Choir Boy Drowned On Sunday Outing

Ralph Walker, 12, son of Frank M. Walker, Chicago, drowned Saturday afternoon, when he along with other choir boys from St. Barnabas church, Cicero, were enjoying an outing at the Highwood beach. The drowning occurred near Moraine-on-the-Lake, at an unguarded spot, which is separated by a creek from the beach. A Fort Sheridan soldier, Kenneth J. Christner and William Alston, the Moraine life guard, tried to save the boy, but were unsuccessful, due to the strong side current.

Highland Park Craftsmen

A Weekly Feature for Hobbyists

No. 5 Juvenile Hobbyists at Community Center
Adult Highland Park hobbyists who want to see real enthusiasm and accomplishment in the arts and crafts would do well to come over some morning to see the hive-like activity at the Community Center work shop when fifteen or twenty deeply interested children are working.

Under the capable direction of

Mr. X, each child is given the guidance necessary to the accomplishment of some one project, which ever may have been chosen by the child. At one work table the visitor sees metal workers hammering out dishes, young artists making designs for needlework or paintings, other children working with jigsaw, file and buffer, building such practical devices as letter openers and other utilitarian bits for household use.

H. P. Groups Unite To Get U. S.-Built Service Club Bldg.

Plans are being drawn by Architect Raymond W. Flinn for a proposed structure 50x135 feet consisting of meeting rooms, large recreation hall, and other facilities which will be adequate for a Service Men's club near such an important defense area as Fort Sheridan. It is a single story structure with an inside height sufficient for use as a gymnasium for the Community Center when the emergency is over, as it is the purpose of the Federal Government to construct emergency centers of this nature so that they can be converted to permanent usefulness to the community.

"The Community Center directors," said Renslow F. Sherer, president, "are ready to transfer this valuable ground to the city as a gift for this worthwhile purpose because the city is the most logical unit to make formal application for the building and also because we believe the entire Community Center properties should ultimately be turned over to the city as a gift when the community is ready to set up a recreation commission and to unify all recreational facilities and programs of the municipality. Recreation, like education and health, is a municipal function and should, as in most progressive communities in the country, be co-ordinated, controlled, and maintained by the city government and the citizens as a whole."

Edwin C. Jones, field recreation representative Federal Security Agency, states that many applications for defense centers are being made all over the country and it is difficult to estimate when this project, which is as yet in the formative stage, will be approved.

Mayor Ronan, long identified with the Highland Park Community Center as vice-president and now as honorary president, has expressed the city's attitude in a recent letter as follows:

"I have been very favorably impressed with the offer of the Community Center to turn over the lot adjoining their establishment facing on Green Bay road, giving title to the City of Highland Park in order that the city may offer the lot to the government for one of their proposed recreational centers."

"The City of Highland Park stands ready to do this without cost to the federal government, providing satisfactory arrangements can be made with the federal government for a structure suitable to the site and appropriate to the emergency and permanent recreational usage."

Service Men's Club Already Overcrowded

Last Sunday, with every seat taken, every bench filled, and with scores of men standing, the Service Men's club was jammed beyond its capacity at 19 N. Sheridan. Many soldiers coming along the street looked at the great crowd inside and walked on because they felt they did not want to increase the size of the crowd.

A simple program for the week reveals many interesting features which are the cause of the large attendance. The Sunday morning breakfasts have been attended by a crowd of from 10 to 29 men, more each Sunday. Average attendance on Sunday for the month of July has been 324, and attendance on Saturday averages 209. Attendance on week nights increased from 34 during June to 61 during July.

With this increase in attendance, raids on the cookie jar have been steady, and has reaped havoc with the contents much to the pleasure of the women furnishing cookies for the jar.

The Service Men's club is also used as a headquarters for the provision of dance parties, beach parties, home hospitality (Sunday dinners), and other programs which are planned for the welfare of the soldiers and sailors.

A note in the suggestion box yesterday revealed the following contents: "We, the soldiers of Fort Sheridan, really appreciate the many things you Highland Parkers are doing for us. Keep up the good work because it helps to keep up our morals."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull has recovered sufficiently from a threatened collapse. He will resume the burden of his office and the world soon . . . Mrs. FDR's new radio sponsor may be Brazil at $2,000 a broadcast . . . Hitler's squawk that an American ship is arriving daily in Alexandria is a lie. It's two ships! . . . Insiders argue that Communist Joe Alsop was sent to Bombay, India, presumably because there is no greater distance from Washington. Alsop embarrassed the White House and the navy by stating in print that his kin, the President, was waiting for an incident to get us into war—just before he got his naval commission.

Carel and Luspescu are concerned about their reception here. Why? They got a most cordial press on their arrival to this hemisphere . . . Hess is supposed to have said that he fled because the stars by which Hitler lives "deserted him after May 12th" . . . Our submarine detectors have been perfected to the point where surface craft can now signal: "Come up for identification or be sunk!" . . . There are models of cargo vessels being tried out in Long Island sound, which are Mr. Hitler's newest headache. For practical purposes these ships are as far out of the water as the subs are under it.

WILSON'S Weekly RECIPES

Said a beaming Chicago homemaker recently, "Mr. Rector, every time I use Wilson's Tender Made Ham, whether I slice and serve it cold, just as it comes from the package, or heat it first, believe me, I appreciate that with this ham there's no wasteful oven shrinkage." Have you considered the thrift advantage of Tender Made Ham? Remember only Wilson & Co. makes it. It's the ham you cut with a fork.

PICNIC "Bouquet" PLATTER

Slice Wilson's Tender Made Ham, just as it comes from the wrapper (or have your dealer slice it). Arrange the slices in overlapping rows on a large platter. Pile relishes, consisting of radish roses, curled celery, green and ripe olives in the center and serve.

Hams for Any Size Family

Yes, even small families can now have baked ham. For Wilson's Tender Made Ham, boned, cooked in its own natural juices, comes in family size tins, whole, half, and quarter hams. Ready to serve or just heat and eat. No bone or waste. My favorite baked ham recipe on each tin.

who stand in front of a display of ready-to-serve meats, wondering which is which and what to order, let me suggest Wilson's Certified Salsami and Cervelat. And here are two other winners. (I know they're good, not only because I eat them, but because I know the choice meats that go into them. Both carry the Wilson Certified Lasting Flavour brand—and that means "tops" in meat quality.) One is Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Luncheon Meat—downright delicious whether sliced, baked, broiled or fried. Number two is Wilson's Certified Spiced Ham. Try this for dinner broiled with apricots. See you next week. G. R.
