be stressed, with some emphasis on the doings of our young folks; after all, ours is a home community with our children as the focal point. We'll endeavor to provide a paper so completely informative that our readers will tell their friends, "If you want the news, read The Press."

Staff Personnel Unchanged

Long familiar with people and events in Highland Park, Mrs. Florence W. Bartel continues as Managing Editor; Mrs. Bea Droste will keep on doing an interesting job as Society Editor. M. Warner Turriff, Advertising Manager, will continue to see to it that our advertisers are kept minutely posted on our growing number of subscribers. Warners' activities as Scout Master of Rotarian Troop 30 and as Master of Ceremonies at the Swing Club dances sponsored by the Highland Park Woman's club have taught him to move fast, so advertisers can count on speedy service. William H. Bartel and Forrest Rose in charge of the Press print shop, located at 17 N. Second St. continue to be responsible for the easy-to-read typography of The Press. Managing Editor Bartel and Superintendent Bartel continue as part owners. Our printing force turns out a neat performance on the job printing you entrust to us, either at the Editorial Offices at 538 Central avenue or at the plant.

So, with a bow to our readers, and the Highland Park business institutions whose advertisements are in a very real sense a part of our news, we enter this era of service.

Miss Margie Heath and Eugene Detmer were named queen and king of the annual junior senior prom, the Cotton Ball, held at the ballroom of the Woman's club Saturday night. Miss Heath, the daughter of Oliver W. Heath, 315 Laurel avenue, is social chairman of her class. The king is the son of the Howard F. Detmer's, 555 Bob O'-Link road. He is president of the junior class.

Mrs. R. MacPherson and children, Anne, Mary, Roderick and Monroe will leave Sunday for Phelps, Wis. to spend the summer.

Three Highland Park girls exhibited art work at the fourteenth annual exhibition of student art work in the Evanston Academy of Fine Arts, all this week. The exhibit will continue until Monday. The girls are: Phyllis Buller, Barbara Fields, and Lucy Jane Pope. Miss Margaret Bailey of Fort Sheridan, daughter of Major and Mrs. K. H. Bailey, also showed in the exhibit.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Hardacre spent the week-end with their son the Junior Hardacres.

"I do a lot of arranging these fine days . . ."

HAVE YOU ever thought how hard it would be to get a group of people together for a swim, or golf, or a picnic, if it weren't for the telephone? Take this party, for instance. Bob had the idea at noon on Saturday. Made a few calls. And presto! the whole crowd gathered for a fine afternoon of fun.

People take telephone service pretty much for granted—and that's the way it should be. But the 26,000 men and women of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company don't take it for granted. They try to keep every telephone in this area ready for instant action day and night. It's quite a job—but telephone people take pride in doing a good job. And that's one reason, probably, why the people here and in all America always have enjoyed the finest telephone service in the world. . . .
