

DO YOU KNOW ILLINOIS?

Q. What was Nathaniel Pope's salary as Territorial Secretary of Illinois?
A. $1,000 annually.
Q. Where was Pope's office?
A. In a house belonging to his father-in-law, Elijah Backus.
Q. What rent was paid for Pope's office?
A. The Treasurer of the United States, Albert Gallatin, finally allowed $60 per year after having written to Pope that "Forty dollars per annum is considered the highest sum which ought to be allowed for the rent of an office.
J. What were the expenses listed for the first three months of the Territorial government?
A. 1 Ream foolscap paper, $8.50; 1 Ream Letter paper, $8.50; Printing 100 blank militia commissions, $5.00; Printing 60 blank civil commissions, $30.00; 1 Blank Book, $10.00; 3 Months Rent, $15.00. Total $50.00.
Q. What were the expenses for the second quarter?
A. 2 oz. wafers, $1.50; Printing 1 quire civil commissions, $2.50; Printing 1 quire militia commissions, $2.50; Quills, Ink, powder and sealing wax $3.50; 13 quires paper, $5.20; Office Rent, $15.00. Total $32.20.
Q. What was the annual appropriation for Territorial expenses?
A. $350. Apparently an extravagance.
Q. Did Pope act as Governor in 1809 or any other time than the weeks prior to Ninian Edwards' assumption of office?
A. Yes. During August and September Edwards was in Kentucky on private business.
Q. How did Pope conduct himself during Edwards' absence?
A. He acted strictly as his deputy. The Executive Register contains only three entries—the first, on Aug. 24, noting the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of a criminal wanted by the Governor of Louisiana Territory; the second on Sept. 9, recording the filing of a letter from Edwards removing two justices of the peace from office; the last, on Sept. 22, appointing two others in their places.
Q. Is the Executive Register of the Illinois Territory still in existence?
A. Yes. It is in the Archives building at Springfield.
Q. What is inscribed on the first page of the Executive Register?
A. A copy by Nathaniel Pope of President James Madison under date of April 25, 1809.

What's Doing at Fort Sheridan

Sharp Shooters
Three men qualified as sharpshooters, and 63 received marksmen's ratings with the rifle in the 81st Quartermaster Battalion at Fort Sheridan, Ill., it was announced today.
These men are now authorized to wear the respective medals for their accomplishments.
Shots were fired from standing, prone, kneeling and sitting positions at a target 200 yards away. A total of 77 rounds was fired.
To qualify for a sharpshooter, a score of 168 of a possible 200 is necessary. Marksman awards are given for scores of at least 134.
Thos named sharpshooters were: Staff Sgt. John S. Been, 445 Fuston Ave., Highwood, and 1st Sgt. John Holm, 25 Webster Ave., Highwood.
Dough Boys
When you turn out 75,000 loaves of bread a month—you're really making dough.
Fort Sheridan's School for Bakers and Cooks has maintained that average for some time and its aim is to continue to turn out the bread—and at the same time some outstanding bakers to feed Uncle Sam's Army.
There's an old saying: "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach." That psychology is played upon with gusto by smart officers in the Army.
The Fort Sheridan School for Bakers and Cooks is "the" school in the country, and it supplies all camps in the Sixth Corps Area with bakers and cooks.
Master Sergeant Joseph C. Kelley, 34, of 234 N. 15th St., Terre Haute, Ind., has charge of the Bakery section. He's been in the Army 14 years and has had a part in developing the many fine bakers in camps in Wisconsin, Illinois, and Michigan.
Mr. and Mrs. Orval Thomas, Lansing, Mich., announces the birth of a baby girl, Karen June, born Saturday, June 27. Mrs. Thomas was formerly Miss Margaret Kuchne, Glenview avenue, Highland Park.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

MAKING BETTER USE OF LIGHT

A combination of back and top lighting is principally responsible for the fine pictorial effect of this snapshot. Keep an eye on the direction of the light, and you'll be able to produce equally effective results.

Among the fundamental tools of all photographers, light holds an unequalled position. But most of us take the sun, and flash or flood lamps, almost for granted. We do not stop to realize how much the direction of light means to a picture.
If you watch carefully you'll see that in most instances light strikes your subjects from one of three major directions—front, side, or back. Outdoors these forms of illumination are normally tempered by a touch of top lighting, but each of these types produces a definite effect. Remember that, and you'll find that you can use light to control the quality and mood of your snapshots.
Front, or flat lighting, which is the kind you get when the sun is behind the camera, is, for instance, rather routine and ordinary in effect. It does not result in too attractive black-and-white prints, but it will give you perfectly acceptable record pictures. Pictorially the light is too low in contrast to give the most pleasing effect.
Side lighting is probably much better suited to general purpose photography. It almost invariably provides a pleasant balance of highlights and shadows; it helps to achieve a third dimensional effect in your pictures; it emphasizes textures; and it provides the basic contrast necessary to brilliant pictures. Use it often.
The third division is back lighting—the kind that exists when the sun is shining directly at the camera. With back lighting you'll get the type of effect found in our illustration, but in this case a reflector was also used to brighten the side of the subject nearest the camera. It's just the thing too for making outdoor silhouette, or semi-silhouette, pictures. It's good for landscape studies. And, if you use a reflector to brighten the shadow side of your subjects, it's a highly effective lighting for portraiture. There's just one thing to watch out for: don't let the sun shine directly into the camera lens. Use a lens hood or shade your camera with your hand.
Watch the light, and you'll be able to see your picture quality move steadily upwards.

THE MASTER GARDENER

June Plantings of Vegetables in Victory Garden
Yes, you can plant vegetables in June and July and secure good yields—not only that—you should make such plantings, in order to assure a supply of produce right up to freezing weather.
In making these late plantings, use care in choosing varieties. Select early (quick maturing) varieties. Note, particularly the days required to reach maturity, then compute number of days remaining from date of sowing until first average frost date for your locality, and this will show whether the variety you intend to sow will reach maturity in time to secure full benefit from the crop.
In addition to suitable varieties, you have other good allies in bringing about the rapid, steady growth that means not only quick maturity but also high quality vegetables:
First, warm weather and warm soil will bring about quick germination.
Second, the use of a complete balanced plant food when preparing the seed bed and during later growth, will, in combination with the first factor (warm weather and warm soil) cause these late-planted crops to make considerably faster progress than the spring planted crops—this, of course, providing you give your garden the best of care in the way of cultivation, and provide plenty of moisture.
Effective Control of Crab Grass
There are three factors that are very important in the control of crab grass and these are:
1. Early feeding and reseeding of infested lawns in the spring:
Crab grass does not start growth until warm weather, and therefore the first step in fighting it is to feed and reseed infested areas. Do this early, so that you get a good growth of grass before the crab grass has a chance to germinate and begin growth. Continue to feed and reseed bare and thin spots in the lawn throughout the growing season.
2. Correct watering:
During the summer, from early June up to fall, most lawn grasses are semi-dormant, and crab grass is making its best growth. Crab grass is shallow-rooted, lawn grasses deep-rooted; therefore during this period water the lawn infrequently, but soak the soil thoroughly when you do water.
Correct mowing:
Crab grass will not grow well in shade; therefore cut the grass high, say 2 1/2 to 3 inches in height, and the shade provided by this heavy growth of grass will discourage the growth of crab grass.
Mow the lawn, using a grass catcher, if possible, to prevent spreading of the seed.
Rake the lawn thoroughly, tearing out as much crab grass as possible. If your lawn is badly infested with crab grass and you do this raking job thoroughly, your lawn is going to be a "pretty sorry looking sight" when you have finished this task. But never mind—you are looking ahead to ultimate results, not present appearance. So get all that crab grass out. Then scarify the soil, with a sharp rake, and apply to the lawn a complete balanced plant food, at the rate of 4 lbs. per 100 square feet, raking it lightly into the soil. Proper feeding with a complete balanced plant food is one of the most important factors in the eradication of crab grass, because this weed, like many others, makes its best growth in thin lawns where the lawn grasses are not sufficiently nourished to fight the weeds.
Now seed the entire lawn, using 3 pounds of good seed to the 1,000 square feet; rake lightly and roll or tamp to firm the soil around the seed. Keep the lawn moist by sprinkling frequently until the young grass has germinated and made some growth.
This will give you a good fall lawn and an excellent foundation to begin with next spring.

WILSON'S WEEKLY World Famous RECIPES By George Rector
EAST, WEST, HOME IS BEST
This summer's forecast points toward much social life in our own backyard. It's a good idea to begin on America's birthday. You'll find these, my pet picnic ideas, will set a boomerang that'll reverberate 'round the neighborhood in cries for more typical American get-togethers. In the end, we'll realize that East, West, Home is best.

A GREAT IDEA FOR HAMBURGER LOVERS
If you have a picnic in your own backyard, you may want to fix hamburger sandwiches in the kitchen my new way and serve piping hot in the garden. They're delicious. This recipe makes 6 large sandwiches.
Broiled Hamburger Sandwiches
Mix together:
1 pound of Gela Seald ground meat
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons of milk
4 tablespoons of minced onion (optional)
Toast 6 slices bread on one side beneath broiler. Turn and spread with butter. Cover this side completely with the ground meat mixture. Broil 3 inches from heat for 5 minutes or until sandwich is nicely browned. Then top with a second slice of bread. Toast on top. Cut sandwiches in halves and serve immediately.
VARIATION: Catsup or mustard can be spread over meat before top slice of bread goes on.
OTHER PICNIC PERFECTS
OUTDOOR MEAL IDEA ONE: Scramble Clear Brook Eggs over open flame.

Red Cross Gets 15,000 Pounds of Wool Clips In Drive
More than 15,000 lbs. of wool clips—enough when reprocessed into wool cloth to make 5,000 soldiers' uniforms—was collected by the Red Cross in the Chicago area during the first three weeks of the WPB Wool Conservation Program, it was announced by Mrs. Frank Hixon, Red Cross chairman of the program here.
At the present rate of collection, enough wool will be collected in three months in this area to clothe a complete Army division of 150,000 men, Mrs. Hixon said.
Any persons having trousers cuffs, wool clips, or wool samples which they wish to contribute to the Red Cross to help conserve the country's wool supply, is asked to phone the Red Cross, WABash 3250, 616 S. Michigan avenue, Chicago. Arrangements will then be made to pick up the clips regularly.
Contributions of wool clips sent in by mail and parcel post have been growing recently, Mrs. Hixon said, and the Red Cross is glad to receive them. All contributors receive a window card showing they have contributed to the Red Cross Wool Conservation Program.

Skilled Workers Urgently Needed At Pearl Harbor
There is still an urgent need for skilled workers in government service at Pearl Harbor, according to the United States Civil Service Commission. Among the trades for which qualified men are most needed are Aircraft Mechanics, Aircraft Instrument Mechanics and Fabric workers, Carpenters, Machinists, Riggers, Shipwrights, Boilermakers, Flange Turners, Patternmakers, and Pipecoverters.
Applications for these and other skilled crafts are being received by Frank E. Carlson, Civil Service Commission Secretary at the Highland Park, Post Office.
Transportation is paid for by the Government, wages are unusually high, and living and working conditions are above average. Most of the positions guarantee a 40-hour week with time and one-half for overtime. All workers have full use of Government recreational facilities and hospitalization is provided without cost to the men.
