Mr. Lester Olson,
The Highland Park Press
Highland Park, Illinois
Dear Mr. Olson:

The "Young Man About Town" has been given a special important Army Signal Corps Recruiting Assignment in the middle west and will be doing this kind of field survey from now on.

Sorry I won't have a column for you this week, but I plan on having a column next week and every other week thereafter even if I have to write the column in my automobile as I go rushing from town to town.

Sincerely yours,
WHITT N. SCHULTZ

Steel Salesmen Get Into Scrap Drive

More than two thousand salesmen employed by steel companies, most of them technically trained and all of them thoroughly familiar with industrial operations, will be engaged in a tremendous treasure hunt for scrap iron and steel during the next few months, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

They will spend virtually all of their working time helping their customers, search out and dispose of every possible ton and pound of scrap, particularly obsolete or long-idle machinery, tools, equipment, etc.

The "loan" of two thousand or more salesmen to the scrap drive represents the second major contribution which steel companies have made to the salvage program within the past few months.

The first was the expenditure of $1,500,000 toward financing the nationwide scrap advertising campaign of the past summer. Industries consuming other scrap materials contributed an additional $300,000 towards that campaign.

In this latest effort to increase the flow of scrap, each of the steel salesmen is devoting himself to the industry as a whole, in the interest of the war effort. All scrap recovered will move as usual to the various steel plants through the yards of scrap dealers.

Approximately 22,000 industrial plants, those that buy iron and steel direct from the producer, will be visited at least once by the steel companies' salesmen during the course of the drive. In addition, thousands of other manufacturers who buy their iron and steel from jobbers and warehouses, will be called upon for the same purposes by salesmen employed by the warehouses.

Miss Shirley Lauridsen of North avenue, is entertaining tonight (Thursday) for Ensign and Mrs. Harry E. Skidmore, the former Helen Wickersheim.

In The Nation's Service

Cpl. Lucien A. Carani of 238 Central street, Highwood was severely burned on one arm while trying to save an army transport truck on maneuvers in Louisiana a few weeks ago.

After being drafted in January, Cpl. Carani joined the motorcycle squadron at Camp Polk, La., and has been stationed there up to the time of his transfer shortly after he received his injury to attend school at Fort Knox, Ky.

B. Frank Reach Jr. of 2043 Clavey road enlisted in the army air corps on Nov. 2 as an aviation mechanic and will be stationed at Midland Field, Midland, Texas.

Mrs. Reach, the former Bette Clavey, will join her husband as soon as quarters are available.

Effective Monday, November 2, Fort Sheridan soldiers will sleep 30 minutes later in the morning. Under the winter schedule announced by Post Commander F. C. Rogers, reveille will be at 6:30 a. m. and soldiers may sleep until 6:15 instead of 5:45 a. m. as they did before when reveille was at 6 a. m. For several weeks the morning roll call has been taken in pitch darkness.

Cpl. George Stube is visiting his wife, the former Marjorie Browning of N. Ridge road, on a ten day furlough.

Private Leo J. Ladurini has been promoted to the rank of corporal. He is stationed at the Army Air Base at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Congregation Israel Sisterhood To Meet November 16

The North Shore Congregation Israel Sisterhood, at its regular monthly meeting November 16, at 2:00 p. m., presents as its program commemorating our country's first wartime Armistice Day, November 11th, a panel discussion entitled "Post-War Worlds We Make," looking beyond today's epic battle-foreground to a peacetime horizon upon which through constructive thought and action we may realize many of our hopes for the foreseeable future.

The symposium comprises Rabbi Morton B. Berman, of Temple Isaiah Israel, Perry Dunlap Smith, headmaster of North Shore Country Day School and H. L. McCarthy, regional director of the Social Security Administration for this area; each speaker representing respectively the ideals to be hoped for in post-war plans, the projection of those ideals through the educational system onto the community, and their practical application in the areas of business and government. It is expected the program will develop the idea that integrated thinking can tend to correct the unfortunate development of disparity between ideal and practice which has led the world into its present chaos.

The speakers, active in community affairs in addition to their own special fields of professional interest, will fittingly dedicate Armistice Day which the Sisterhood through its study program of international relations and current affairs, conducted by Mrs. David H. Cahn, cooperating with organizations throughout the country, this year celebrates as "World Government Day."

Mrs. Milton J. Klee, president of the Sisterhood, invites community participation in the program which promises to be highly stimulating and inspirational.

Marshall Field & Co. Offers Temporary Jobs To 1-A Men

Job-seeking 1-A men awaiting the Army's call — orphans of wartime employment — got a nod this week instead of a shake of the head.

One Chicago employer is inviting their services, no matter how imminent the draft board's call, in a help wanted ad reading:

"Are you 1-A? With your problem in mind, Marshall Field & Company has available a number of temporary jobs for which we will consider applicants who are 1A, 1B or who for any other legitimate reason may have to give up a position on short notice."

Col. Paul G. Armstrong, State Director of the Selective Service System, who has spoken strongly on the plight of unemployed 1A men awaiting call, suggested other retailers might follow the Marshall Field & Company lead.

In a communication to Hughston M. McBain, first vice president and general manager of the big department store, the Colonel declared: "Your willingness to give temporary employment to registrants classified in 1-A evidences not only patriotic motives but humane consideration as well. I am anxious to do everything I can to help these men who are awaiting call to active service for their country and I know every local board concerned shares my gratitude to your organization for your generous offer. I would like to suggest that other retailers follow your lead."

Personnel officials at the company said there are a number of job classifications particularly at this time of the year when several thousand salesmen and merchandise handlers are added to the staff, in which the 1-A man can be utilized, no matter when the draft board crooks its finger.

PROCEEDS FROM SCHOOL PLAY GO TO THEATRE WING

Proceeds from the play to be presented by the Highland Park high school Saturday evening, Nov. 7, "The House Without a Key," will be given to the American Theatre Wing, an organization recently started throughout the United States to provide entertainment for men in the armed forces.

In the middle west, all money contributed to the Theatre Wing goes toward providing transportation for stars of the stage, screen, radio and night club to U. S. O.'s and service centers in this area.

This is the first time the play has been presented by an amateur group. It is a mystery-drama featuring the famed sleuth, Charlie Chan. Students appearing in the production, under the direction of Miss Elyse Rinkenberger, include Wally Wecker, Wally Hiller, Rosemary Irwin, Barbara Mills, Pat Blake, Martha Lefler, Nancy Newey, Wen Stewart, Wilson Hamilton, Jack Anderson, Betty Bennett, Gloria Anfruns, Helen Sarett and Dick Keibon.

The entire school faculty has been invited to the play and a large audience, which will include guests from Chicago and Highland Park, is anticipated. In order to accommodate service men, fifty-nine seats have been reserved for soldiers.

Your PARTY LINE is helping HIM!

Taking party-line telephone service may not seem to be a contribution to Victory... but it is!

Telephone lines take copper — lots of it — and there's no substitute we can use. Fighting equipment to win this war takes copper, too.

That's why we have not been building more telephone lines for civilian use and why existing facilities must be stretched and shared as far as possible. Party lines instead of individual lines release thousands of tons of vital materials for war uses.

That's why on a party line it is patriotic to be a good "telephone neighbor" to others on the line.
