are Telephone

Calls

It takes about 75 trains to move one division of soldiers and their equipment.

And it takes thousands and thousands of telephone calls to assemble supplies and get those trains loaded.

Our operators are trying to put every call through promptly, but cannot know whether one call is more important than another.

YOU can help speed essential Long Distance calls by limiting your own to those that are necessary and urgent—especially to busy war centers and at busy times.

When you MUST telephone, please be brief. . . Thank you.
