Erlanger Presents Noel Coward Comedy 'Private Lives'

Noel Coward's riotous and sophisticated farce-comedy "Private Lives," now playing at the Erlanger Theatre is Chicago for a limited engagement, brings together again on the legitimate stage a celebrated, glamorous team—Ruth Chatterton, long a distinguished star of the stage and one of the first ladies of the screen, and her former husband and co-star, Ralph Forbes.

"Private Lives," which has rightfully been termed Coward's most fascinating, entertaining and adult comedy, bristling with epigrams and brilliant dialogue, deals with two people who are married, divorced, both marry again and meet the night of their respective second honeymoons, then run away together, leaving their new spouses stranded.

The story strikingly parallels the private lives of Miss Chatterton and Mr. Forbes, who were once married to each other, divorced and each married again—to George Brent and Heather Angel—divorced a second time and now playing together again.

The romance in the audience should experience a double delight—to watch with keen interest Mr. Coward's skillful dissection of the two lives so badly tangled by a mischievous cupid and thrill to the strange chance that brought Miss Chatterton and Mr. Forbes together in a play that is so like their own romantic story.

The fine, outstanding performance given by these two celebrated artists insure an exceptionally enjoyable evening with the British dramatist's most popular comedy.

Park Board Explains Function and Limitations

facilities provided by the Park district which does not require the payment of fees. Among these will be found the skating rink, tennis courts, campfire circle and field house in Sunset Woods park and base ball fields in both Sunset Woods park and Lincoln park.

One of the commissioners of the Park district is the chairman of the Victory Gardens committee for Highland Park and this committee has adopted the policy of placing community vegetable gardens in the plots of ground that will return the greatest results for the effort involved. Only one park contains soil that has proved satisfactory for this type of use and permission has been granted for Victory Gardening after proper plowing.

The commissioners agree with the statement that there is much in the way of trained recreation talent in Highland Park. Our city is no different than others, in that the existing program could be improved, but with the limited funds at the disposal of the commissioners additional talent could be used only on a volunteer basis. The experience in the district has been that people will offer their services for a monetary consideration and the district has been unable to accept the services on such a basis.

Our playground directors are carefully selected but are not finished trained recreational directors. We object to generalities in condemning them because of this and will leave it to the mothers of the children availing themselves of these facilities to make specific complaints when and if they have any. As to the statement that children are not taken care of according to ages and that baseball is the principal activity we will answer that by reprinting below a typical weeks program as it appeared in the Highland Park papers last summer.

After checking the drift meter and plotting the data, the navigator transmits the information by telephone to the pilot of the plane who then sets the correct course.

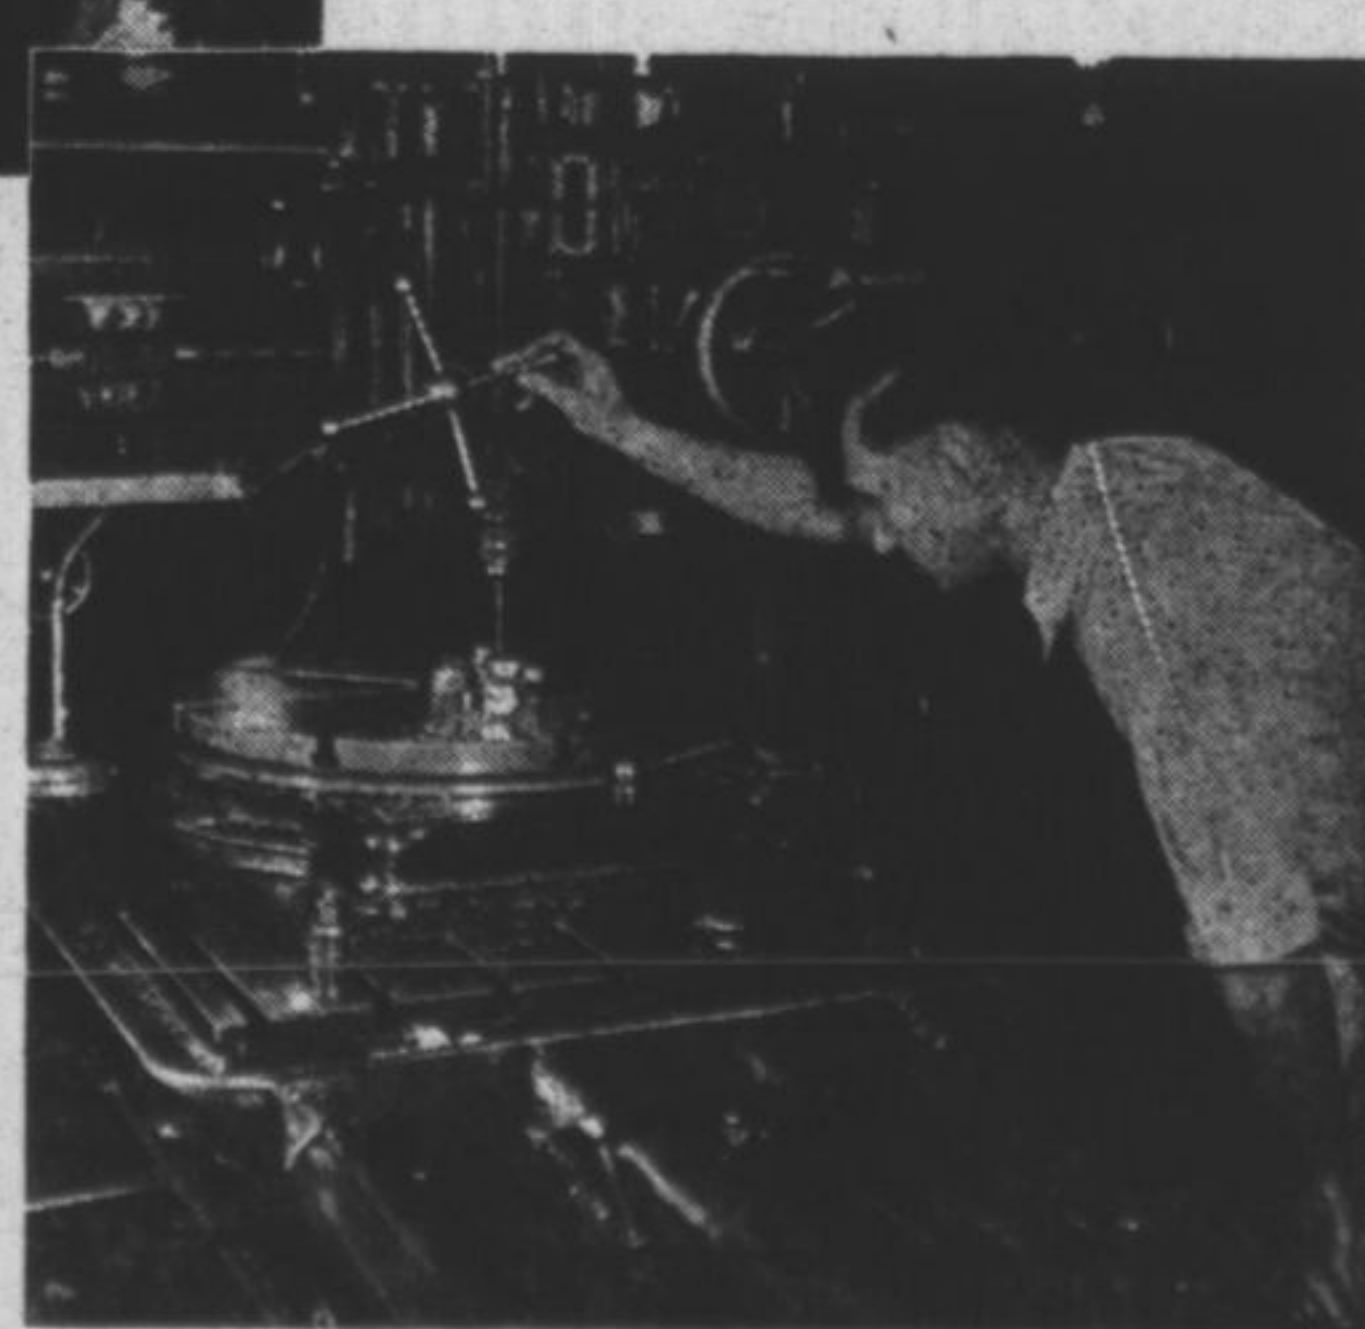

Electric precision testing machines are used in checking aircraft telephone equipment. Individual parts are tested before the complete telephone system is assembled.

Electric Power speeds production of Bomber Telephones

In huge American bombers and other war planes, the inter-telephone system is the means of constant contact between the crewmembers. Equipped with microphones and receivers, the pilot, co-pilot, navigators, gunners and bombardiers function as a team in locating and blasting the enemy targets.

In producing this vital communication equipment for America's planes, manufacturing plants working day and night depend on a constant supply of Electric Power.

Maintaining this flow of electrical energy to these plants and all war production plants in Northern Illinois, is our wartime assignment and our chief endeavor.

By keeping this jig boring machine and scores of other machines running, Electric Power helps speed the production of telephone equipment for America's planes.
