WOUNDED LUZON HERO GETS RED CROSS BLOOD

Blood Plasma Transfusion Given Member of MacArthur's Forces

Aboard the "Mactan," in the Southwest Pacific, a wounded soldier of General Douglas MacArthur's Philippine forces is being given an emergency transfusion of Red Cross blood plasma. The plasma was processed from blood given by a volunteer donor in the United States, in the Red Cross campaign to obtain 1,280,000 pints of blood for the Army and Navy. Administering the plasma is Red Cross Doctor Ljmlingan, aided by Red Cross Nurses Overy, Fowles, and Hernandez. The soldier is one of some 200 wounded men evacuated from Manila on the Red Cross ship at the cabled request of General MacArthur. The "Mactan" reached Australia safely and the wounded men were disembarked in Sydney, where they were hospitalized.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
HOW TO SEE PICTURES

Develop a sincere interest in people, study the work of other photographers, and work toward a definite objective, and you'll soon find it's easy to make excellent snapshots like this.

JUST the other day a friend of mine who is interested in photography came to me with a question. "What's all this business about being able to see pictures?" he asked. "Is it something abstract, or is it a definite ability which any photographer can develop?"

Well, I assured him that there is such a thing as an ability to see pictures, and any photographer who wants to develop it can do so in short order. There are just three simple steps.

First, you must study people because you will have to draw upon them for many of your picture subjects. Learn to look upon your friends and acquaintances, as well as people in public, with an appraising eye. Watch the things they do, note the way they sit, walk, talk, and note the effect of light on them from various angles. It will be an interesting experiment, and photographically profitable if you try to determine when your subjects would make the best pictures.

Next, study other pictures and try to equal or surpass them. You'll find good material in the popular picture magazines, the photographic magazines, and even general or fashion publications. By studying them you'll keep up with what others are doing, and you'll certainly get many ideas you might apply to your own photography.

Finally, I'd suggest that you give yourself a picture-making objective. That may seem to have no connection with your ability to see pictures, but the point is that when you give yourself something definite to accomplish—or use your camera as a means of telling a story in pictures—then you will find that you "see" pictures far more readily than if you have no particular purpose in mind.

Give yourself an objective today, and start shooting!

About the appliances we advertise nowadays

The appliances we are now advertising are limited to those we have on hand, or those that are made available without interference with war production. They have all been selected because their normal operation in the home comes at a time of day when our electrical facilities are more than adequate to meet present power requirements for both war production and civilian use. Furthermore, we believe that their use in most cases will conserve energy and tend to release home labor for helpful wartime activities.

Employees Give Mobile Canteen To Red Cross

A completely equipped mobile canteen has been donated to the Red Cross by the American Electric Fusion Corporation, 2610 Diversey avenue, its employees and its president, it was announced today by James B. Forgan, Chairman of the Chicago Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Money for the mobile canteen unit was raised in a novel way, Mr. Forgan said. Employees of the Fusion company gave their half-day's pay at time-and-a-half for cleaning the plant; to each employee dollar thus contributed to the Red Cross, the company itself gave two dollars, to which was added a contribution of fifty cents for each employee by Edmund J. Henke, President of the American Electric Fusion Corporation.

In this way, the more than 700 employees, the company, and its president joined in raising the $2,500 necessary for the purchase of the mobile canteen truck.

The mobile canteen unit is built on a standard 1 1/2 ton truck chassis, and has complete kitchen equipment for serving 300 people at one feeding. It will be used by the Chicago Chapter of the Red Cross at disasters, fires, and in event of enemy action, Mr. Forgan stated. It will also be available for use in feeding recruits at recruiting stations, for troops in transit, and for blood donors coming to the Red Cross' mobile Blood Donor unit.

Presentation of the mobile canteen to the Red Cross will be made at the annual picnic and field day of the Fusion Company's employees at Hoffman's Grove, DesPlaines, on July 4.

Schlabowske Follows Son Into The Navy

Last December 8, his 17th birthday and the day after Japan's initial assault on the United States, Jerome Schlabowske, of 623 W. Park Ave., Highland Park, enlisted in the Navy as an apprentice seaman.

As Jerome went through recruit training here at the U.S. Naval Training Station and was assigned to Fort McKinley, a receiving station on the East Coast, his progress as a bluejacket was followed closely by his father, Frederick Schlabowske, 42.

Several weeks ago the senior Schlabowske, for the past 15 years a ticket agent for the Chicago and North Western Railroad, followed his son's lead and enlisted as a seaman, first class.

Although most of the 130 members of his company, were many years his junior, he was always among the leaders in the various phases of the rigorous training program at the Training Station.

Today, the 42-year-old recruit was chosen honor man of the company. Through a series of aptitude tests given its members, he has been selected to attend one of the Navy's Service Schools upon graduation from training July 1.

Schlabowske's wife, Lucille, and another son, Roland, live in Highland Park. The boy is employed in the commissary at Fort Sheridan.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Judson Wells, Jr., and daughters Anne and Harriet, will arrive Saturday, July 4, to spend two weeks with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Gumm of Evanston and Mr. and Mrs. A. Judson Wells of Onwentsia Ave. Judson is working in the Research department of the DuPont company at Wilmington, Delaware.
