A YEAR AGO TODAY!

Headquarters, Chicago Schools, Army Air Forces Technical Training Command, July 8:—

What was happening a year ago today?

Well, the weather in Highland Park was warm—60—and there were moderate winds blowing over Lake Michigan.

Highland Parkers read in their morning papers that Rommel was reported wounded and that the Russians had been driven back 100 miles. Jap destroyers were sunk by American subs off the Alaskan coast.

Grant Marries Hutton

More saboteur aids were arrested in Chicago and the enemy was raiding North Ireland. Eighteen fliers of the Army Air Forces were killed in a four way plane crash up. The Russians came back and blew up the battleship Tirpitz.

Barbara Hutton and Cary Grant were married and the United States called 12 to Chicago for a Nazi spy trial.

French laborers started to Germany and the Japs opened a new drive for a key human rail line. The Dutch signed a U. S. Lend-Lease pact. In India, 70,000 volunteered for war. And a supreme war chief for the Allies was predicted.

Congress Works

Ghandi was warned his health was bad. Congress was asked to keep on the job. The rubber drive was on, 1400 rubber heels were turned in, and all civilian tires were threatened.

Willkie was applauding De Gaulle's French. And the Chrysler Corporation was being assailed for its low wages.

King's Row and Eagle Squadron were featured at the local theaters. Glenn Miller, now a captain in the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command, was playing Moonlight Serenade at the Panther Room. Fredrick March started the Adventures of Mark Twain. And the Cubs acquired Lon Warneke.

Pitched a Poor Game

Bob Feller was upset about his father's health and consequently pitched a poor game. The University of Illinois was worrying about its football team. And Lowell Thomas earned $95,645 being a radio commentator in 1941.

Bankers and dealers were asked for their ideas on the big issues of the country. General Electric's orders increased 115%. The Army was seeking a way to save civilian air operations. Jack Benny was preparing to tour Army camps. And Mayor La Guardia was told that his steel fence was not needed for scrap.

Enemy Will Lose

There was a typhoid epidemic in Paris. OPA planners decided to boost frozen fruit and vegetable prices. And Walter Lippmann, columnist, said the enemy couldn't win a final decision in any theater of war.

Woo-pitching was halted on Long Island where Nazi saboteurs had landed. The American League All-Stars beat the Service team, 5-0, and made $70,000 on the game.

Highland Parkers were doing more and more war work. A greater number of men were leaving for the Army, Navy, and Marines. Fewer cars were seen on Highland Park streets. Ravinia Festivals were warmer and more populated. And beaches were crowded with would-be vacationers.

radio control officer supervising the layout of radio stations in Tennessee, Alabama, and Georgia. He received his commission at the officer candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla. in December.

A younger son, Pfc. Robert Dean, who has been serving in the Marine corps for the last year, is in the South Pacific.

Nello Tamarri has returned to his duties as a corporal in an engineering unit at Camp Forrest, Tenn., after visiting his parents, the John Tamarri of Central avenue, Highwood.

Lieut. Harry S. Hansen, who with his wife, the former Betty Kugel, visited their families in Highland Park recently, has reported to his new post at Otis Field, Mass. Lieut. Hansen received his wings and commission as an army navigator on June 12 at Selman Field, La.

Sgt. James Steinmetz has been given a medical discharge after six years service with the army. He is being released at Camp Robinson, Ark., where he had been instructing recruits. He will return to his home on N. Second street where his wife and two children make their home.

Capt. Richard A. Knobloch, who bombed Tokyo with Gen. Doolittle's forces in May, 1942, has been decorated for the second time. He has been awarded the air medal for Burma bombings of the Japanese. His first decoration which was the distinguished flying cross, was awarded for the Doolittle raid.

Capt. Knobloch attended Highland Park high school and the University of Wisconsin. His father is the post engineer at Fort Shridan.

He has received several personal citations from commanding officers, and his latest award is made for gallantry in the Indian area where he is connected with the Tenth Air force.

Roy Delhaye, sergeant in the army medical corps, has been transferred from Fort Sheridan to Camp McCoy, Wis.

George J. Hinn Jr., U.S. Army Medical Corps, has been advanced to the rank of major at Hamilton Field, Calif. where he is serving as group flight surgeon. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. G. J. Hinn of Ridgewood drive.
