Take It With You," has met and overcome all opposition, even though plays in competition to it starred such luminaries as John Barrymore, Helen Hayes, Raymond Massey, Paul Muni, and Katharine Cornell.

Featuring Clifton Webb in the role of "Sheridan Whiteside," (the brilliant, world-famous lecturer who is forced to remain in a small mid-western home due to slight accident, and whose presence straightway has the effect of a bomb bursting on the heads of an unsuspecting community), "The Man Who Came To Dinner" appeals to everyone. Critics have used such expressions as "Irresistibly funny," "screetchingly hilarious," "gay, giddy and delectable" and "roaringly successful" to describe its merry-making possibilities; and one New York reviewer went so far as to warn prospective customers that if they could not laugh at "The Man Who Came To Dinner" they had better see a doctor!
