

Highwood Locals

Mrs. Alex DeBartolo, 224 Oakridge Ave.; Mrs. Sam Leonardi, 316 Railway Ave., and Mrs. James Loizzo were Wisconsin State Fair visitors last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nizer and daughter, Baltimore, Md., Margaret Zimmerman and Leonard Zimmerman of Knoxville, Iowa, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Perry, 323 Prairie Avenue.

Highwood Local 46 members of the Illinois Retail Liquor Protective association held a dinner meeting Tuesday night at Northmer Country club.

Ben Guido, Boston, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Guido, of North Avenue last week. Ben, who is in the Navy, was on the S. S. Fuller, one of the ships used in transporting American marines to Iceland and Greenland.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Shelton, Mr. and Mrs. F. Shelton and Mr. and Mrs. A. Wysocky and children attended the Wisconsin State Fair.

Mrs. O. Fabbri has returned home after a week's visit in New York, where she visited Giovanni Martinielli, the opera singer.

YOUNG MAN ABOUT TOWN

does one ever leave the North Shore?"

"Let's hope you think about the times we've had this summer," Bob replied unassuredly. I bet you'll remember me when at a Yale-Princeton football game, a Harvard house party or a Washington and Lee Fancy Dress Ball!" Bob added sadly and a bit sarcastically.

Her eyes gleaming, Isabelle said: "Oh stop it, Bob. You know perfectly well that the fellows on the Shore are tops! And you know, too, that I'll always be true to you!"

Inwardly Bob smiled. He hoped she would. But Isabelle was so pretty, and dainty, and feminine—rare qualities nowadays what with all the paint used, the slacks worn, and the hard and tough sophistication.

"Nancy's hayrides were fun, too, Iss," said Bob looking dreamy-eyed. I kissed you for the first time on one of those memorable hayrides. I won't forget that!"

"Stop being sentimental, Bob," snapped Isabelle in a sharp, unlikable voice. "And don't talk so loudly. My brother might hear you, and I'd be kidded!"

"Okeh, we'll skip it," said Bob in a hurt tone. "But I wish we could have more and bigger hayrides," he added spitefully.

Quickly changing the subject, Isabelle said: "You can't forget the fun we had at the beach, either. You always get so nice and brown, and I always peel! It's a man's world alright. Ooops! I shouldn't have said that. Forget it, Bob. And stop looking so proud!"

On and on the two went recollecting, laughing, and kidding one another. Then Isabelle, with a swish of her white net formal, went to the phonograph and started playing records. Summer favorites. Helps to bring back things better, Isabelle thought to herself.

First popular "Daddy" blared forth—and so did the Andrew Sisters; then "Intermezzo" followed by Jimmy Dorsey's "Green Eyes" and his super de luxe "Time Was." Finally, the sentimental scene, "Everything Happens To Me," which seemed to fit Bob perfectly. Particularly when competing with Yale, Harvard, and Princeton men. Ouch!

Bob said (he was a slow thinker): "By the way, Iss, what about you and your work this summer? You didn't seem to have much time for me either. What with your modeling at Field's and at Carson's and advising girls about their 'must-haves', etc.; and then when that enormous issue of Mademoiselle came, I didn't see you for days, or nights. And then when you went and bought your back-to-Vassar wardrobe, I didn't see you for more days and nights!" With a burst of positive suggestion, Bob continued: "But we're going to the All-Star Game this year! Yes sir! Bet the college lads will whip the Bears. After all, with Franck, Harmon, Evaszski, and Paskvan in the backfield and that powerful line, a win is a sure thing. I've been watching the lads practice. They're mighty fine this year—a banner crop!"

With an affirmative shake of her pretty head, Bob, reassured, continued with gusto.

"Get your wraps, Iss, and urry on we'll never make the dance," Bob said as he glanced at his watch. The top down on Bob's shiny new convertible, swing music on the car radio, the typical North Shore couple left for the last summer dance at the country club.

From the bedroom window, Mrs. Jones, Isabelle's mother, looked pleased and contented as she watched them drive away. American youth at its best, she thought to herself.

Deerfield Locals

Mrs. Walter Hoffman, Greenwood avenue, entertained the members of her Friday bridge club at her home Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Herbert Klopfer and children, Donald and Carol, sailed from New York Thursday for the British West Indies to join Mr. Klopfer, who has been working there for the past year. Mrs. Klopfer was guest of honor at two "bon voyage" parties last week. Hostesses were Mrs. Robert Klauke, Northfield and Mrs. Richard Prouty, Northfield.

Mrs. H. E. Stedman, Los Angeles, California, visited her cousin, Mrs. Ira Gardner, Deerfield road, Wednesday.

Mrs. E. E. Nelson and daughter, Oakwood avenue, visited relatives in Danville last week.

Miss Mildred McDonald, assistant superintendent of the Dorcas home, is visiting her parents in North Dakota.

Deerfield Stagers 1940-41 Program

The Stagers of Deerfield announced their program for the 1941-1942 season last week after a meeting of the play selection committee. "The Milky Way" will be produced on November 7, 1941 under the direction of Jim Tebbetts. A comedy of the side-splitting variety, "The Milky Way" was made famous a few years ago as a movie, starring Harold Lloyd.

"Old Man Minick" by the well-known combination of George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber, is one of the most appealing character comedies ever to be produced on Broadway. It will come to Deerfield on February 20, 1942.

"Post Road" will be the final play of the season, presented April 24, 1942. All the elements of mystery plus plenty of rich humor make "Post Road" excellent entertainment.

Mary Palmer, who succeeded Kenneth Hunter as director of the Stagers, will direct "Old Man Minick" and "Post Road".

Clothing and Sewing Needed for British

Mrs. Charles E. Timson reports that her committee of the Deerfield-Bannockburn British War Relief Society has made, filled, and shipped twenty-six comfort bags for the use of the women of the bombed areas of England, whose necessities are provided by these bags. The expense of filling these bags is covered by the proceeds of the Tuesday afternoon card parties held weekly in the homes of committee members.

Last Tuesday afternoon a group met at the home of Mrs. Timson and helped to carry on this work. These parties are open to the public.

Emil Zettler and her committee, who mend and pack used clothing for the British War Relief Society, have continued to meet each Monday morning during the summer at the shop. Mrs. Zettler states that clothing is still coming in and there is urgent need for help each Monday, either morning or afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seago, San Antonio, Texas, are visiting their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Seago, Crab Tree Lane.
