

War Garden Show to Prove Heat, Drought Conquered

Preliminary entries of war garden exhibits, according to Dougall Kittermaster, president of the Men's Garden club, under whose auspices the 4th annual show will be held at the Lincoln school next Saturday and Sunday, will prove that man can conquer nature.

"War gardeners cannot be stopped by heat or drought," President Kittermaster said. "Despite the worst growing season in many years, the fourth annual war garden show will bring out evidence of a bountiful harvest."

The head of the sponsoring organization made a special plea for wide participation in the exhibit.

"We still have room for many more entries than have been made to date," Mr. Kittermaster continued. "Home makers living anywhere in the environs of Highland Park or along the North Shore are urged to participate. There is no entry fee and everybody and everything grown in a garden will be welcome. This year, more than ever, we need wide participation. Let's show the Axis that America's food resources are limitless. Programs are available at Gsell's drug store, Olson's men's store and Husemutter's hardware store in Ravinia.

Arrangements for an exciting display of war weapons from Fort Sheridan were completed during the week by Capt. Fred H. Dettmar, public relations officer. The war garden show will open to the public at 3 p. m., according to Carl Stith, one of the committee.

H. P. American Legion Plans Own Club House

The American Legion, post No. 145 of Highland Park, has planned a fitting memorial for the veterans of World War II in the shape of a new club house to be erected on Sheridan Road, one block north of Central Avenue. The corner plot, 171 feet on Sheridan and 231 feet on Park, has already been purchased by the Legion committee consisting of Miller Schreiner, chairman, Harry Eichler, Arthur Montgomery, Henry Rüter and Arthur Swanson. The building now standing on the plot, occupied by the William Plants, will be razed to make room for the new two-story club house.

There has been need for a club house since the Post was first organized. In 1919 and 1920 the meetings were held at the Highland Park club on Central, near the lake, no longer in existence. Later the Elks' hall was used, and for the past 12 years meetings have been held in the Masonic temple, where the club will now continue to meet until the new hall is completed.

The site on Sheridan Road was the property of Mrs. George Millard, of Pasadena, Calif., daughter of the late D. M. Erskine, a former president of the First National bank of Highland Park. The legion plans to erect a fine hall with recreation room in the basement, large meeting hall on the first floor, and janitor's quarters with two or three additional rooms on the second floor. The entire cost is expected to be around $100,000.

Plans, however, are indefinite until the Legion post completes a fund-raising campaign and the government releases building materials.

Friday Night Closing Softball Game of Series

Highland Park's phenomenally successful Old Timers softball team under the capable management of Elmer Therrien, Jr., secured revenge over the powerful Fort Sheridan softball champions—the Baker and Cooks team, for their defeat the previous week by them, by winning a very fast and furious ball game to the tune of 12-7. With the game tied up 5-5 to the seventh inning, the record crowd cheered themselves hoarse as they view one spectacular play after another, and no one left the park until the final out was made.

The Red Cross solicitors collected $47.78 to help swell the season's total to $502.29, which the Old Timers have raised through their Friday night games with Army and Navy service teams.

The largest crowd of the year should be on hand this Friday evening at 9 o'clock when our local boys play their last game of the season against a strong army team from the veterinary division of the Quartermaster corps, who will travel out here from Chicago. From advance reports the Old Timers will have to be on their toes to win their final game.

When one considers that the Old Timers and their opponents have provided entertainment each Friday night throughout the summer for countless numbers of Highland Park families and at the same time have raised the funds which they have for the American Red Cross, it seems only fitting that the public should turn out en masse to cheer these boys for their accomplishments during this war year.

Highland Park High Will Open on September 6th

UP TO NOW

Don't look now, but maybe—just maybe, not for sure—maybe the Republicans are waking up in the matter of propaganda, which, after all is merely presenting YOUR side of a situation. For lo, these many years, Republican propaganda has suffered considerably in comparison with the smoothness of the New Deal article. Hoover's statement that prosperity was "just around the corner," was an outstanding example of bad judgment in releasing statements for the press, but probably the zenith of absurdity was reached during the Roosevelt-Landon campaign in 1936, when an aspiring, but certainly not inspired press agent wrote a whole article comparing the serious manner in which Landon smoked a cigarette with the frivolous manner in which FDR disposed of a weed.

Now, however, it looks as if the boys in the GOP camp are on the ball, as witness a few excerpts from a recent release by the Republican National committee:

1. With the Office of Defense Transportation urging less and ever less unessential travel, the GOP boys point out that a committee consisting of one person from each of the 48 states will call on FDR soon to inform him that he has been nominated for a fourth term. The GOP is unkind enough to infer that it doesn't think the journey "essential."

2. The GOP claims that in a recent heavy rain in Washington, the effects of many federal workers were ruined by flood waters, but only the effects of such federal workers as were housed in buildings erected by federal agencies. Those erected by private industry, the release says, had adequate sewer systems. The GOP inference of course is that private industry is better at "planning" than these federal agencies.

3. When the Bankhead bill to increase price on textiles was before the Senate, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles fought it as "inflationary." However, a compromise bill was passed giving the OPA power to grant increases where needed. Recently several major increases in textile prizes have been granted. The GOP boys don't infer anything in this case. They come right out with the statement that "this is what is called 'holding the line against vote losses.'"

Yep, the boys are in there swinging. The New Deal undoubtedly will have answers, but those answers won't be as easy to concoct as those light cynical bits they were able to dash off about the unimportance of a man's manner of smoking a cigarette.

Bam! And no sooner is the above optimistic report completed than comes word that no less a person than the Republican vice-presidential candidate, Governor Bricker of Ohio, has come out with the word that Ohio soldiers will have to mark their ballots with a black pencil, or no dice. Needless to say, the New Deal camp is already capitalizing on this, and is making snide remarks about how all fox holes might not be equipped with black pencils, and is the good governor going to see to it personally that all those boys in those fox holes have same? The only sensible thing, they say, is to let them mark with any convenient instrument at hand, not barring the point of a bayonet. This makes sense, even if it does fall strangely on some ears to hear the New Dealers hollering about being logical and sensible. Anyway, this is just the sort of foolish little slipup that friends of the Republicans had hoped they were through making. It may sound unimportant, and it may be that there ARE plenty of black pencils around those foxholes, but it just adds up to more red tape, and red tape is one of the things that the Republicans are taxing the New Dealers with having too much of.
