Daniel Cobb Is Given Ovation

Daniel Cobb received high praise for his work at the Highland Park concert Sunday afternoon. Cobb, a young man of 18 has a magnificent baritone voice. He was called back again and again to bow to his enthusiastic audience. He is a student at Northwestern University's school of music and also attends Opera school, where he is learning the baritone leads of the various operas. He is preparing for an operatic career, and if his Sunday concert is any indication of how good he really is, he should receive success at a very young age.

His program included "Danza, Danza, Fanciulla Gentile" and "Vergin, Tutto Amor," by Durante; "Vedo" by Verdi; Malliott's "The Lord's Prayer;" Air from "Comus" by Arne and the new "Ballad for Americans" by Latrouche and Earl Robinson.

He was accompanied at the piano by Miss Gladys Cunningham.

At the close of Mr. Cobb's recital, Mrs. Arthur Byfield lead the community singing.
