NATIONAL DEFENSE REGISTRATION OF VETS

52 Sign First Day. Register Thursday In Legion Headquarters

Registration of World War Veterans is being held at the American Legion Headquarters this evening, Thursday, Feb. 20. Any one who is unable to register tonight may register at 370 1/2 Central avenue, on Saturday, February 22, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Fifty-two veterans signed to the test registration held Monday, Feb. 17.

A total of 28 questions will be asked of all World War veterans registered Feb. 17-20-22, by the American Legion for possible national defense service, Commander Abernathy of the Dumaresq Spencer Post No. 145 of Highland Park, announced today.

One significant question will not be asked, however, Commander Abernathy said. That question, strange to say, is that of the registrant's age!

The American Legion does not want to know how old its members or other World War veterans are, who register, because there is no longer any restriction of age in a citizen's sharing in national defense! Thereby hangs a grim story.

Total war has virtually eliminated the factor of age in national defense! In the old days mostly the young and strong went forth to battle. Those days are gone forever. Wars today no longer are merely tests of strength between manpower and gunpower. They are today contests also between industrial and economic systems. Everybody is a part of these systems.

Likewise the battle front has vanished. Or rather it has spread to include every home in the nation. Bombs that rain down from the sky have no preference in objectives. They destroy anything that comes in their way. That has made every citizen, young or old, a combatant today.

In view of these facts, the American Legion has not included the age question in its national defense questionnaire. There will be no age restriction in any possible anticipated home service in defense of the nation. Every good citizen, young or old, must do his share in national defense. That is the new order in national emergencies today!

Commander Abernathy pointed out that men and women skilled in the trades now are in demand in national defense industries irrespective of age.

Factories and shops are reported to be hiring trained men today in some cases who are past 70 years and even older. This is especially true in machine, mechanical and metal trades.

The American Legion national defense questionnaire lists 67 special trades and vocations which each registrant is asked to check.
