'The Doughgirls' To Present Labor Day Matinee

Having passed the 200th performance in the six months of its Chicago run, Joseph Fields' hilarious comedy, "The Doughgirls" at Chicago's Selwyn Theatre, announces a special Labor Day matinee on Monday, Sept. 6th, at popular prices.

If it's laughs you're looking for, you'll find them bouncing back at you during every minute of this frantically funny farce about three gold-diggers on the loose in the gold-braid jungles of wartime Washington.

"The Doughgirls" at Chicago's Selwyn Theatre, for military or political stuffed shirts, as it jocosely Bronx-choers the Wall Street brokers turned generals, the laundrymen become managers' ears, the shoulder-barred desk-hoppers, and the three-shift bedroom practice that has become the capital's comic trade-mark.

The three not especially moral young ladies of the title find it necessary, for wartime reasons, to establish the legality of the "husbands" they have registered as living in the hotel room which they share with each other, and—at one time or another—a general, a colonel, a captain, an admiral, a squad of Marines, a boatload of sailors, an Army chaplain, a Russian priest, a Red Army female sharpshooter, a rubber czar, a salesman in search of a bed, a wife in search of a husband, and assorted other phenomena one might expect to encounter in our cosmopolitan capital, participate in the festivities. The plot is generous with broad humor, raucous gags, rowdy fun, sizzling satire, and swift, competent playing.

The three girls are played by the talented and glamorous Betty Lawford, Leila Ernst and Peggy French; a Russian Sniper is acted by the famed Belasco star, Leonore Ulric; the stellar comedian Taylor Holmes is a very funny arm-chair general; the balance of the cast include distinguished Broadway players.

Performances are given every night and Saturday matinee. Seats are now on sale for the matinee on Labor Day, Sept. 6.

"In war we must be speedy."
—Silius Italicus, 75 A.D.

The above statement is more true today than ever. It makes us wonder if we are doing everything we can to speed (and shorten) the war. Are we conserving man power, necessary gasoline, oil and rubber? Are we buying all the war bonds we can buy?

A clerk was helping an old man from the deep South fill out an application for a civil service janitor job. The clerk would write down the answers after having read off the questions.

"Do you belong," read the clerk, "to the Nazi Bund, or to any society or party planning to overthrow the government?"

"Ya-as," answered the man, hesitatingly.

"Which one?" asked the clerk, taken aback by the applicant's candor.

"The Republican," was the earnest answer.
