PRESENT ILLUSTRATED TALK ON DESERT BIRDS

Earl G. Wright To Present Illustrated Lecture at Woman's Club

Mr. Earl G. Wright, curator of exhibits at the Chicago Academy of Sciences, will address the Highland Park Woman's club on Tuesday, March 4, at 2 p.m. The title of his talk, which will be illustrated with natural color motion pictures, is "Birds of the Arid Southwest."

Although one usually thinks of desert places as being very poorly populated with bird life, a surprising number of birds are to be found. The academy has been interested in the Southwest for many years and has sponsored several expeditions to Arizona. The pictures to be used in connection with this lecture were taken last Summer on the Offield-Beaty Arizona expedition of the Chicago Academy of Sciences. Mr. Wright was the official photographer and ornithologist for the expedition. Headquarters for the party were made at the Boyce Thompson Southwestern Arboretum at Superior, Arizona. This most interesting spot was made into a natural preserve for our desert flora through the generosity of Colonel William Boyce Thompson. In addition to native desert species, there are plants from similar areas in all parts of the world. The motion pictures will show, in addition to the birds, some of the blossoms of the desert plants, including the agave or century plant, and the night blooming cereus.

Mr. Wright is a well known artist and has won renown for his skill as a museum technician. The excellent habitat groups on display at the museum of natural history of the Chicago Academy of Sciences, located in Lincoln Park at Clark and Ogden Ave., are largely the products of his creative work. In addition to his artistic ability, Mr. Wright is a competent naturalist and experienced field worker. He is a member of the board of directors of both the Illinois Audobon society and Friends of Our Native Landscape, and president of the William I. Lyon Bird-banding council.

The Garden class of the Highland Park Woman's club, under the able direction of Mrs. O. Lawrence Olesen, will present this interesting program to the club. Hostesses for the day are Mrs. Mable R. Ehle, Mrs. Charles J. Haynes, Mrs. George L. Martin and Mrs. Harold Pfister.

At 10:00 in the morning the Collectors' Study group will present Mr. Kenneth Harris who will talk on "The Origin and Making of Weights." Luncheon will be followed by the meeting of the Drama department under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert M. Jeffries who will present Hope Summers of the Ev-

Lacking two days of being two years since the tragic death of Mr. John Gourley, prominent Highland Park lumberman, Ernest A. Garling, 65, 307 N. St. Johns avenue, met a similar fate early last Thursday morning. He was instantly killed by a North Western train as he was crossing Elm Place crossing, the same crossing, the same train and the same hour at which Mr. Gourley was killed.

At an inquest held Friday morning in Kelley's Funeral home, Engineer Edward Fleming of Chicago testified that this was the third accident caused in the past ten years at the Elm place crossing by a North Western train. His death was pronounced accidental.

Mr. Garling was born on Nov. 19, 1875, in Mecklenburg, Germany. His parents were Frederick and Marie Garling. When he was eight years of age his parents came to America, coming to Highland Park where he has resided since. For many years he was employed by Brand Bros., and just lately entered the painting contracting business.

On November 26, 1904, he was married to Miss Louise Arnsward. He was a charter member of the Redeemer Lutheran church, where funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon. Burial was in Mooney's cemetery.

Besides his wife, Mr. Garling is survived by six children: Mrs. Lydia Kruszka of Springfield; Mrs. Marion La Due, Mr. Irving Garling, Miss Edna Garling, and Mr. Robert Garling, all of Highland Park, and Mrs. Ruth Nelson of Pittsburgh, Pa.
