One large Auto Parking firm is said to have been forced by manpower shortage to rely on the public's honesty. Signs in the parking lot say "Park and lock, 10c on your honor." Business Week says 7 out of 10 persons pay.

As a means to meet our own manpower shortage we have gone on a 48-hour week schedule at our Gas & Coke plants. That is another increase in the cost of making fuel Gas, yet your Gas rates have not been increased.

Contracts are said to have been awarded for 900 million fiber ration tokens. These tokens, colored red for meats, etc., and blue for processed foods, will probably be placed in circulation early in 1944 as change for larger coupons. The new system will probably cause less work and less confusion for merchants, as well as for customers.

Series of Lectures On Antiques To Be Given for Women

The Collectors' Study group of the Highland Park Woman's club annually offers an open series of monthly lectures to women along the North Shore and members of the Woman's club who wish to collect knowledge and information in the field of antiques.

The committee in charge of this year's plans has selected speakers who will focus specifically on the various fields of American antiques.

John Bereman opens the season next Tuesday at the Woman's club at 10:30 a.m. Bereman lectured last year on "Early American Silver."

"American Art Primitives," including portrait studies in oil, water colors and paintings on velvet, will be discussed by Bereman in his Nov. 2 lecture.

Early American watercolors, thanks to homemade dyes employed, retain much of their original brilliance. Their all inclusive matter presents the thoughts, daily activities and social interest of early America. The art of painting on velvet was practiced by accomplished young ladies from 1800 to 1820, and required great dexterity.

"Pennsylvania Pottery," which, as a collectors' specialty, demands more knowledge and discrimination than other types of antiques, will be discussed by Mrs. Joseph Brown on Dec. 7.

January brings the great grandson of the statesman, Alexander Hamilton, who will lecture on "Antique American Jewelry." Mrs. Agnes Sascier on March 7, will talk about special porcelain which is known to collectors as "Parian Ware." The March speaker will be selected later.

The Collectors' Study committee is headed by Mrs. Charles G. Mason, chairman, and Mrs. Wilford C. Shipes, vice chairman. Committee members include Mrs. Carl G. Bingham, Mrs. Joseph B. Garnett, Mrs. Theodore L. Osborn, Mrs. Mason Smith, Mrs. Werner B. Spengler, Mrs. Ernest W. Sundell, Mrs. John R. Todd and Mrs. Lester D. Williams. Tickets for the series may be secured from the committee or at the door.
