

Republicans to Hold Two Large Rallies October 29 and 30

Politics throughout the 101 Republican Precincts mounted in activity during the past week and the organization plans have been perfected for the final drive of the remaining ten days of this important campaign. Chairman William M. Marks of the Lake County Central Committee states that a good vote is expected based on the large Registration under the new permanent registration act of 1941. The Lake County Central Committee of the Republican party has gone on record as favoring the proposed amendment that will appear on the November ballot urging all voters to VOTE "YES." This calls for the eventual removal of the sales tax on food and is of especial interest to the Housewives throughout the County. Two large Republican rallies have been arranged for this final week. The first will be held at Waukegan on Thursday night, October the 29th at 8 p. m. in the Court Room of the Court House. Lake County's own Richard J. Lyons will be the main speaker and his talk will be based on the efforts of the Kelly-Nash-Machine's endeavor to crash into Lake County politics through the State and District candidates. The 101 Precinct Committees with their workers and other Republican friends will attend to celebrate a real old fashioned Republican rally.

On Friday night, October 30th at Zion Home on Sheridan road, the Benton Township and Zion Township Committeemen will hold a rally with Stephen A. Day and Ralph Church in attendance. Senator Arnold P. Benson a prominent Republican who represents his district in the State Senate is expected to be the main speaker. Senator Benson is the leader of the Republicans in the State Senate and is a power in that body. All of the County Candidates, Perry L. Persons for County Judge; Jay B. Morse for County Clerk; Martin C. Decker for Probate Judge; Allen J. Nelson for Probate Clerk; Gustaf H. Fredbeck for County Treasurer; Walter L. Atkinson for Sheriff and W. C. Petty for County Superintendent of schools will be introduced at both meetings. State Representatives Nick Keller and Harold D. Kelsey candidate for reelection will also be introduced.

The Republican Headquarters through William D. Whyte, announces that increased interest is aroused for the coming election evidenced by the demand for literature and other information in regard to the issues and candidates of the Republican Party. The Young Republican groups headed by Ray Reardon of Waukegan; the Womans Organization headed by Mrs. Roger Vail of Highland Park and the Veterans group headed by Mancel Talcott are very active in the campaign and have held meetings throughout the County, all of whom are functioning with their various groups through their individual Precinct Committees. The main issue of this campaign is that, "We must preserve our two party system of government under which we have become the greatest nation on earth."

War Needs Call For Budgeting

In sharp contrast to the silk shirt, badge of World War I's "prosperity," the insignia of the average home in World War II is a well-worn budget book.

Today's consumers are aware of new burdens imposed by war and conscious of the disastrous inflation period that followed the last war, the nation's retailers report. As a result, consumers' purchases are emphasizing practicality nowadays.

Purchases for the home especially reflect this practicality. Prospects that lives will necessarily be "stay at home" ones this winter are reflected in a 20 per cent increase in sales of adult games and warm lounging apparel.

Housefurnishings displays which low to the budget, also stress bright colors for morale-building qualities, and furniture easily assembled in any setting, even if war's exigencies make the home a temporary one.

Dramatic proof that new housefurnishings can be kind to the budget, yet can answer all the needs for present-day living, is offered by Marshall Field and company, of Chicago in ten model rooms. As a feature of the new showings, the store, which has pioneered many merchandising trends, announced a contest to let the homemaker try her own hand at decorating. Using the same floor plans as the model rooms, contestants can choose comparably priced merchandise and arrange it in their own version of present-day decor.

One outstanding example of livability at a modest price is in the modern living room-bed room combination. Twin studio beds, upholstered in red, white and blue plaid, are placed at right angles on two walls, with a large white table in the corner forming a bedside table for each bed. The blue of the walls is repeated in a blue wall-to-wall rug, over which has been thrown a small brilliant red rug. For compact living, white chests double as desks, and a corner table becomes a dining table.

This same functional note is emphasized in the entire furniture picture today. Small chests which can be converted into dressing tables; unit chairs which make a modern love seat, and beds concealing linen chests, are increasingly a part of the new American scene—the "budget-minded" scene.

Two Girls Chosen Representatives For Wellesley Dormitories

Miss Laura Lou Bauer, a sophomore at Wellesley college, in the recent dormitory elections was chosen Christian Association representative for Tower, her dormitory. Miss Bauer, the daughter of the Aaron S. Bauers of 2351 North Deere Park drive, is active in many of the college organizations including Choir and Barnswallows, the dramatic association.

Miss Margaret Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Parker Johnson of 505 Waverly road, has also been chosen Christian Association representative of her dormitory at Wellesley college, where she is a sophomore.

Local Youth Escapes Death In Plane Crash

Hearst W. Cady Jr., 26, of Highland Park, a student pilot at the U. S. Naval Reserve Aviation base at Glenview, narrowly escaped death Thursday bybailing out of a plane after two other naval aviators lost their lives. The accident occurred when two training planes collided near the airport. Cady was in a plane piloted by Lt. Louis Moore of Huntington, Ind. The other plane was piloted by Walter Edward Krager of Detroit, Mich. Both planes were on routine naval training flights and were at low altitudes at the time of the accident.

Cady was cut and bruised in making his parachute landing. Student Pilot Krager attempted to bail out of his plane, but he was at such a low altitude that his parachute failed to open.
