German Prisoners Operate Shop At Fort Sheridan

An automotive maintenance and repair shop operated entirely by German prisoners of war now is in operation at Fort Sheridan, according to Colonel John T. Rhett, post commander.

The prisoners handle all types of repairs from 1,000 mile checkups to complete overhaul jobs on all local transportation equipment except combat vehicles.

Divided into work teams, the men work on the production line system—each team performing its assigned task. Jobs have been assigned the prisoners on the basis of their past skills. Many of the PWs were drivers for the Afrika Korps, others were mechanics. One, a former violin maker in Germany, does bow repairs and fixes woodwork on automobile bodies. A one-time sheet metal workers now is doing fender repair work.

They're methodical, but thorough about their work. Seldom is work returned as unsatisfactory. In the first 14 days of operation, the shop turned out 75 vehicles. That does not include minor repair work such as cleaning carburetors or spark plugs.

One order which is painted on several signs which are hung about the shop reads: "No Smoking." This is for the protection of the men themselves. A number of other safety precaution signs, all of them in both German and English, are in evidence around the shop. Just beside the door of the stockroom is this sign: "Visitors will refrain from war comments."

During the entire time that the PWs are at work they are under the constant supervision of two skilled civilian employes of the post automotive garage.

Before a vehicle is handed over to the PW for repair and after they have completed their work, complete inspections are made by two trained American noncommissioned officers.

Applications for Absentee Voting Available in Waukegan

Service men or their families wishing to obtain applications for absentee voting in the presidential election may obtain them at the office of the county clerk, J. B. Morse, in Waukegan. The application may be obtained by the service man himself or someone acting for him.

Applications must be properly filled out, showing the address to which the ballot is to be mailed, signed by the service man, and acknowledged by his commanding officer, after which it must be returned to the county clerk at Waukegan.

If the service man is overseas, it is important that his relatives obtain the application without delay, so as to allow sufficient time for its return to the county clerk's office, the mailing of the ballot to the voter, and the return of the marked ballot to the county clerk's office in time so that it can be delivered to the election officials at the polling places in the service man's own home precinct before the closing of the polls on November 7.

The county clerk advises that the ballots will be ready the latter part of September, and he will start mailing them out to absentee voters who have sent in applications soon after that date, postage prepaid.

T/Sgt. Edward Wachholder is in New Guinea. His wife is the former Anna Ott. Others from this vicinity who are or have been in New Guinea recently are Frank Stuppel, Leonard Rectenwald, Edward Johnson, William Jenkins, William Cruckshank and Raymond Frost.

Local Writers to Take Active Part In Writers' Clinic

Still baffled because some scripts are not accepted although they have sold to "First Nighter," a team of script writers, Monica Caldwell and Helen Kerr, will be among the First Nighter aspirants who will quizz Florence Ward, radio editor, when she conducts an informal clinic following the drama and radio program on Tuesday afternoon, July 27, at the Fifth Annual Writers' conference at Northwestern university.

Excerpts from the script that was sold, based on a U.S.O. housing theme, will be read by the two writers and the radio editor will point out the good features in this object lesson. The two writers, who met at the annual conference and became collaborators, trying out their plots at meetings of the North Shore Creative Writers, and Mrs. Fred Giesecke and Mrs. E. W. Froelich, both of Highland Park.

At the drama and radio program session preceding the informal round table or First Nighter clinic, Mrs. Ward will present a cash prize for the best First Nighter script received in the contest just ended. Any fifteen-minute play which the First Nighter judges will produce means $100 for the author, so Caldwell and Kerr are as eager as anyone to find the real answer.

Mrs. Giesecke's play, "What Doth It Profit," is being produced now by the Uptown Players in Chicago.

Good Music Offered At Wisconsin Fair

Lovers of good music will be afforded the opportunity by the Wisconsin State Fair, August 19-27, of enjoying the first state opera ever presented at any fair in America, Sunday, August 20, according to William T. Marriott, State Fair manager. This "first" in all-state operas is sponsored by the Wisconsin Federation of Music clubs and the University of Wisconsin Rural Sociology department.

Rural and city music groups, including farmer and war-plant worker choruses, are cooperating to assure the success of this initial venture into the field of opera by any state fair. Performers have been recruited among amateur artists in various communities of the state and already are rehearsing their assigned parts. Final rehearsals will be held at the Fair by John Anello, veteran Milwaukee director, who will direct the opera and orchestra.

Transform Coliseum
The Coliseum, where usually the lowering of prize cattle is heard and the prancing of show horses is seen, will be transformed into an opera auditorium for the first Sunday evening of the State Fair. Livestock sounds and sights will be replaced by strains from one act each of the operas Faust, Aida, and Lakme, massed choral singing, incidental ballets, and orchestral accompaniment.

A huge stage will be constructed at the west end of the Coliseum to accommodate the cast of more than 200 and the full symphony orchestra. In addition to the regular box seats, hundreds of chairs will fill the arena.

FOUR STUDENTS ENROLL AT DE PAUW UNIVERSITY
Four students from Highland Park have been enrolled in De Pauw University for the summer semester, the office of the registrar has announced. They are Earl Hutchison, Roy Nelson, Richard McDaniel and Harry Van Ornum, all members of the V-12 unit. These students are included in the approximately 700 who will be on the campus during the summer months.

We have received a letter from France from a former Sheridanite, who says Berlin is the next stop and then home; also one from Italy. This young man speaks Italian and French and says he finds both very useful. Although liking many things about Italy, the former home of his parents, he is anxiously awaiting the return trip to "Home, Sweet Home—the U.S.A."

No one any longer believes—that the tomato—once called the "love apple"—is poisonous. Now Federal Fisheries experts are trying to dispell a similar fear of the oyster in months having "R". The bivalves, though a little less plump in summer, are nonetheless edible the year around.

The Army has been experimenting with "low temperature" meat cooking—the same method used in up-to-date hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and institutions for several years—and is getting real results. A recent three-day conference held at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, to discuss preparations of Army messes featured two demonstrations with roasts. The one roasted at 450 degrees weighed 16 pounds 6 ounces after cooking, while the one roasted at 325 degrees weighed 18 pounds 8 ounces. Enough meat was saved to provide 4-ounce servings for 12 men.

In these days of high meat costs and high ration point values, "low temperature" roasting is of especial importance. Gas equipment, with its accurate controllability and extreme flexibility is particularly adapted for these results.

Three Little Words
These were voted tops as the three best words in the English language: I love you. Dinner is served. Keep the change. All is forgiven. Sleep 'til noon. And the saddest were: Not sufficient funds. External the only. Out of gas. Please wait promptly.

"McCall's" shows canners how to test wartime rubber rings. To wit: bend them double, press gently. Check for cracks. Guard against rubber paste. Scrub with soap, then boil ten minutes, using 1 tablespoon soda in one quart per dozen rings. By the way, it is patriotic to can all you can.
