The Summer Reading

Another year has rolled by and vacation time is here again. Ahead of us is one of the most critical and anxious summers in our nation's history. It is unavoidable that some of the tension and the nervousness of the times will reflect and show up in the lives of our children. It seems vitally important to remember this, and more than ever concentrate on building and constructing from the inside.

That is our primary thought when we offer you our plans for the summer reading this year. As far as time allows it, we hope to give each child the individual reading guidance we think he needs at the time.

This year our project is called "The Invasion of the World of Books." Each child who wishes to join is given a bright, colored leaflet. 24 parachutes are printed on this leaflet, every one ready to represent a book. The leaflets are kept in a file in the library until the vacation is over. When a book is read and discussed with the librarian, the title and the author are recorded on the leaflet and one parachute is gayly colored with crayon.

The children may read the books they want, our whole collection is at their disposal, so there is something for every taste, for every age and every ability. They may read as few, or as many books as they wish.

If they have read and discussed 7 books during vacation they will have earned a blue star, and 12 or more will bring them a gold one.

Our project begins the 10th of June, and will close with the opening of the schools in the fall.

The Children's room will be open Monday to Friday: 9-12, 3-9; Saturday, 9-6.

'Tropical Revue' At Blackstone Theater

The motto of "I will" stood Katharine Dunham in good stead when she was in the West Indies searching out primitive songs and dances and folkways of the people.

There must have been many-times when this gently-bred, well-educated girl would have gladly run away out of the steaming jungles and from the mass hypnotic-ecstasy in which they communicate with their gods.

But she was made of sterner stuff. She had come to do a job and she would do it, living as the native did for months on end with no outside contacts, taking part in their ceremonies, often having to grit her teeth and mutter "I will."

It was not all grim, however, much of it was gay and light-hearted; much of it beautiful; but all of its basic and elemental in its passions.

In "Tropical Revue" in which she is appearing at the Blackstone theater, Chicago, Katharine Dunham has caught highlights of the serious and the gay, and these combined with scenes of Cuba, Martinique, Haiti, Brazil and our own plantation dances and modern jive and boogie-woogie, display not only the rhythms and songs, of these places, but the humor and beauty and thrilling exotic costumes in a riotous blaze of color.

"Tropical Revue" presents performances every night including Sunday, with matinees on Saturday and Sunday.

Send in your mail order now—Blackstone Theatre, Chicago.

Ft. Sheridan WAC
Writes Unusual Poem

From Ft. Sheridan comes a rather unusual bit of free verse written by Cpl. Nancy Lee, of Dillon, S. Carolina, in honor of her two lieutenant brothers, in the Air Corps, one of whom is a prisoner of war in Germany. Cpl. Lee is a graduate of Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. Carolina. She enlisted in the WAC in February, 1943.

Above a clean and wind-swept sky Pursuit planes with the tiger's roar Escorting fortresses mighty and grim Dive and soar

Spreading their shadows under the sun Dive bombers with the eagle's shriek Strafing lines and destroying towns Scout and seek

Not without honor the pilots of these Not without glory their crew Sad are their blazing funeral pyres Mighty is the work they do

In some unknown unshadowed land Where space is limitless and there is no foe They shall form a mighty armada Sweeping on forever, no landing fields below

They shall ride the hurricane, make a slave of the wind Garnish their wings with the stars, know no loss of friend, Paradise or valhalla, what matters the name They shall reach that haven at the end of the game.
