HIGHLAND PARK, ILLINOIS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1940

NUMBER 36

Administration By ELMORE M. MURPHY Comments

The audience and even the council itself attended Monday evening's session in body only. It being election eve all thoughts were turned towards the final appeals being made over the radio by the various confounding candidates. Practically the only ones in attendance when Mayor Ronan rapped for order were the council, the city employees and representatives of the press.

Discussion Monday evening was limited almost entirely to routine affairs to allow those present to get back home to their radios. Under petitions the request of the Highland Park hospital to vacate the property between its boundary and the property of the Exmoor Country club bobbed up again. It appears that another group of some 50-odd interested citizens are intent on keeping this request from being granted and so have petitioned the council to this effect. Upon the motion of Commissioner Swanson the petition was acknowledged and placed on file.

Rex Andrews and his police department came in for their share of praise in the mayor's report for the manner in which the community was policed on Halloween. The morning after that usually trying holiday dawned with no major and very few minor disturbances recorded. The police department with 21 men on the job covered the city like the proverbial blanket. The mayor in expressing his appreciation for this accomplishment echoed the thoughts of the entire community. It was only a year ago when vandalism to the tune of many hundreds of dollars was committed on Halloween. The mayor and the chief feel that not a little of the success accomplished was due to the campaign of education carried on by the department in the schools of the city prior to the holiday.

The police department came in for further commendation from the water department through the voice of its superintendent, George Prindle. It appears that the night before Halloween the gauges at the water plant recorded an unusual demand for water. Superintendent Prindle notified the police department and in a matter of minutes the trouble had been traced to open fire hydrants in the northwest part of town. Would-be jokesters in a misdirected spirit of fun had opened the hydrants. Chief Andrews returned the verbal bouquet to the water department by stating that the police department was no

Today, Highland Park High school celebrates its Golden Jubilee. Founded in 1890 as Deerfield Township High school, it became known as Deerfield-Shields High in 1907 when the District was enlarged to include Lake Forest. Shields Hall, pictured here, was built in 1900 serving as the first High school, until 1914 when additional buildings were erected.

Tribute Is Paid R. L. Sandwick for Long Service Here

At a time when the Highland Park High school is celebrating its 50th anniversary it seems fitting that Highland Parkers should pay a tribute to Richard L. Sandwick who, for 35 years, acted as principal of the school and formulated its educational policy.

Those of us who went to school to Mr. Sandwick were influenced in no small degree by the vigor of his personality. He was not only an executive superintendent but an educational philosopher as well. He felt that education should be more than empty training of the faculties. Instead of mental calisthenics in which values are determined by difficulty, instead of a vague aim called culture, instead of emphasis on knowledge alone, he conceived education as the progressive attainment of pragmatic values which further the well being of the individual and the community through the acquisition of knowledge, habits, skills, and appreciations.

This philosophy was presented to the State Conference of Secondary Schools at Urbana in 1919 and adopted as the "Illinois Educational Objectives."

Other educational ideas of Mr. Sandwick's have also been widely adopted. For example:

In 1907 he founded what is thought to be the first Student Council in American schools for student participation in student government.

In 1912 he founded the first system of teacher advisers for guidance of pupils, educational, vocational, and social.

In 1928 he founded the School Assembly Service, the aim of which is to supplement school work and enrich school life through occasional assembly programs given by outstanding inspirational speakers. It might well be mentioned here that Mr. Sandwick himself in his long period of service gave many inspirational speeches that his students have carried with them down the years, speeches that helped to mold their character and give them ethical impetus in their life work.

In 1925 Mr. Sandwick organized a course in building trades. Out of this course grew the house building projects so well known to Highland Parkers. There are not many communities that can brag of seven residences built by boys students of the local high school. The most pretentious of these residences sold for $16,500. Built also under this plan, for the school itself, is a field house and the recently completed Sandwick Hall.

In 1936-37 Mr. Sandwick visited experimental high schools from New York to Oakland. His notes on California's educational projects were given to students of education at the summer school of the University of Southern California in 1937.

In Stanford Mr. Sandwick won the first Carnot medal in extempore debate.

Feeling concerned over the continued growth of crime in the United States in spite of great expense in education, the indefatigable principal visited European schools in 1937, and in particular those of France to see whether the low and falling percent of delinquency was traceable in any degree to education. He has prepared a lecture on the subject which he is giving on all possible occasions believing that he must do his bit in this field. To this end he has retired from the superintendency and is now connected with the local high schools as educational consultant only.

The material advance of the High school has been in proportion to its spiritual development. Under Mr. Sandwick the buildings have

Drunken Soldier Steals New Car; Crashes Squad Car

Two Highland Park police officers were injured and their squad car badly damaged in a car collision at the intersection of Green Bay road and First street Thursday evening.

Corp. Arthur C. Brooks, 25, of Company B, 2nd Infantry, who had indulged in freely in Halloween revelry, stole a new 1941 car in Highland Park and was headed south on Green Bay road, when he collided with the officers' north bound car. Police Officer Rolland J. Demgen, the driver, was severely bruised, while his companion, Officer Michael Bonsmarte, strained his back when thrown out of the vehicle. Both cars were damaged considerably about the front end.

Brooks was charged with drunken driving.

Deep-Freeze, New Home Storage Unit Now on Display

An innovation in refrigeration, known as the Deep-Freeze, a zero cold locker box for the storage of frosted foods in the home, has just been perfected by Willard L. Morrison of Lake Forest. Its creation and operation has grown from Mr. Morrison's home laboratory to a 34,000 square foot manufacturing plant in North Chicago, owned by the Motor Products corporation of Detroit, Mich.

Mr. Morrison is a veteran automobile engineer, whose developments are found in the automobile, air conditioning and refrigeration fields.

For years engineers have been working to perfect an economic method of refrigeration. This new household utility promises to outstrip earlier household electrical conveniences in consumer demand—for none of its predecessors wrought a financial saving to the housewife as has Deep-Freeze.

A double walled cylinder of heavy steel serves both as a food box and as a cooling element. It has the capacity of a barrel and refrigerant is circulated in the space between the cylinder walls. This means that the entire interior usable space is surrounded by refrigerant with 24 square feet of primary freezing surface.

It has been estimated that savings of from $5 to $10 a month to the average family is quickly realized since ownership of the frosted food storage unit enables a user to buy foods in large quantities at effective savings.

Deep-Freeze will be demonstrated and further information may be obtained in the new Public Service office, which will be opened at 521 Central avenue, Friday.

Public Service Company In New Quarters

New display room to be opened to public Friday and Saturday, November 8 and 9

To provide enlarged, modern facilities for service to customers, the Public Service company will open its new Highland Park store at 521 Central Ave., with a special two-day celebration tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday, E. A. Menke, district superintendent, announced today.

"We feel that our new store will be a model of its kind," said the district superintendent. "Lighting fixtures, for example, are of the newest design planned to 'light condition' the unusual merchandise displays which are of the 'island' type instead of the conventional counter. The interior color scheme, using shades of pale green and white, will increase visibility and eye comfort. Our attractive, Indiana limestone store front will be flood-lighted in the modern manner.

"The lamp bulb service section will be stocked with the latest equipment to provide demonstrations and complete information on various size bulbs for the variety of home purposes. Our lamp department will have one of the finest lamp collections on the North Shore."

Highland Park firms figured prominently in the creation of the new Public Service store—W. D. Mann was the architect, Albert Olson was the general contractor and Robert Anspach, of H. and R. Anspach company, handled negotiations resulting in the new Central Ave. location.

The two-day event, tomorrow and Saturday, formally opening the 521 Central Ave. store, Mr. Menke said, will feature special demonstrations of new electric appliances and general 'open house' for visitors. Roses will be presented to lady guests and children attending will be given popular new Blondie games. The Public Service company extends an invitation to people of Highland Park and vicinity to visit the store anytime—especially the opening days.
