CANNING PAYS BIG DIVIDENDS TO HOUSEWIVES

The Lake County Canning center, established last year to accommodate local canners, began operations last week under the direction of Mrs. Frances McShane, who has made the industry a professional study. Sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the U. S. and State Departments of Education, with the equipment purchased by the Lake County Board of Supervisors, the center has brought praise from every person who has visited it.

Mrs. Catherine Turko, 2055 Grove Ave., North Chicago, who, in the past week has prepared 98 cans, marveled at the efficiency so evident.

Keeps Home Clean

"The best part of it all is that it doesn't get my house dirty," she beamed, proudly holding up a sample of her bright, shining cans.

The time saving procedure developed by Mrs. McShane and David Van Patten, representative of William C. Petty, superintendent of schools, takes no longer than 30 minutes. Two hundred, seventy-one cans were processed in 35 minutes, yesterday alone.

"And we haven't begun to work to capacity," declared Mrs. McShane. "We can take care of three times as many people," she added. Green and wax beans head the list of popularity, although cherries, spinach, peas, beets, raspberries, and chicken have been canned. The pea huller hulls a bushel in seven minutes, while the bean splitting machine can take care of a bushel in two minutes flat.

EFFICIENT PROCESS

The most remarkable thing is the rapidity, efficiency, and cleanliness of the work. As soon as each person finishes her work she is at liberty to leave, at which time she is informed of the time she is to call for her cans and the cost. A nominal fee of five cents per can is charged, which includes salt, can, use of machinery, and any assistance necessary. One need not have a knowledge of canning. Seven paid assistants are on hand at all times to instruct and operate the machinery.

As the center is under the jurisdiction of the rural War Production Board training program, metropolitan areas do not have the opportunity to operate such plants as do rural areas.

"Another Federal appropriation has just been made, and as long as there's a demand for canning, we shall continue to operate. There's a possibility that we may even work through the winter," Mrs. McShane disclosed as she happily went on to point out the various newly installed machinery.

Frenchman Discoverer

The process of canning was discovered by Nicholas Appert, an obscure Frenchman whose name today is as insignificant to the layman as the discoverer of ice cream is to children.

Appert, whose experimental work in food research termed him a scientist, developed the present method of food preservation by heat in hermetically sealed containers only after the French government, in 1795, offered a prize for an improved method of conserving food. At that time France was overcome by scurvy, malnutrition, and dietary diseases which attacked the armed forces as well as the civilian population. The process we so freely call "canning," is, in reality "Appertizing."

Canning is an art, and like all skilled professions, requires proper facilities and equipment for successful results.

USO-Salvation Army RANDOM SHOTS

Something New—Some of the fellows have been reporting that our old circle saw was no longer accurate due to the heavy usage received for over two years. We now have a new 10 in. Delta that really is a "honey."

Trays—Sometime ago, a lady gave us a solid mahogany table. This is now being worked up into sandwich trays to gladden the hearts of some wives back home.

King—Sgt. Bob Topps' big collie dog, "King," is sure learning the ropes around the club. We found him in the kitchen the other evening being fed by the hostesses.

FRIENDS IN SCOTLAND

From Paisley, Scotland, comes a copy of the Paisley Daily Express. The sentiment of one of its poems may well interest American readers:

TRIBUTE TO OUR AMERICAN BUDDIES

In Britain's hour of need you came From far across the sea; You left your homes and all you loved To help set humans free.

God bless you boys and keep you safe And strengthen your right arm To deal the Huns a mortal blow And save the world from harm.

In comradeship there shall evolve Between the "Doughboy" and the "Tommy" A bond of mutual respect And atmosphere of real bonhomie.

Together you shall fight the Hun, Annihilate the savage beast, And when that job is finished up Your gaze shall turn towards the East.

United in the common task, Brave, battle-scarred and sturdy chaps, You'll rid the world for ever more Of all those treacherous little Japs.

We'll ask God in our nightly prayers To speed the final day And for the help you freely gave God bless the sons of U.S.A. —Malcolm Robertson

For further information consult the local Rent Control office located in the local Post Office building in Waukegan.

LCT's Sent Abroad In Three Sections

Among the vast fleet of landing craft that took part in the invasion of the French coast were many landing craft known as LCT's that were built in three sections in this country, shipped by steamer to England and there assembled, the American Merchant Marine Institute revealed.

These "three-chunk" LCT's can carry five tanks or a large number of mechanized equipment or, if necessary, a considerable number of men. The "chunks" include a 38-ton forward section, a 66-ton center section and a 60-ton stern section. They were shipped from America in an almost complete state with main engines, auxiliaries, generators, galley stoves, banks, showers, wash-basins, and refrigerators, fixed in position. Inside the sections were crates containing the necessary gear and equipment to make them into one complete craft.

In Great Britain, the sections were towed to an assembly plant where skilled tradesmen rushed the job to completion. The sections were placed in line so that drilled holes in the bulkheads of each portion match up. Good alignment is assured by long master bolts and two-inch bolts through the holes around the top, bottom and sides, link the sections together. In all, 176 six-inch bolts were needed to join one section to another. Canvas gaskets painted with red lead make the sections watertight. When finished they have a length of 150 feet.

The craft is completed upon the installation of a winch, radio mast, armament and a little plumbing. One of the first of these vessels to be so assembled took 53 days to complete last fall. Now it takes only nine days. — American Merchant Marine.

Manufacture of New Telephones Now Scheduled

EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS!

IT IS good news to all of us that a limited number of new telephone sets will be made for home use starting some time this year. Unfortunately, this will NOT mean any immediate or general relief for those people on our waiting list for service.

War needs still have first claim on new telephone equipment. To care for the growing waiting list of unfilled orders will require more new telephones and other facilities than can possibly be produced in the near future.

We're sorry some new customers must wait and we are doing many things to give them service at the earliest possible moment. We appreciate their patience and understanding.
