The ultimate in self service seems to have appeared in the restaurant in Seattle where patrons make their own sandwiches, help themselves to coffee and dessert, and then ring up their own checks at the cash register. The proprietor (who washes the dishes) claims he has never been cheated.

Our own reduction of half our meter readers, half our service men and labor shortages in the plants does not seem bad by comparison. As a matter of fact we are getting along very well, thanks to the very cooperative help of our customers. Lieutenant Don Kepler teaches cadets how to catch, skin and cook snakes as a part of a demonstration on living off the land when lost. The difficulty is that the cadets are, in a sense, from Missouri, and have to see someone relishing rattlesnake ribs before they are convinced. Since the classes change every 2 weeks the Lieutenant is getting his fill of roast reptile.

A new disposable auxiliary gasoline fighter plane is made of paper. Another reason to save scrap paper.
Raincoat fabric which will be 100 times as efficient as present material, nylon rope and clothesline 7 times as strong as hemp, shoe soles which will last 4 times as long as leather, and Gas Appliances even further improved are promised for the future.

ARNOLD P. BENSON

Illinois is fortunate in having had a fine crop of upstanding young men coming to the forefront during the past decade. Many of them are the outcome of World War I, which served to develop in them a sense of responsibility and a sober realization of their duty to society. An outstanding example of this type of service conscious young men is Arnold P. Benson of Batavia, Republican nominee for Secretary of State.

Even the casual visitor to Batavia will quickly discover that Arnold P. Benson is not without honor in his home town. Everywhere he will hear expressions of respect admiration and affection for this prominent fellow citizen. His fellow-townsmen in whatever group is contacted will make it emphatically clear how much they value his service and contributions to the community. He has linked or built his life into that city through local organization and various kinds of public service. He has helped through one agency or another in the fulfillment of every civic project and every patriotic obligation simply for the joy of service and to satisfy his sense of duty. He has tried to do his full part in every public enterprise. Despite his busy life he has taken time to be active in the American Legion and has been the guide, counsellor and spokesman of the World War veterans. He has the wartime asset of a fine military record. At all times he is modest and has never sought the spotlight. Always he has been forthright, conscientious, absolutely honest and loyal to his friends. These traits have earned for him thousands of personal friends who wish him and his highly esteemed family the fullest measure of success.

Wherever he has gone, he has carried the high qualities which his Batavia neighbors and friends have found in him. Since 1932 he has served competently and with distinction in the Illinois State Senate. Throughout his three terms as senator, his principles have been grounded on the best interests of this State. He has not been factional. He has not been partisan. His office door has been open always to any citizen. He has had the good will and confidence of all his associates so that his word has always gone a long way with them.
He has been growing rapidly in the past four years. His sterling virtues have brought him a following that has made him powerful in Illinois politics. He will make an ideal and popular Secretary of State. He possesses the careful, painstaking kind of efficiency that the office requires.

Wounded Navy Corpsman Displays Great Heroism

Guam (Delayed) — War is a producer of pathetic sights, but a few Marines on the Orote Peninsula front saw one stark incident which they will not easily forget.

In skirmishing formation, one squad of Marines was moving thru dense brush to clear out an enemy position delaying their company's advance when enemy fire broke out all around them.
One of the Marines, wounded, called for aid and a Navy medical corpsman with the unit began crawling across a small clearing toward the wounded man. As he reached the edge of the clearing, a rifle shot hit him in the face, passing through both cheeks and destroying the sight of one eye.
The corpsman fell to the ground, out of reach of the Marines, pinned down by a spray of machine-gun fire.

Again the wounded Marine called for help, unaware that the corpsman was hit. Blinded by his own blood, the corpsman dragged himself to his feet, fell, rose again, and began crawling in the direction of the voice. A Marine finally was able to reach the wounded medical man, dragged him to cover, and had to hold the corpsman to keep him from going any farther.
