

WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND?
by Savant

The definition of a statesman is man so learned and skilled in morality, religion and political craft that he generally leads his people in doing what is for the best welfare of his country and incidentally for the world. The German idea of state craft is to do what is good for the Germans at the expense of other races.

One of the subtlest bids of German and pro-German propaganda that runs throughout the country and right into Congress is that our country will be morally derelict if we do not feed the German ruled nations of Europe. It is a form of reasoning that deprives good conscientious people of reliance upon their own thinking. The attack is sentimental. The pro-Germans argue that it will be a sin and a crime for a people so prosperous, so well supplied with an over abundance of food, as we, to allow the women and children to starve. They always harp on women and children.

First of all let us take a common sense view of the situation: How could we be responsible for the calculated savagery of the Germans, an independent, and an arrogantly callous people over whom we not only have no control but to whom even to criticize is an affront and gratuitous insult.

This feeding business is the same sort of sentimental bosh that made the sacrifices of 1914 to 1918 futile. Despite their guilt in the last war, we loaned the Germans capital, and fed them, and to what purpose? The German children who found protection and care in 1918 to 1920 returned the Norse kindness by treacherously guiding the German army of occupation in 1940.

In former articles I have tried to enlighten readers about the true nature of moral law, and a very good place to illuminate it is this food question for Europe. Moral law is a human law. Nature is non-moral. Nature is indifferent as to whether a race or idea of wrong is human. According to our human idea a person who neglects his own well-being is wrong and must suffer the consequences of his own ignorance or willfulness. So, we saw the Poles, the French, the Spanish, the Belgians and others neglect to protect the League of Nations. The logic of the moral law says that they and their German masters are solely responsible for conditions in Europe yesterday, today and tomorrow.

Telephone Mathematics

• Good morning, scholars. Can any of you tell me how many telephones you can call in the Illinois Bell area?

Yes, sir! The number of telephones now connected is about 1,608,000—an increase of 88,000 over this time a year ago.

• Right! . . . Now does that mean that about 88,000 telephones were connected in the course of a year?

Oh, no! The 88,000 telephones added during the last twelve months were only a fraction of the 272,715 "In-orders" completed. In addition to that, there were 184,530 "Out-orders" and 138,323 "Move-orders"—a total of 595,568 separate jobs to do. Over one-third of the number of Illinois Bell telephones were on the move!

• That reminds me—about how many telephone people are on duty in the Illinois Bell area?

There are more than 30,000 men and women with your telephone company. Their job is to provide the finest possible service at the lowest possible cost.

WILSON'S Weekly RECIPES

This winter I plan to bring you week after week in this column the recipes, menus, and food suggestions which will enable you to give your family nutritious and appetizing meals for less money. And since meat is the backbone of the meal, I can help you most by telling you how to advantageously buy, cook, and serve meat.

THE ROAD TO THRIFT

Everybody, your family among them, enjoys meat for its flavor. Buy meat of rich flavor so that when you combine it with potatoes, rice, macaroni, or vegetables, it retains its fine meat flavor and imparts it generously. Also buy a large enough piece of meat to last for several meals; it costs less per pound and shrinks less.

FROM ONE MEAT MANY MEALS

An ideal thrift purchase is a whole Wilson's Certified Smoked Ham, the original Tender, Extra-Mild ham in the bright orange wrapper. Its flavor is so rich that it goes further. It bakes more quickly than the old style ham, so it shrinks less. For variety, use the center slices for broiling or pan frying, the butt-end for baking, the shank-end for cooking with vegetables.

Left-over dishes folks go for

- Just so much "velvet" for your meat budget are these delicious "left-overs." Each takes just 1 1/2 cups of cooked ham.
- Ham and macaroni
- Ham and vegetable salad
- Ham omelet
- Creamed ham on toast
- Ham-potato scallop

HEARTY AUTUMN DINNER

BAKED TASTY MEAT

Wilson's Certified Tasty Meat is sugar-cured pork shoulder . . . (no bone—no waste). To bake it, remove cellophane and allow meat to reach room temperature. Place in open pan and bake in slow oven (325° F.) 40 minutes per pound. Cover with honey or brown sugar and brown for 15 minutes in a 400° F. oven.
