(Special to the Highland Park Press) HOURS IN HIGHLAND PARK!

Highland Park, Illinois, August 15.—Soldiers don't get much time off. But when they do, they spend their time at places they love most.

North Shore men now in the service pray for passes, leaves, and furloughs so that they may once again come here and enjoy what they do not have wherever they are.

Highland Park is a beautiful town! Being away causes you to realize how you love this town, the people in it, and the clean and wonderful atmosphere.

Quiet Power . . .
There is quiet power in Highland Park.

By that I mean persons here are vitally connected with the war, either in their work or by some close family member serving in the armed forces. Yet Highland Park keeps its dignity, refinement, and its high living ideals.

War will not stop Highland Parkers from listening to good music, reading good books, enjoying their home, their children, their gardens, and their way of living.

Character Changing . . .
Wars frequently change a person's outlook and character.

Not so, Highland Parkers.

They still maintain their idealism and optimism.

They still see a glorious future, and they still instill in their sons the belief that they also have an opportunity to become president of the United States.

I had a few hours here this weekend and I spent them enjoying myself in Highland Park.

I walked on the beach. I walked for miles.

Soldiers May Vote

Blank forms are available to all officers and enlisted men of the Army to enable them to apply for war ballots for elections to be held this year. Public Law 712 requires these forms to be available in years when officers of the National Government are elected. The forms will also enable legally qualified soldier voters to participate in state elections.

Bright Beauty . . .
Leaves are beginning to change color. Crickets are singing their mid-August tunes. Butterflies are gliding through the air, gently pushed by August winds.

The lake was cold but refreshing. Highland Park flowers seemed more colorful than flowers I've seen in other parts of the country.

Central Avenue . . .
I walked down Central Avenue. . . . And there it was.

The town hasn't changed much. Yes, the boys in kaki and white are here now.

But it's still the town of young married couples, pretty country clubs, cafes, convertibles and station wagons; Ravinia operas, gardens, high school lads and girls, bicycles, chugging Northwestern trains, beautiful homes, soft, green, closely-clipped lawns, and the tall white flag pole supporting the American flag waving so proudly.

Cheerful Conversations . . .

And I talked with you.

You were most cheerful about the future.

You believe the war will be over soon, but you strongly emphasized that you were not going to let down, that you were going to keep working, writing letters to us, buying bonds, and you were determined to continue diligently observing rationing rules and regulations.

Proud Feeling . . .

And I was pleased.

My visit, though short, was happy. Highland Park is all I want it to be. It has taken the war well. Its head is even higher today.

I'm glad I'm a soldier.

And I'm happy that we servicemen wherever we are, have people like you Highland Parkers to fight for and to come home to.

BEFORE THE BIG "FISH" GETS AWAY

BOYS who used to ride the "North Western" home from vacation, complaining about the "big one that got away," are now on PT boats, in submarines, or flying torpedo planes, getting another kind of big "fish" away where it counts most.

But before those torpedoes are launched the shell must be manufactured at one place, the explosive at another, and the assembly completed at a third, and then transported to ocean cargo vessels. All of these operations require extensive rail service. By the same token, foods must be transported from farm to processor, from processor to consumer. And fighting men must be moved from home to camp, from camp to camp, and to ports of embarkation. This transportation is the job the railroads are performing.

Men, munitions, supplies—all are being moved in quantities unheard of before. It's the biggest transportation problem in history—a problem which is being handled swiftly, efficiently, by American railroads.

"North Western's" 32,000 skilled railroaders are proud to share the solving of this problem, and their continued effort will be limited only by the supply of materials obtained to maintain track and equipment adequately.
