study and research she published a book in 1929, the genealogy of her family, reaching back over 300 years. For this splendid achievement in January of this year, she was awarded a most significant honor, elected to membership—a Fellow of the Institute of American Genealogy and given a certificate of merit in recognition of her original research and contribution to the Archives of American Genealogy.

As a tribute to her work in the field of women's clubs she was recently advised that an acre of trees, one thousand to be exact, had been planted in her honor in Shawnee National Forest in cooperation with the United States Forest Service. Certainly few women have been thus recognized in this distinguished manner. But in addition to these tributes to her, are to be a gratitude, a love, a deep appreciation of her understanding helpfulness over difficult barriers, which may be found in the hearts of many men and women, who, as girls and boys were privileged to know her and call her friend. That loyalty and interest in the student will never fail, and is now being fanned by her eager participation in the experience and progress of her granddaughter, all she has left of her own immediate family, and who entered college this fall. Betty has a precious heritage of which she will be increasingly aware as time goes on, in this woman to whom Highland Park will always owe a debt of honor and gratitude.

of work would be given employment. The mayor agreed to give this plan a trial.

In his report Commissioner Swanson stated that a group of Central Avenue business men who had recently repaired their sidewalks and curbing in front of their stores were now anxious to go a step still further by installing new street lamps to replace the old ones now in operation. This group agreed to buy the lamps themselves but asked the council to pass on one type of lamp post so that future installations by other merchants would conform to one pattern. Commissioner Boves, seconded by Commissioner Sharp moved that the matter be deferred until a survey of the business districts lighting needs could be made and if possible permission obtained from all property owners in the area to put in new lights. The Highland Park Chamber of Commerce is backing the move to obtain the merchants agreement to this plan. Some decision on the matter is expected by next council meeting.

In order to save the taxpayers some $1200 to $1500 which would be the amount necessary to spend on putting the taxicab wrangle up to a public vote, the council voted to throw out the current taxi stand ordinance. A new ordinance calling for a stand on the Northwestern Railroad property west of the track, a lease for which was signed last week, and one other location will be voted upon on Monday evening. In taking this action, Mayor Ronan stated he believed the council was doing the right thing even though the petition submitted was not entirely valid. It will be interesting to see if the new ordinance retains the much disputed St. John Avenue location.

The lease between the city and the Northwestern Railroad calls for a strip of land running fifty feet on First Avenue and 70 feet on Central Avenue. Rental is to be at the rate of five dollars a year for five years.

Mayor Ronan announced to the council his appointment of Earl Gsell to the Civil Service Commission succeeding Charles R. Dennett.
