who claimed freedom from all restrictions.

The club day begins with the Collectors' Study Group meeting at 10:00 to hear Catherine Gordon Balmer talk on "English Porcelains and Figurines"; followed by luncheon at 12 a.m. Then, promptly at 12:45, Mrs. Robert M. Jeffries, chairman of the Drama department will review Emyln Williams' play, "The Corn Is Green." This is the season's first serious work of any stature and has been hailed as a masterpiece. The play is semi-biographical as Mr. Williams is the son of a Welch coal miner and himself worked in the mines. He worked his way through Oxford university on scholarships, then took up play writing and acting. Mrs. Jeffries saw the original cast of "The Corn Is Green" in London where it ran for 700 nights even after the blackout. Mr. Williams took the part of Morgan Evans in the play when it was presented in London. Ethel Barrymore is now being starred in the play in New York and says that she hopes to play in it until her death. Another successful play that Mr. Williams has written as well as acted in is "Night Must Fall." He is now serving in the Home Guards in London and his two children are on Robert Montgomery's estate in New York.

Mrs. Jeffries was one of the women who started the Drama department of the Highland Park Woman's club. She formerly appeared with the players of the Chicago College club was chairman of The Players of the Chicago Woman's club and has had at least one play accepted and produced. She has also done staff writing for "Townfolk" for several years.

After the lecture by Emily Taft Douglas which begins at 2 p.m. the tea will be in charge of Mrs. A. L. Berg. Those presiding at the tea tables will be Mrs. Adolph Lundin, Mrs. C. V. Nichols, Mrs. Carlton Harkness and Mrs. Earl W. Gsell.
