Brownie Scouts Visit Japanese Restaurant

The Brownie Scouts of Troop 22 of the Lincoln school under the leadership of Mrs. Malcolm Sproul and Mrs. Frederick Toof have been studying International Friendship for the past two years. Last year the children made dolls of asbestos, wire and glue and dressed them in the authentic costumes of the countries they had studied.

This year the leaders felt that more than ever the children should learn to understand the people of other nations so they have continued their study of foreign countries. Saturday they were the guests of the Shintani Japanese Restaurant in Chicago for luncheon. The children were intensely interested in the Japanese room, the native costumes and the unusual food cooked under their eyes at the table.

The Japanese Consul was invited to speak on Japan but was unable to attend so Miss Jean Shintani took the group to view the annual flower arrangement at the Japanese shop, Yamanaka's, on Michigan avenue. The priceless art objects and Japanese kimono's of the shop were also viewed by the group.

A social worker who is studying the adjustment of refugee children to our way of living was a guest at the luncheon to observe the reaction of American children to foreign customs and foods.

The children ended the day by seeing the drama of "Sleeping Beauty" which was exquisitely presented at the Goodman theatre.

Mothers who drove cars were Mrs. Cyrus Avery, Mrs. James Skidmore and Mrs. Bryan Perrault while children who attended were Karen Reinking, Barbara Blessing, Ruth Allen, Joan Avery, Carol Coppens, Jacquelin Ferrin, Martha Ann Fontaine, Emily Ann Perrault, Rose Marie Roscher, Adrienne Porges, Janet Skidmore, Patricia Sproul, Jean Washburn, Evelyn Wehrasyer and Theresa Vanoni.

The troop plans to continue these visits to foreign restaurants next year.
