

DEEPS

SHALLOWS

I crushed the springs of youthful days... The fall is here, that somber season...

Do I have longer still for you? No, broken vase can not be mended.

And where is prince of poise and sway? My happiness as a set mission?

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD HOW SHE LOST HER HEEL AND HER CHANCE, ALL ON THE SAME DAY

Maxine was a girl who got excited about things, and this was too good to hold back.

Seems that Maxine wanted to go to the July Fourth concert more'n she wanted food.

Seeing a young man in a white coat, roaming the lobby, she asked him if he could get a taxi for her.

"You're interested in Beethoven?" the young man inquired.

"Well, yes," said Maxine hesitantly. "But the real reason I'm so anxious to get this is my new conductor, Leonard Bernstein."

"The young man left this remark where he found it, and inquired if she thought his white coat fit properly.

"Lennie, you're late!" Maxine's eyes got bigger.

"Can't I carry your brief case, sir?" the bell-hop asked.

"Oh, I don't think that would matter," the young man was laughing.

"By the time Maxine got her breath, they were out of the lobby.

"Poor Maxine was so unnerved by the whole thing that she fell over the steps, broke the heel off her 'spectator shoes' and had to limp all over RAVINIA PARK that evening.

And Speaking of Men, Girls With Writers Conference just a week away, the ladies (who on some days show more tendency to come out and confer than the men) will be glad to be reminded of one of the features of the Conference, namely the opportunity to confer with publishers' representatives.

One of these publishers' representatives, when written up in literary columns as the founder of the Boswell Club, was described by John Craig in the Chicago Daily News (April 27, 1944) as "48... neat mustache, heavy but not fat... parts his straight brown hair on one side."

Such understatement could only have been written by a man. It is like saying that a sonnet by Shakespeare has fourteen lines, or a picture by Botticelli is about 5x7.

What John Craig was announcing in his "Stories of the Day" was an honorary degree in frustration, to be awarded by the Boswell Institute.

What's that stamped? No, not nylons; that's the lineup of contestants for the honorary degree of frustration (or is it the degree in honorable frustration?) to be awarded by Colonel Rousseau Van Vorhes (with his hair parted neatly on one side.)

CHICAGO MUSEUM HONORS MEMORY OF BRIG. GEN. ROOSEVELT

The flags on the two tall flag-staffs in front of the Chicago Natural History Museum are flying at half mast for three days, and the first gold star has been sewn onto the museum's service flag, in tribute to Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who died on active duty in France.

General Roosevelt was a trustee of the museum, one of five members of the institution's 21-man directing board commissioned in Army and Navy. To date, so far as is known, he is the only one of five trustees and 35 employes represented by 40 stars in the museum service flag; to have lost his life, although several others have been wounded, it was stated today by Orr Goodson, acting director of the museum.

"At the museum, Chicago will have a permanent memorial to General Roosevelt and his brother, Maj. Kermit Roosevelt who died in the nation's service in Alaska," said Mr. Goodson. "This memorial consists of a number of habitat groups of rare animals collected in Asia jointly by General and Major Roosevelt on the two expeditions they led for this institution, in 1925 and 1928. Outstanding among these are the groups of Marco Polo's sheep (Ovis poli), Asiatic ibex, and the first specimens of the giant panda ever collected by white men, which they obtained before the animal became a popular and familiar resident of various zoos. On their last expedition to remote parts of French Indo-China and southern China the Roosevelt brothers brought the museum more than 15,000 zoological specimens, a few of the most spectacular of which now constitute exhibits, but the great bulk of which are study specimens of importance to the researchers of the museum's scientific staff.

"General Roosevelt was elected a trustee of the museum on May 23, 1938."

PATTERSON BOYS SAFE IN FRANCE

Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson, Saunders Road, Deerfield, are rejoicing in recent letters from their two sons, T/Sgt. Earl and Pfc. Robert, who are in action in France. T/Sgt. Earl, writes that he is now resting after the Cherbourg drive. He says to wrap the next letter around some cheese, candy and some canned meat.

Pfc. Robert has located a river in which he and his buddies may bathe and launder their clothes. He is, he says, developing a powerful pair of shoulders from digging fox holes—not feather-lined affairs, but nevertheless greatly cherished by the boys. They are now getting used to the famous German luff-waffe (about two planes) when they come over, sounding much like a little gasoline engine on a washing machine. He assures his parents that there is no cause for worry.

LOCAL 17-YEAR-OLDS JOIN ARMY AIR FORCE

Two young men from this community qualified last week for Air Combat Crew training with the Army Air Forces, according to Capt. F. A. Wilgus, president of the AAF Examining Board at 166 W. Van Buren St., Chicago.

The future fliers who will win their wings in the "greatest team in the world" are:

Robert William Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric L. Johnson, 346 Chicago Ave., and Donald K. Shanafelt, son of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Shanafelt, 1410 Pleasant. Young Shanafelt has a brother, Pfc. Charles, stationed at Corpus Christi, Texas, in the V-5 branch of service.

Young men 17 years old are not called for active training until they are 18, Capt. Wilgus pointed out. Until called to active duty, they serve in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, and wear a small pair of blue and silver wings upon their civilian clothing.

When called, these young men from our community will first be given "a basic" training. During this period, they will take "aptitude" tests to determine whether they will be classified for training as Gunner, Bombardier, Navigator, or Pilot.

After three to seven months, runners receive silver wings and non-commissioned ratings. Those who qualify for training as pilots, bombardiers, or navigators are commissioned 2nd lieutenants or appointed flight officers, after a year's training.

"Seventeen-year-olds are invited to come to our offices and have the advantages of AAF training pointed out to them," Capt. Wilgus said. "If they knew all about our program, they'd waste no time seeing if they qualify. And, it's easy to qualify—all you need is an average mind and a healthy body."
