NEW YORK.—Elmer Davis once paid $50,000 to see a ball game.

OWI Chief Can Show Us How to Take Bad News
We had the story from the former editor of a national magazine of large circulation.

"The winner seemed to be the entry of a widely known New York novelist and magazine feature writer, but there was another serial that crowded it closely and finally, in a hair-line decision, the judges picked the former.

"That left the field open to the runner-up, a piece submitted by one Elmer Davis, a former ace reporter who had left the city room and set up as a free lance writer of fiction and articles.

"At Mr. Davis' little writing office, we were told that Mr. Davis had gone to the ball game. We left word for him to come to our office.

"Next morning, Mr. Davis came in. I told him what had happened. You knew he was jolted, but you had to look closely to catch the flick of disappointment in his placid Hoover eyes.

YOUNG Lieut. Delos C. Emmons, trying to transfer from infantry to aviation, was rejected three times because he couldn't hear a watch tick.

Well for Us That Examiner Wasn't Sticker for Rules
You could not hear a watch tick in an airplane, anyway. Forget it."

At 31, he will be the army's youngest major general. He has done as much knock-about flying as any army man in the air, and is air-conditioned not only in hazardous flying exploits but in strategy and technique, having taught flying at Harvard university in 1929 and 1931.

BRITAIN'S old school gets half a column on the cables, in spite of airplane and battleship competition. They plan to scrap it, says Richard Austin Butler, president of the board of education, as a symbol of class education.

Navy's Appeal for Binoculars

The United States Navy has appealed directly to the people of our city for the loan of binoculars meeting Navy requirements for the duration of the war.

In four and a half months only 1,654 sets of these instruments have been received from all over the country. This number is but a fraction of what the Navy needs.

Binoculars are a necessity on the fighting ships of our Navy. Lookouts use them to keep a constant vigil for enemy ships, planes and submarines.

Two types of instruments are accepted by the Navy. They are Bausch & Lomb or Carl Zeiss, sizes 6x30 or 7x50.

Look in your attic, safety deposit box, closets... find that pair that have been gathering dust and put them to the best use for you, your sons, and your Navy.

Come out of the kitchen, Mom, for the summer and Soup can help You do it, says Dorothy Greig

New Orleans Chicken-and-Asparagus Soup pops up a summer meal

Of course, we still do have three or four meals a day to prepare because, summer or winter, the family must be kept well nourished. But there are all sorts of ways and means of lightening up the work when the weather is hot. And one of them is soup.

It can be a hot, sizzling first course for a substantial cold cuts-and-salad sort of meal. Either way it gives you the hot food you need—and with no trouble. Here are two soups to pop up your summer meals:

Soldier's Diet Consists of Energy Foods

What, no beans? This traditional staple no longer dominates the soldier's mess or field rations. Instead, he is given a tasty assortment of the best energy-forming foods.

Field Ration "C" consists of previously cooked food, such as stew or hash, sealed in tin cans, each accompanied by another can containing biscuits, candy, sugar and soluble coffee.

In addition, there are a mess kit, with utensils and canteen, and a series of photographs showing the dehydration of various foods. By eliminating water from potatoes, milk, eggs, cabbage, etc., the volume can be reduced to as little as one-tenth of the original.
