

Hazel Crow Ewell To Address Members Of North Shore Writers

Hazel Crow Ewell is being hostess to the North Shore Writers at a fire-place luncheon following their class at the Highland Park Y. W. C. A. today (Thursday). Members of the group and any special guests at class will bring their own buns and hamburgers or frankfurters for cooking over the outdoor fireplace at Mrs. Ewell's Cary avenue home. Steaming hot "camp coffee" will be served by the hostess. If the weather is too cold even for the writers who are urged to come in winter campers' togs, the studio fireplace will be the gathering spot.

Following the Bohemian luncheon, the guests will see the many paintings and sketches made by this artist-writer member of the group. A new portrait of her daughter, Diane, finished this summer and sketches made on some of Mrs. Ewell's recent travels will be shown for the first time.

On Nov. 5, following class, there will be another luncheon meeting at the Y. W. C. A. catered by Mrs. Louis Schemmel of the Sunset Valley Golf club when Ruth Harschaw, author of the radio program "Battle of Books," will be a guest speaker.

Those who have not yet joined the group are invited to call the Y W C A H. P. 675 and ask about tickets for the remaining sessions.

HP PUBLIC LIBRARY HP ILL

A few of the new books placed on the shelves of the Highland Park Public Library recently:

"I Write from Washington," Marquis Childs.

This is a social history of the era from 1932 to date written by one of our best correspondents. With a keen sense of understanding and humor, he is able to hold the picture at arm's length and to describe it objectively.

"Yes, and I remember Washington, early December, and the Monument in the beginning dusk, pure and beautiful, the branches of the big elms naked and clear. It is wonderful beyond anything, the people and the country."

"I Remember, I Remember," Andre Maurois.

His biographies of Disraeli, Byron, Chateaubriand, Art of Living and other books have been delightful. Now comes the choice of all, the author's own intimate life story.

"India Without Fable: A 1942 Survey," Kate L. Mitchell.

This shows the economic and social forces which keep India in turmoil. Also gives sketches of Nehru, Gandh and other prominent people.

Other new books on India:

"India Today, the background of Indian Nationalism,"

"Pageant of India," F. Yeats-Brown.

"Conditions of Peace," Edward H. Carr.

This important book discusses fundamental issues. Although it was written before the entry of Soviet Russia, the principles are still pertinent.

"Fabulous Life of Sarah Bernhardt," Louis Verneuil.

As the author married the granddaughter of the famous actress, so he had access to much important material.

"For half a century, and all over the world, she caused French writers and French art, the language and culture of France, to be acclaimed, loved and understood. For half a century the greatest living actress was a French woman. Since her death no one in any country has taken her place."

The person who has been giving to the library the monthly issues of Fortune has moved from the city. It is hoped that some one else will volunteer to do this and to begin with the September issue.

ART CLASS EVERY MONDAY AT U.S.O.

Mrs. Ann Landau, well-known artist, is conducting an art class every Monday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock at the Highland Park USO club. Portrait drawing and landscapes will be emphasized in the course.

George, Smith Appearing In 'Spring Again'

Grace George and C. Aubrey Smith, beloved and distinguished stars of the theatre, opened a limited engagement of four weeks last week in their comedy success, "Spring Again," at the Selwyn theatre, Chicago, in the roles they created in New York last season.

The Chicago engagement of the Broadway hit, which ran for nine months last season, comes to a close on Saturday, Nov. 7. Produced and staged by Guthrie McClintic, "Spring Again" by Isabel Leighton and Bertram Bloch won wide-spread approval from the Chicago critics.

Grace George, considered by many authorities to be the leading comedienne of the American theatre, is enjoying her happiest hit of a decade with "Spring Again." On Broadway she has starred in such notable productions as "Kind Lady," "The Circle," "The First Mrs. Fraser," "The Devircons" and "Major Barbara." C. Aubrey Smith, whose rugged features are familiar to moviegoers the world over as the symbol of British courage, returned to Broadway in "Spring Again" after an absence of thirteen years. He has scored in literally dozens of Hollywood films, including "Clive of India," "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and "Lloyd's of London."

Saielli Relected Head of Highwood Social Service

Robert Saielli was relected president of the Highwood Social Service at the annual business meeting held Monday evening in the city hall. Mrs. Sam Somenzi was named vice president; John Ugolini, treasurer, and Mrs. Raymond Suzzi, secretary.

The committee discussed the sponsoring of a public games party to be given in the early winter, instead of the usual dance, to raise funds to carry on their work. Mrs. Theodore Minorini will be in charge of arrangements.

Six Highwood organizations were represented at the meeting, including the Modenesi, Cuore Arte, Senior Italian Women's Prosperity club, American Legion and auxiliary.

War Production and Scrap Metal in Northern Illinois

In America's production of tanks, guns, ships and munitions, millions of tons of steel are needed. And to meet this demand, the steel mills in this area alone, must have 200 carloads of scrap metal every day.

Here is a chance for every patriotic citizen to contribute to victory. The housewife, business man, farmer and industrialist—all can help by salvaging vital scrap metal.

A casual look around your premises is not enough. A thorough search is necessary to round up all usable scrap metal. Salvage from your home, office and factory every piece of unused and obsolete equipment that you have been saving for a rainy day... because that day is here. And you and every loyal American can help the war production program with all the metal scrap you can find.

The photographs reproduced here show how the companies in the electric system supplying Northern Illinois are answering Uncle Sam's call for scrap metal.
